RELATES AGAIN OF THE ORIENT

ROBERT BURNS, NOW HOME, CONTINUES NARRATIVE.

Young Globe-Trotter Will Describe His Further Experiences to Courier Readers.

We have this week the third interesting letter from Robert Burns, who has recently returned from his tour of the world. Those of our readers who were delighted by his previous accounts of the many strange lands in which he traveled and the novel experiences that he described, may now prepare themselves for a further treat.

"Editor, The Courier,

Dear Sir—I wrote the Courier on January 16th from Cebu, P. I., but since then I have been in more tropical countries and have seen more of the tropics.

From Cebu I went to Singapore in the Malay states. Singapore is just a few miles from the equator, so it is useless to try to describe the heat, but it was warmer than in Charlevoix, as I did not see any snow. At noon, the thermometer registered 120 degrees in the sun and a hot wind was blowing. But, in spite of the extreme heat of the day, the evenings are beautiful. The air is warm and the wind feels cool and I enjoyed the tropical evenings more than the days.

The native population of Singapore are called Siamese and they resemble the American negro very much. The girls are rather short of stature and heavy set, with prominent cheek bones, thick lips and long straight black hair. The general dress of the people consists of light clothing hung from the hips down and very little from the hips up, so they seemed peculiar to me. Their shoes are light, consisting of a strap across the top of the foot, fastened to a piece of leather to keep the foot from the hot pavement. The only people who wear shoes are the people who have to walk on the streets. The native farmers always go barefooted.

The population of Singapore consists of sixty per cent Malay natives, thirty-five per cent Chinese and five per cent foreigners, mostly English, as Siam is controlled by the English government. In the Chinese district, the place reminded me of parts of China.

From Singapore, I went into the Dutch Indies, or to Sabang on the island of Sumatra. Here I saw coffee and cocoa growing and had the privilege of picking bananas and coconuts. I also saw a large, tropical snake, called the boa-constrictor. The snake was caught alive by the natives and shipped to a zoo in Rotterdam, Holland.

Sumatra was the most natural, beautiful place that I saw in the tropics, the botanical gardens at Singapore being the most beautiful artificial place. Here bananas sold for 25 to 50 cents a bunch and if you went out into the mountains they could be had for the picking, as they were as thick as apples in Charlevoix. Coconuts were also very cheap, peddlers on the streets selling them for three cents apiece or 35 for one dollar.

At Sabang there was a small freshwater lake back in the mountains. The lake was very beautiful, surrounded by coconut and banana trees and I enjoyed looking at fresh water again.

From Sabang I went to Colombo, Ceylon. Here, the first thing I noticed were the birds around the city. These birds were much like the American crow, only smaller in size. They fly around the city like the English sparrow in America.

The people are very black, like the natives of Siam. The only difference is that natives of Ceylon have rings in their ears and nose and beads around their neck and sometimes bracelets around their ankles and arms.

The streets of Colombo are like the streets of an American city. The buildings are constructed of stone or brick. At Colombo I was through a native church or temple. In the temple I saw many gods. The one that interested me most was a large wooden goddess in a sleeping position. She was thirty feet long from the top of her head to the bottom of her feet and eight feet across the shoulders. She was made of carved wood and was painted bright colors—red, yellow and green. There were numerous other gods of many sizes and in various positions. Each god or goddess represented something in particular. The one described above represented the goddess of love.

When the natives have a feast they worship these gods and they also have what is known as a holy tree. The holy tree looks like a small maple tree, except that the leaves are a different shape. Around the base of the tree is a small fence to keep tourists from breaking the ends of the branches off.

The beasts of burden of Colombo are cows and elephants. All wagons are drawn by cows that look like a Jersey cow, while back in the country elephants are used to work with.

From Colombo, I crossed the Indian ocean to Arden, Arabia. Here things were different than in the tropics. Arden is in a hot climate and is dry, but is not like Ceylon or Siam. The land of Arabia is sandy, with little or no grass. Back of the city of Arden there are mountains, rising up at least two hundred feet and not a sign of a tree, a blade of grass or any kind of vegetation.

The streets of Arden are made of brick and stone and are very dusty. The children play in the streets with the dogs, goats and chickens. In

TO INSTRUCT GIRLS ON INFANT WELFARE

State Lecturer Will Commence Series of Talks April 8th.

Miss Lella Priest of the State Department of Health will be in Charlevoix Tuesday, April 8th, to give instruction during school hours to the high school girls on infant care. This has been made possible by the splendid cooperation of the superintendent of schools, Mr. C. F. Hamilton. In the evening at 7:30 a talk will be given on prenatal and infant care. All women are invited to attend.

Miss Priest will be in Charlevoix every Tuesday for six weeks. This is part of the Sheppard-Towner program being carried on by the State Department of Health.

"PRIDE GOETH BEFORE A FALL"

NORTH STATERS BUST UP ON SOUTHERN ROCKS

Which Goes to Show That While You May Be Good, Someone Else is Better.

The glittering conquerors of the exciting tournament at Petoskey have been robbed of their sudden glory. Though they headed the list in the north-state annals, they sank into sudden oblivion when they clashed with the southern knights. In one two, three order they cast up their eyes and went home where the smell of the old victory had not entirely faded away.

Cheboygan, with the memory of that magnificent Saturday night come-back still lingering in their minds, went down before the furious onslaught of St. Joseph and began the ball rolling.

The big meet which took place this year at the Michigan Agricultural College was attended by teams from all portions of the state. This district chose her representatives by the four highest point winners of the N. M. B. T. at Petoskey. The champions and second place winners were given a chance to poke their heads into the state ring.

Thus Cheboygan and Petoskey of Class B and Harbor Springs and Rogers City of Class C were sent down to Lansing.

This is how they went down: Cheboygan—Winner of North-state Class B title at Petoskey. State Preliminary. Cheboygan, 9; St. Joseph, 23.

Petoskey—Runners-up in N. M. B. T. Class B Finals. State Preliminary. Petoskey, 10; Lowell, 18.

Harbor Springs—Winner of Class C title at N. M. B. T. State Preliminary. Harbor Springs, 11; Cass City, 12.

Rogers City—Runners-up in Class C, N. M. B. T. Eliminators of Charlevoix. State Preliminary. Rogers City, 18; Reed City, 23.

Rogers City needs to be commended on her showing. Holding Reed City down to a 5-point lead is not so bad when one takes into consideration that Reed City won the state championship, downing every Class C team from Rogers City to Pow-gatuk.

Thus the northern Michigan teams got walked on a little when cast into the cauldron of state competition. Their careers, grand and glorious though they were in the underbrush of Northern Michigan, sank into oblivion when they bumped into the southern briars. Their banners looked rather tattered when hung up alongside those of their down-state competitors.

Petoskey's tin horn didn't blow so hard or sound so loud on the foreign court and we suppose the boys felt a little frightened. We might add that the state results in basketball this spring are:

State Champions of Class C, Reed City High School; State Champions of Class B, Grand Haven High School; State Champions of Class A, Jackson High School.—Official Chanticleer report.

MEETS WITH A FEARFUL DEATH

AGED WOMAN IS ROASTED IN BLAZING SHACK.

Mrs. Mary Haynes Had Lived in This Region for Twenty Years—Was Sixty.

Mrs. Mary Haynes, a widow living about a mile southwest of Phelps, near the Ellsworth road, perished in a terrible manner last Monday morning in the flames that destroyed her home.

Herman and Wilbur Himebauch, farmers of the Phelps district, were hauling hay from Wilbur's place over to that of the elder Himebauch. Their road led across the Haynes place, which is adjacent to the Fred Mason farm, the ill-fated house standing back from the road quite a piece. It was about 11 o'clock and they were on their way with a load. When still some distance from the Haynes place, they saw the smoke rising and whipped up the horses. As they reached the house, the whole east end of which was in flames, Herman leaped from the sleigh, leaving his son Wilbur to tie the horses, and ran to the house.

Mrs. Haynes, nearly every stitch of clothing burned from her scorched and blackened flesh, stood tottering in the doorway and pitched forward in a huddled heap to the ground, almost at the feet of the farmer, who dragged her body clear of the blazing doorway.

It being useless to try to save the building, which was by this time a roaring furnace, one of the men got in touch with Mr. Mason, who telephoned to Lyman E. Benton, county poor superintendent. Mr. Benton, leaving instructions with Mr. Mason to have someone stay with the body and permit no one to move it, summoned the coroner, Dr. McMillan, and the sheriff and drove to the scene of the tragedy. After a brief examination of the corpse and the ruins which were still burning, the party returned to Charlevoix, bearing with them the pitifully mutilated remains.

Mrs. Haynes had been the sole tenant of the destroyed property since the death of her husband, which occurred some months ago at the county infirmary. It is thought that the fire started on the roof of the building, probably from a spark from the stove pipe chimney in the east end. A ladder, which had always been lying on the ground, was found placed against the side of the building at this point, as though Mrs. Haynes had attempted to climb up on the roof and extinguish the blaze. It is thought that the unfortunate woman re-entered the house, either to reach the water barrel that stood just inside the door, or to save some valuables, and it was then that her clothing caught fire. The building, which was little better than a boarded shack, about fourteen by twenty feet in dimension, such as a hunter would build for his camp, burned like tinder and the victim was probably engulfed in a blast of flame before she could escape. The flesh was literally roasted from her bones.

Mrs. Haynes, who was about sixty years of age, was the widow of George Haynes, who died February 7th last and is now at rest in the cemetery at Barnard. She came to this region with her husband about twenty years ago from St. Johns, Michigan, and at one time they lived on the John Ward place. Mrs. Haynes was a woman of considerable education and, before her marriage, was a school teacher.

The authorities tried all Monday evening and Tuesday morning to communicate with the only relatives of the dead woman known to them—a niece, Mrs. C. T. Jensen of Detroit, but without results, owing to the wires being out of order, until about eleven o'clock Tuesday, when Mrs. Jensen was finally located. She promised to communicate with members of the deceased's immediate family at Corunna, Michigan, to learn their wishes with respect to the disposition of the remains.

SURPRISED WITH POTLUCK DINNER

Friends of Mrs. George Clark Met With Her Thursday.

Mrs. George Clark was greatly surprised by a crowd of ladies who gathered at her home on March 27th, equipped with the 'fixins' for a fine pot-luck dinner.

This was a pleasant affair for Mrs. Clark, who has been ill for some time. Everyone had a good time and before the "bunch" broke up they had their picture taken in a group.

APRIL 7 IS ELECTION DAY

VOTE TO BE MADE FOR NATIONAL COMMITTEEMEN.

Coolidge Seems to Be Sure Winner in Michigan and Charlevoix, as He Has Been Everywhere.

Next Monday, April 7, is Primary day for the nomination of a candidate for President of the United States, Election day for members of party national committees and township election day.

So little has been said about it generally that probably many do not know that Michigan's choice for president will be decided at that time. There are three distinct ballots Monday, April 7. Each must be prepared separately, will be placed in a box by itself and counted separately.

The Republican Primary Election ticket for the office of President of the United States will contain the three names given below. Place a cross in the square before the name of your candidate.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

HIRAM W. JOHNSON.

WM. G. SIMPSON.

Simpson's candidacy is a joke. He is the fellow who gets his name on the ballot every four years just to illustrate how easy it is for any man to run for president. While the general sentiment of the state is for Coolidge without a doubt, Johnson is making a desperate eleventh hour effort to sway the labor vote in some of the cities of the state. Johnson does not seem to have any chance of success whatever. He was third in North Dakota, while Coolidge looks like a winner all along the line.

National Committeemen.

For National Committeemen there are three candidates:

James E. Davidson of Bay City.

Paul A. Martin of Flint.

Frank A. Rasch.

Mr. Davidson is a prominent business man and ship owner of Bay City, and undoubtedly the best man available for this place.

Democratic.

For President there are two candidates:

Woodbridge N. Ferris.

Henry Ford.

The former is generally favored by Democrats for the nomination. Ford has not wanted his name on the ticket. He has declared himself for Coolidge, but someone, without his authority, filed his name.

National Committeemen.

The Democrats will elect two, one of whom must be a woman. The candidates are:

Etta C. Boltwood.

William A. Comstock.

Evelyn S. Mersbon.

Attention Car Owners.

If you wish to trade your car (whatever make) for a Ford, register with me today. Seth B. Smith, Territorial Salesman, Northern Auto Company, Charlevoix.

"I hate my great big awkward car, I'm mad enough to bawl. It's broken here it's leaky there; and under it I crawl. I'll buy a Ford next time by hook, I don't care if it's small, I'll be a precious 'rubber neck' and happy with it all."—Adv. 12tf.

EX-JUDGE F. W. MAYNE IS DEAD

PASSED AWAY AT DETROIT HOME ON TUESDAY.

Occupied the Charlevoix Bench For Twenty-five Years—Funeral Here.

Hon. Rollie L. Lewis received a telegram at his office, Tuesday noon announcing the death in Detroit of ex-circuit Judge Frederick W. Mayne. The telegram, which was signed by John Ainslee Mayne, also stated that the remains would be brought to Charlevoix, the funeral to be held Thursday afternoon in this city.

The announcement of Judge Mayne's death, though not entirely a surprise on account of his stroke last fall and his recently reported ill health, still comes as a considerable shock to those who were friends and neighbors of the jurist during his quarter century of service on the bench of the Thirteenth Judicial Circuit.

Frederick W. Mayne was of Scotch-Irish origin and was a native of New York state, having been born near Ogdensburg, St. Lawrence county, on September 27, 1865, the son of John Mayne and Mary Celand. The future judge was reared on his father's farm and after attending the local schools entered the New York State Normal school at Potsdam, from which he graduated with the class of 1876. He went from there to a theological school in Philadelphia, Pa., following this with two years of special study under a tutor. His parents desired that he enter the ministry, but his early leaning was towards the law, a profession which, as we know, he finally adopted.

In 1878, with the primary idea of improving his health, he came to Charlevoix on a visit and became so favorably impressed with this region that he decided to make it his home. He had previously taught school in New York and on coming to Charlevoix resumed this work, holding the position of principal here for a period of two years. In the meantime he studied law and was finally admitted to the bar of Michigan in 1880. Later he supplemented his studies by a year's work in the University of Michigan law school, being sufficiently advanced to graduate with his class in 1881. He then returned to Charlevoix and entered upon the active practice of his profession. He was elected to various township offices, served four years as probate judge and two years as prosecuting attorney.

Upon the death of Judge Roscoe L. Corbett, he was called to the bench to serve the nine months' unexpired term of his predecessor and was subsequently elected as circuit judge of this district for a full term of six years, and has been returned to this office regularly by the voters of the district until last fall, when he was defeated by Parm C. Gilbert of Traverse City.

The judge was prominently identified with the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, having of late years served as a grand lodge officer. He was also affiliated with other fraternal organizations and was a member of Christ Episcopal church, Charlevoix. He was an ardent lover of athletics and has done much to encourage this and other sports in his home town, having organized one of the first baseball teams in the city, and playing himself.

In 1882, Judge Mayne was married to Miss Charlotte Ainslee, daughter of Nelson Ainslee, one of this county's pioneer settlers. Four children were born to this union: Ethel, now Mrs. Don Stacks, who lives in the East; Nina, of Detroit; John Ainslee, of Detroit and Frederick Celand, of Cheboygan. W. H. Mayne, of Rural Route Four, is a nephew of the deceased.

Miss Nina Mayne and Dr. Celand Mayne arrived in Charlevoix this morning to make arrangements for the funeral, which will be held at the Congregational church at two o'clock Thursday afternoon, Rev. C. W. Long officiating. The Odd Fellows' lodge will also conduct their burial service at the grave for their departed brother. Interment will be made at Brookside.

Mrs. Mayne and her son, Ainslee, will arrive Thursday morning with the body of the late judge. A double quartette has been secured to sing at the services in the church.

The aches and pains of a bad back Are frequently due to weak kidneys.

So Charlevoix citizens testify. Mrs. Chas. Myers, 207 Park avenue, Charlevoix, says: "I had trouble with my kidneys and felt tired out and languid all the time. My back ached continually. I bought a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills at Metcalf's Drug Store and began using them. They soon relieved the trouble."

Mrs. Myers gave the above statement October 5, 1916, and on May 4, 1920, she added: "The cure Doan's Kidney Pills brought about in my case has proven permanent."

"EYES OF THE FOREST"

Shows Athletic Fox Star in Thrilling Role of Aviator.

Deep in the big timber country of California, Tom Mix, a company of actors and a mechanical force lived for two months during the making of "Eyes of the Forest," which comes to the Palace Theatre for a two-day run Saturday and Sunday, April 5 and 6.

According to advance reports of this William Fox production, the sacrifice, if such it was, was worth the effort. Having pioneered in almost every field of daring, Mix will now make his bow as a full fledged aviator.

Social peculiarities and fistic masquerades furnish Charles Jones' most recent Fox production, "Big Dan," with a speedometer whose average register breaks even that lightning star's record for speed. It is announced as the feature attraction of the Palace Theatre on Wednesday, April 9th.

Nothing seems more appropriate than a ringside background for Charles Jones. The tall, broad and square jawed star seems to fit adequately a pugilistic setting. This is provided for him in "Big Dan," whose titular role he takes modestly.

CONGRESS BLOCKADED BY COMBINATION OF DEMOCRATS AND RADICALS.

At the election of 1922 control of both branches of Congress passed from the Republican party to the Democratic-radical bloc. The election of radicals and Democrats in place of Republicans brought about this overturn in congressional control.

In two tests of strength this control by the Democratic-radical bloc has been demonstrated; in the House in the vote on the change in the rules which destroys the power of a supposedly dominant party to give preference to the consideration of legislation which forms a part of the party's program, and in the Senate in the election, by a Democratic-radical combination, of a southern Democratic senator as chairman of the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

The so-called balance of power in both branches is held by men elected as Republicans whose only basis of affiliation with the party is the personal advantage given at elections and in the distribution of committee assignments by Republican classification. Beyond this their hatred of the Republican party is deep seated, and is evidenced by a willingness at any time to enter a combination with the opposition to thwart Republican efforts at legislation.

With the power to control legislation in the hands of this anti-Republican combination, how is it being used? In a successful effort to tie the legislative business of the country into a double bow knot. The present Congress will go down in history as a do-nothing Congress because this Democratic radical combination is determined that the party in power shall get no credit for constructive legislation. There is a consequent willingness, even an eagerness, to make this session of Congress absolutely barren of results that would be helpful to the country. The theory of these politicians is that anything helpful to the country would give credit to the Republican party, and from their narrowly personal and partisan viewpoint it is better that the interests of the country should suffer than that they should be short of ammunition against Republicanism in the campaign just ahead.

It is under the leadership of this radical-Democratic combination that the time of Congress and the attention of the country is being taken up by "investigations" in which hearsay scandal by irresponsible witnesses is used as a time killer, and as a means, so these politicians suppose, of creating popular distrust of the administration and government. Hovering in the background of this effort on the part of some of the most active participants is a direct purpose to kill the faith of the American people in their form of government. It is no accident that some of the most prominent of those engaged in this task are recent guests of the Moscow government and have no hesitancy in saying that the bolshevist system is superior to American representative government.

The American people will in due time place the responsibility for the complete tie-up of Congress, the thorough blocking of legislation at a time when the people are demanding a comprehensive program of remedial legislation, just where it belongs. The responsibility is all with the Democratic-radical bloc, members of which take up the time of the Senate with long-winded partisan harangues, reeking with venomous abuse of political opponents and who have been stringing out investigations through the introduction of cheap hearsay gossip retailed by blackmailers, murderers, corruptionists, bootleggers and train robbers.

The oversight of the chief machinists of this program, intended to discredit the national administration before the country, and the nation before the world, is that they underestimate the ability of the American people to discriminate between sincerity and demagoguery, between truth and falsehood, between fact and fiction, between evidence and gutter gossip. The people of America are fully alive to the fact that out of all this series of investigations, conducted out of public funds at their expense, and with total disregard of rules of law and evidence, of decency, and common fairness, there has come just one revelation made by responsible witnesses touching the integrity of a single official of the government.

This is America, not Russia. Ignorance is not so much to be relied upon here as in Moscow. The people of the United States not only read and listen, but they reflect. They are able to differentiate between a reformer and a fraud, between a real crusader and a cheap fakir. It is failure to comprehend these facts that has misled some of those who, neglecting and obstructing the business they are paid to transact, have been busily engaged in collecting rogues' galleries in Capitol hill and trying to blacken the reputation of honest men through the slanderous munderings of confessed malefactors.

The present situation emphasizes the necessity of electing this year a Republican Congress. The experiment of a Congress dominated by elements more interested in breaking down the administration in power than in cooperating with it in the development of a constructive legislative program, is one that has turned out a lamentable failure. Republicans in the several congressional districts of the country should look to it well that they place in nomination strong, representative men, of mental and moral fiber, not self-seeking demagogues who use the party to get into power on, only to betray its principles once they have had their names put on the public payroll.

Failure to elect a Republican Congress in 1922 has brought serious consequences upon the country. It has deadlocked the machinery of government. The next Congress should be one dominated by Republicans who are interested in the party after an election as well as before an election, and who will place their country's interests beyond their own selfish interests and the insatiable lust for personal power.

MEMORIAL TO SLAIN CHILDREN

This monument, consisting of a broken column to symbolize the lives cut off before maturity, was dedicated in St. Louis to the 32 children who have been killed by automobiles in that city during the past year. A dirge was played by the Sixth Regiment band during the ceremonies, while flowers were strewn by six dancing pupils and a dirigible from Scott field.

RIGHT GEAR FOR CLIMBING HILLS

Hardest Kind of Work Often Is Imposed on Engine and Other Parts of Car.

(By ERWIN GREER, President Greer College of Automotive Engineering, Chicago.)

The modern automobile is made to climb almost anything but trees. But I wish to demonstrate that to climb a steep hill in high gear imposes the hardest kind of work not only on the engine, but also on every other part of the car. The low-gear ratios are provided for hill climbing and they should be used for it.

It may be well here to consider a little more carefully the amount of work performed by an automobile climbing a gradient on, say, a gear ratio of three to one. A ratio of three to one means that one revolution of the rear wheels is produced by three revolutions of the engine shaft. With the lower gear ratio, the intermediate and the low, the number of engine revolutions become still greater as compared to the number of road wheel revolutions.

Propulsion of Car.

It is not so difficult to compute with exactness the distance which a car is propelled by one explosion in the engine cylinder and the power consumed in hill climbing. The circumference of a 32-inch wheel is approximately 100 inches, and in covering one mile the wheel revolves 633 times. With the motor turning over three times as fast as the road wheels, it will require 1,998 revolutions of the gear shaft to propel the car one mile. Thus if such a car should proceed at the rate of 30 miles per hour approximately 950 engine revolutions per minute are required.

This estimate assumes that the car be propelled over level ground. To mount a hill simply means that grade resistance is added to the various frictional and other stresses.

Overcoming Gravity.

An automobile weighing 2,000 pounds climbing a hill 200 feet high (measured vertically) simply performs the task of overcoming the action of gravity of lifting, and the calculation of the power required to do this must involve the factors from which the horsepower unit is derived. To lift 2,000 pounds 200 feet high in one minute is the same thing as lifting 2,000 times 200, or 400,000 pounds one foot high in one minute. Theoretically, then, the lifting of 2,000 pounds 200 feet requires 400,000 divided by 33,000, or 12.12 horsepower, and the losses through friction, air resistance, etc., consume the remainder of the theoretical horsepower output. From all of this it must become apparent that rushing up a steep hill on the high gear must subject any car to enormous stresses, which are likely to affect the life and service of the car to a considerable degree.

CARE FOR STORAGE BATTERY

Should Be Filled With Distilled Water at Regular Intervals—Wipe Exterior Dry.

Certain precautions should be taken in caring for the storage battery, among which are included the filling of the battery with distilled water at regular intervals, of testing the battery to be sure it is at its proper strength and recharging when necessary. If any water is spilled on the exterior of the battery during the filling operation, be sure to wipe it dry, so that corrosion will not injure terminals or wires leading to them. The battery fluid of electrolyte will destroy wood or metal if not cleaned away. Another precaution is to inspect the cable connections, clean them and see that they are tight, to avoid possible electrical trouble at its very source.

Practical Poultry Notes

Hens more than thirty months old seldom pay.

Never ship in cedar boxes, as cedar taints the flesh.

A spring chicken is a young bird weighing over two pounds.

A broiler should not be more than sixteen weeks old, nor weigh more than two pounds.

To establish a regular demand and income, marketing must be done on regular fixed days.

OF INTEREST TO THE FARMER

By B. O. Hagerman

Re-treating Oats For Smut.

There have been several inquiries regarding the use of copper dusts in treating oats for smut.

The experiments at the College have shown that the dust for oats is less efficient than formaldehyde, either wet or dry. Experiments carried on by several county agents in the state have also borne this out.

Some results in other states have proven satisfactory, especially in the hull-less varieties.

At best, we must say that for oats and barley treatment, dusting is yet in the experimental stage. It is my opinion that the job of driving dust into the crevices of the oats is considerable and that the dry formaldehyde treatment is preferable.

Following Are the Directions.

Use formaldehyde at the rate of one pint to 50 bushels of grain. For smaller amounts of grain use correspondingly smaller amounts of formaldehyde. It is unnecessary and unsafe to use more formaldehyde than the amount recommended. Put the right amount of fresh formaldehyde, just as it comes from the druggist, into a pint or quart hand sprayer or atomizer, and spray the grain as it is shoveled over and over. If the sprayer is kept close to the grain and if the treatment is given in a room where there is a good draft, the penetrating odor of the formaldehyde will give no discomfort.

When the right amount of formaldehyde has been applied, shovel the oats into a heap and cover for exactly four hours with a canvas or blanket.

The grain should then be spread out thinly for a thorough airing in a warm place. Rake the grain over during this airing, then plant at once.

Avoid contaminating the grain with dust from old sacks or from the drill. To disinfect the sacks, soak in formaldehyde, two tablespoonfuls to a pair of water. To disinfect the drill, pour this solution through it.

Yours very sincerely,

B. O. HAGERMAN,
County Agricultural Agent.

AUTOMOBILE MUST BE GIVEN PROPER CARE

Small Amount of Labor Will Save Big Depreciation.

If not properly cared for, inactive machinery will depreciate more during a period of inactivity than when in actual use for the same length of time. Discarded farm implements and abandoned factories are common examples of this, literally falling to pieces in a short time. For this reason, automobiles must be properly prepared for storage through the winter. An hour or two of preparation will prevent rapid depreciation and days of unnecessary work when the car is put on the road again in the spring.

The car should be raised three or four inches from the floor and supported by four strong blocks at the outer ends of the axles. These blocks should be large enough to prevent the car from sliding off to the floor if jarrred.

With the wheels raised from the floor, wash the tires carefully with gasoline to remove all dirt and grease spots. Fill all cuts and abrasions with tire filler or cement and then rub the casings with soapstone to aid in preserving the rubber. After the tires have been thoroughly cleaned, deflate them about two-thirds. A normal pressure of 60 pounds should be reduced to 20 pounds which is sufficient to keep the tires in shape and form an air cushion for the heavy casings.

Drain all water from the radiator, drain all gasoline from the tank and drain all oil from the crankcase. This prevents sediment from solidifying in the systems and prevents any possible chemical or corrosive action on metal parts.

Removal of the storage battery is very important. If allowed to remain in the car, deterioration will ruin it in no time.

HANDY DEVICE FOR WASHING

Place Made for Hanging Chamols on Side of Keg or Barrel With Ordinary Wringer.

A mighty useful device for the man who washes his own car may be made by sawing a keg or barrel in half and clamping to the edge an ordinary clothes wringer. The half barrel is filled with water and the chamols cloths used for cleaning the car are soaked therein and afterward passed through the wringer, so that a dry surface may be insured in the final operations of cleaning the body.

Reliable Transport

During almost every winter there comes to Michigan at least one period in which all inter-city transportation fails, except that furnished by the State's 24 steam Railroads. Such a period followed the snowfall of February 19, 1924.

During that period, traffic was suspended on even the most extensively traveled trunk highways. Automobiles, trucks and buses either remained indoors or were deserted and left in the drifts, awaiting aid from the highway authorities.

Yet, throughout this entire period, no community in Michigan suffered for food or fuel. For the railroad trains moved, carrying the freight and passengers entrusted to their care. Railroad men fought day and night against the storms, that this service might be provided.

The railroads consider it a compliment that Michigan always expects good railroad service, even complaining occasionally, it mid-winter trains vary from fair-weather schedules.

The expenses of this service under storm conditions are always excessive—and the state pays no part of the bill as it does for highway snow clearing. Railroad men incur the hardships and railroad capital pays the bill.

Will you recall, next July, that the Railroads hauled in your winter food and fuel despite 6 foot snowdrifts which shut off other means of transportation? Courage and railroad earnings did this—not your tax money.

Into the Attic

Few youngsters today ever saw a horsehair sofa. They wouldn't know what to do with a fire taper, carpet stretcher or coal oil lamp. They couldn't braid rags into a rug, or wind yarn without tangling. But they know the how and why of typewriters, phonographs, telephones, automobiles; what happens when a push of the button gives light, or a kodak's flash fixes their image on paper.

Their education is as modern as the advertisements they see. They have no more use for the lamp and the chimney of yesterday than you for the wick and tallow of the day before.

Advertisements induce such progress. They urge wide use that means improvement. They help you lift the out-of-date into the attic—rid you of the water buckets and soap kettles of slaverydom. They bring late improvements within your reach.

Read the advertisements regularly. Keep alert to the new.

OLD E. J. LAND- MARK DESTROYED

FIRE WIPES OUT THE GENERAL STORE, BUILDING

Erected Forty Years ago By Lang and Draper in Old South Arm Village.

Of special interest to the old timers here is the following article, reprinted from the Charlevoix County Herald, containing an account of the recent disastrous fire that destroyed one of East Jordan's oldest landmarks:

"The Houghton & Kowalske store building and contents located on East Jordan's west side, was completely destroyed by fire which started about 3:00 o'clock Sunday morning, March 23rd.

"The fire had gained considerable headway before water was turned on, and there being delay in turning in an alarm and in getting a water pressure through the fire water main leading under the lake to the west side. A couple of young men returning from a dance discovered the blaze, and, instead of notifying some one nearby who had a telephone, they came across the bridge to turn in the alarm. Fire department responded promptly and, when set to throw water, found that the gate to the water mains on the east side of the lake was closed, necessitating the sending of one of the firemen back across the bridge to open it.

The fire, which originated near the wing containing the meat market, rapidly gained headway, owing to old-time construction of the building and the dryness of the lumber.

"Two families resided on the second floor of the main structure and barely escaped with their lives. Charles Baker and family lost everything in their household effects, including clothing. George Harrie and wife saved only a small part of their household goods.

"Houghton & Kowalske (Judson E. Houghton and son-in-law, Archie Kowalske) were the heavy losers. They purchased the building some two years ago, and made extensive repairs, particularly on the interior.

The installed a complete line of groceries and clothing and a few months ago added a meat market in the front wing.

"Their loss is practically complete. An inventory of stock and fixtures made a month ago showed a valuation of $3,100. On this they carried insurance of $2,500. The building, it is estimated, could not be replaced today for $5,000. On this they carried only a nominal insurance of $1,250 less than the actual cash price paid.

"Forty years ago South Arm was a thriving little village and a firm known as Lang & Draper erected the building, using it for a general store. Later on the South Arm Lumber Co. purchased the store and contents, continuing the business. On completion of the South Arm Lumber Co.'s business, they sold to the East Jordan Lumber Co. Charles A. Brabant conducted a general store in the building for many years. A couple of years ago Houghton & Kowalske purchased it of the East Jordan Lumber Co. With the exception of a very few years, this building has contained a general merchandise store."

SOPHOMORES WON THE SILVER LOVING CUP

22 to 1.

The last of the inter-class games took place Friday night after school, the two remaining teams being the Juniors and Sophomores.

In the three championship games, the Juniors won the first, 8-6; the Sophs won the second, 6-1, thus leaving one more game to be played. The game started out strong, Sharrow making a field goal in a few minutes of play. A foul was called and the Juniors made one shot. The half ended 5-1 in favor of the Sophs. The second half opened with a bang and the Sophs started laying them in at the third quarter. There was no hope of recovery for the upper classmen and the game ended 22-1 in favor of the Sophs.

The victory gives the Sophs the silver loving cup, which is the winner's trophy. The line-up was: Sophs—Sharrow, F.; Dutcher, F.; Davenport, C.; Burns, G.; McMullin, G. Juniors—Saunders, F.; Bourisnu, F.; Ulrich, C.; Bellinger, G.; Orden, G. Substitutions: Ikens for Bellinger, Usher for Sharrow. Doc Todd refereed a splendid game.

ROBERT BURNS GETS BACK FROM JOURNEY

Visited Twelve Different Countries on His Tour.

Robert Burns, who left here on the 24th day of September, 1923, for an extended trip around the world, by way of San Francisco, Calif., is back home again, having visited twelve different countries, including Japan, China, the Philippine Islands, the Malay states, the Dutch East Indies, Ceylon, Arabia, Egypt, Spain, Holland, Germany and England, returning via New York, Buffalo and Detroit to Charlevoix.

The Courier has already published two of Mr. Burns' interesting letters, describing his travels and experiences on this trip and this week's issue contains a third letter. A still further account will appear in next week's paper.

Mr. Burns isn't sure how long he will stay in Charlevoix, but ventures that his next overseas jaunt will be in the direction of Australia and the South Sea Isles.

SOME CHANGES AT THE POST OFFICE

Ray Faulkner's Resignation Makes Them Necessary.

Owing to the resignation of Ray W. Faulkner from the post office force, several changes have been necessitated in the duties of the office personnel.

Mason Rose has taken Mr. Faulkner's place in the carrier force. B. L. Harrington takes Mr. Rose's place as mailing clerk, and Miss Mary Finucan takes the place vacated by Mr. Harrington. Louis O'Neill, formerly a member of the parcel post service, has taken Miss Finucan's place at the stamp window. These shifts involve no corresponding change in salaries.

Mr. Faulkner is leaving to devote his entire time to his lunch room business, which will make greater demands upon his attention and care as the season advances. The changes noted above were effective a week ago last Monday.

Many politicians are warning the people against great impending dangers, which can be averted only by electing the aforesaid speakers to office.

ROAD BUILDING

Surplus War Explosive for Highway Building

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Eighteen million pounds of sodatol, a surplus war explosive, is to be distributed by the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture for road building and land clearing purposes. The new supply of explosive is very similar to dynamite and pure acid, 12,000,000 pounds of the latter having already been distributed to road builders and farmers. The only charge made will be for carting and freight.

Sodatol is a high explosive made by mixing TNT and nitrate of soda. The cartridges are packed in wooden boxes each containing 50 pounds of sodatol. Sodatol is a comparatively safe explosive. While it is more sensitive than TNT or picric acid, there is no danger whatever in handling it provided the ordinary care used in handling dynamite or other explosive is exercised. It will burn without exploding, at least in small quantities, and should not be exposed to fire or flame.

It can be used in any open-air blasting operations and will not cause headaches, stain the hands, or cause other ill effects. A cartridge of sodatol, as it has been prepared for distribution, weighs about seven ounces and is equal in strength for agricultural blasting to the usual cartridge of dynamite which weighs eight ounces. That is, in a 50-pound box of dynamite there are 100 cartridges while in a 50-pound box of sodatol there are about 120 cartridges, each one of which is equal in strength to a cartridge of 40 per cent dynamite.

Sodatol will not freeze and will give good results at all ordinary temperatures. It should be stored in a dry place. The cartridges, as prepared for distribution, can be left in wet holes for several hours without being damaged by the moisture. In such wet holes the opening in the cartridge shell which is made to admit a primer should be covered with soft soap, axle grease, or other water-proofing material, after the primer has been put in place.

Sodatol can be completely exploded by a No. 6 cap of either the electric or the fuse type. The department will furnish No. 6 blasting caps at the rate of approximately one cap for each pound of sodatol so long as the supply lasts. These will be furnished without cost except for the freight charges.

On account of the high freight charges on explosives in small lots, shipments of sodatol cannot be made by the department in less than carload lots. To prevent this material from falling into the hands of speculators, no individual landowner is permitted to secure more than 1,000 pounds. In each state, where there is sufficient demand to warrant it, some state agency—usually the state agricultural college—handles the distribution within the state. The same agency handles the distributing of the blasting caps. Information as to what agency is handling the distribution in any state can be obtained from county agricultural agents or from the state agricultural college. The Department of Agriculture cannot accept individual orders for either sodatol or caps.

Sodatol is made from surplus war materials which have been made available by congress for distribution to the farmer of the country. There is no charge for the explosive itself but the cost of preparation and the freight charges must be paid by the consumer. These costs are necessarily different in various parts of the country, but, in general, they amount to about one-third the cost of an equivalent amount of dynamite. Full information as to the costs in any state may be secured from the state distributing agency. For road building purposes distribution will be made through the various state highway departments.

For stump and rock blasting, sodatol can be used in exactly the same way as dynamite is used. The charges should be placed in the same manner and the same number of cartridges should be used in the charges as in the case of dynamite. For blasting ditches the electric method of firing must be used.

Detailed instructions as to the use of explosives in stump blasting are contained in Department Circular 191 "The Use of Explosives in Blasting Stumps," which can be secured by application to the office of publications, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Dummies Direct Traffic. Because of the shortage of traffic officers, "dummy" policemen are being installed on several main highways in Pittsburgh, Pa. These modern automatic traffic signals in their silent command, flash "Turn right," or "Turn left," or "Drive slow."

Sand-Clay Road Popular. The sand-clay type of road surface developed by the bureau of public roads, and which is composed of a mixture of sand and clay, has become one of the most popular and useful types of road surface for light traffic.

Roads in Pennsylvania. The Pennsylvania department of highways will build 275 miles of durable highways in 1923-24. The state has $15,000,000 available for the new construction.

Sunday morning, April 6.—B. Y. P. U. at 10:30 o'clock, in charge of Group I. Topic, "How Jesus Loved and Served." The topic story is found in John 11:3-5 and Mark 10:42-45. A hint to the understanding of the lesson is that Jesus Christ reverses worldly rules. To be great is to serve and not to be served. The two great ideals of life are love and service. The opportunity to express our love through service, toward those with whom we come in contact, is not lacking in any walk of life. Our success in life is measured by the things we do for others, and not what others do for us. It is not the spectacular or conspicuous deeds that are most accepted in the eyes of God, nor of the greatest means for the helping of others. It is living day by day, with kindly deed and gracious word and unselfish attitude that counts.

Henry Baker, a well known farmer of this region, living north of Burgess, died at his home last Saturday night at nine o'clock, from the effects of a cancer of the bladder, with which he had been bedridden for the past nine weeks.

Mr. Baker, who came to this district from East Jordan many years ago, was sixty-nine years of age. Besides his widow, he is survived by eleven children: Sims, William, Warren, Clyde, Harry and Walter; Juanita, Grace and Eleanor, all of this community, and Mrs. Edward Simpson of Grand Rapids and Mrs. Hazel Hathaway of Petoskey. His two sisters, Mrs. William Gregory and Mrs. Roy Hamlin, live near this city.

The funeral was held this morning at ten o'clock at the William Gregory home in Hayes, Rev. H. R. E. Quant officiating. Interment was made at Brookside.

RECENT FIRES ARE THREE IN NUMBER

None of Them Amounted to Much, Luckily.

Three more fires to report this week. The first one occurred Monday morning at 9:15 at the residence owned by Richard Lewis of East Jordan at No. 215 Antrim street. It is thought the blaze was caused by defective wiring and was serious enough to call for the use of water as well as the chemical. The damage amounted to $300 or $400, mostly in repairs to the roof and the garage, where it started. The house is occupied by William Laird of the coast guard service.

The second fire was at the home of Mrs. William Black at 208 West Upright avenue. This fire caught from a chimney spark at the peak of the roof, and was soon out.

This morning a slight fire started from a spark lodged in the eaves of the O. D. Hammond house on Antrim street. This was quickly put out by the fire chief, no alarm being sounded.

The order issued last March by John Baird, director of conservation, limiting the number of trout that may be taken in this section of the state, have been revoked in another order dated March 18.

The new order rescinds the former regulation because of the fact that the game laws have been changed to limit the trout bag to even fewer than the department's allowance.

The district interested in the Baird order comprises the counties of Emmet, Wexford, Osceola, Missaukee, Gladwin, Ogemaw, Oscoda, Crawford, Otsego, Clare, Newaygo, Arenac, Alcona, Montmorency, Cheboygan, Lake, Mason, Manistee, Grand Traverse, Leelanau, Benzie, Alpena, Charlevoix, Antrim, Kalkaska, Iosco, Presque Isle and Roscommon.

The order decreased the day's limit to 20 instead of the 25 formerly allowed, and to 40 in possession at any time away from a stream.

The new state laws governing fishing in the streams of the territory affected give the angler the privilege of catching 25 trout in any one day, having 25 in possession on the stream, and 25 in possession away from any stream.

The season this year is from May 1 to September 3.

The Senior Girls' Class of the Congregational Sunday school will hold a baked goods and candy sale at Wood Brothers' electric shop, Saturday, April 5th. Adv. 14-11

Lenten Message.
Apart to pray, Matt. xiv. 23.
If I mistake not, there is a danger in our lives today that we may be too little alone and too much with others, until our ideas become confused, and our thoughts not our own. Spend some time alone every day. Be quiet, and in that quietness let God speak.
That is prayer.—H. R. Wier.

Cast not away your confidence, which hath great recompense of reward, Heb. x. 35.

Go on following that vision of holiness and service, of purity and love, of a life like unto the life of the Lord Christ, ministered to from above, and ministering on every hand!
And even as you go you need not thirst, you need not faint, for He who goes with you says to His pilgrim friends, "The water that I give him shall be in him a well of water springing up unto life eternal."— Blessed be God.

"Ever the dream life grows clearer and finer,
Even the star draws us up from the cloud,

Up to the heights of a glory diviner,
Up to the infinite call of our God."
Let this be our quest, and that shall be our conquest.—J. Stuart Holden.

ABSENCE OF CONTEST ALMOST INSURES VICTORY.

City and Township Tickets Present Little Food for Excitement on April 7th.

With the spring election only five days off, the names of the candidates who are to stand or fall by the little slips of paper that we, the "Peepul," drop through the slit in the ballot box on April 7th, loom up with unaccustomed interest. Although we have heretofore known them as "Tom,"
"Bill" and "Jerry," and accepted their presence among us as a matter of course, a new aura has now descended upon them and they have assumed a semi-official character among their neighbors which will not wear off until after election.

MANY COUNTIES FALL INTO LINE

Tourist Bureau Hopes to Reach $100,000 Quota.

"Over the top," drive and "quota," those terms that came to have such great significance during war times, have a new significance in West Michigan today. This time it is a drive to capture friends, not enemies, for the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association in conducting one to obtain a $100,000 fund from the counties in the western section of the state to more completely give national publicity to the vacation possibilities of West Michigan to tourists from everywhere.

H. J. Gray, secretary of the association, reports splendid progress in nearly every county. The residents of this section, well remembering the profitable results of the campaign to attract vacationists last year, have decided that this year is to be made bigger and better than ever, and are saying it by making their county quotas. Most tourists have only been waiting to be told how beautiful West Michigan is to come in large and enthusiastic numbers.

War-time methods have been adapted successfully to peace-time activity, and the "drive" of the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association finds many counties "over the top" with their "quota" for the Association fund.

With this showing, the progressiveness of West Michigan gets another boost. When the few tardy counties remaining make good by "going over the top," the $100,000 advertising fund becomes a reality.

REP. MEGGISON NOT A CANDIDATE

Antrim County Attorney Will Again
Resume Private Law Practice.

State Representative Meggison of Central Lake has definitely decided not to accept nomination for that office again, and Frank Frink of Bellaire has signified his willingness to accept the position if the voters of the Antrim district so elect.

Mr. Frink was in Mancelona Tuesday in the interest of his candidacy, and called on a number of his friends to ascertain their feelings in the matter. He met with an encouraging reception, and was all smiles when he left for his home at the county seat.

ALL COASTGUARD STATIONS OPEN

APRIL FIRST MARKS OPENING OF NAVIGATION.

Early Break-up of Ice in Straits Looked for by Seasoned Lakesmen.

The following item appears in an Upper Peninsula newspaper and will probably interest everybody who is anxious to see summer activities begin again:

"By reason of an unexplained change in departmental policy, the coast guard stations on the Great Lakes do not reopen for the season this year until April 1. When the stations closed for the winter January 1, the men understood that they were to return March 1 as usual. In the interim, however, orders were issued postponing the opening one month, although the proviso was included that should navigation open before April 1, then the stations would open also.

"As a result of confusion attending the mixup in dates, several coast guardsmen reported to their stations
March 1, only to learn that they were a month ahead of time under the new regulations. Not to lose a month's time, most of the men obtained employment elsewhere. It is predicted that many of them, reluctant to give up their new places, will not report April 1, thus effecting a reduction of personnel at several stations."

The local station opened yesterday.

Captain Partridge reports no shortage in his force as a result of the lure of new jobs, but is, as a matter of fact, short one man owing to the transfer of Ernie Kibbe to the Grand Haven station. The captain looks for an early break-up of the ice harrier in the straits and predicts that another good east wind will clear the lake, at this end, for good.

BANK INSURES ITS CUSTOMERS' MONEY

New Super-Safety Checks Baffle the Keenest Crook.

The Charlevoix County Bank has just received a supply of the World's Safest Bank Checks—Super-Safety Insured. These insured checks are the last word in safety and provide the only positive protection against check raisers.

Most people do not realize that last year more than $50,000,000 was lost through check frauds alone—that every 3 1-2 minutes a check fraud loss occurred. Ordinary unsafe bank checks are an irresistible temptation to check raisers.

These Super-Safety Insured
Checks are made on a special safety paper, and should an attempt be made to alter one of these checks, either by knife, erasure or acid, the paper fairly shrieks the crime.

Each check is marked "Insured" and "Protected by the William J.
Burns International Detective Agency, Inc.," which acts as an effective
"Keep off" notice to both amateur and professional check artists.

Besides, each depositor is insured to the amount of $1,000 against the fraudulent alteration of his checks written on these Super-Safety Insured Checks with the Hartford Accident and Indemnity Company. For this added protection and safety the bank makes no charge whatever. It is simply doing its best to keep you from being among those who are losing one million dollars each week through having their checks tampered with by criminals. You may be the next if you use unsafe, uninsured checks.

TOM FINUCAN ENTER- TAINED AT A PARTY

From All Accounts.

Twelve of the young boy friends of Master Thomas Finucan, who has been visiting in the city for the past week, met in his honor at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. William Fi-nucan, on Clinton street, last Thursday afternoon.

Refreshments of a nature highly gratifying to the young gentlemen there assembled were served during the afternoon and, while—from all accounts—we would not have recommended the affair to grown-ups with sensitive nervous systems or invalids in need of quiet and restfulness, everybody had a royal good time at Tom's party.

LAST OF ROBERT BURNS' LETTERS

WORLD TRAVELER CLOSING INTERESTING NARRATIVE

Takes Us This Time From Arabia Back to the Good Old Statue of Liberty.

Last week we traveled with Robert Burns from Cebu in the Philippine Islands to Aden in Arabia. This week he lends us from Aden through Egypt, Spain, Holland, Germany and England and back to New York. Here is his last letter:

"After leaving Aden, Arabia, I went through the Red Sea to Suez, Egypt, at the south end of the Suez canal. Here the ship took on a canal pilot and we went through the Suez canal to Port Said at the north end of the Suez canal, or the Mediterranean end.

The Suez canal has no locks and looks like a long ditch. There is no vegetation on either side, nothing but white sand. It seemed peculiar to stand on the ship's deck and look across the Arabian desert on one side and the Nubian desert on the African side.

The city of Port Said is important because it is at one end of the Suez canal and is also a trading city, as there is a large number of ships passing through the canal every day.

The population of Port Said consists mostly of Arabs and Egyptians, with a few French people. France started the Suez canal and that is the reason there are so many French people in Port Said.

In Port Said large Egyptian oranges sell very cheap—for 25 cents. I bought about a peck of first-class oranges. Dates also are cheap. They sell for about ten cents a pound and figs sell at three pounds for 25 cents.

The climate of Egypt is very dry, but when I was there in February it was not very hot, but in July and August it is very hot.

From Port Said I crossed the Mediterranean to Valencia, Spain. Here things are different than they were in the Orient and in Asia. The people dressed almost like Americans, but they spoke Spanish instead of English.

The buildings of Spain are constructed mostly of cement and brick and generally have a wall surrounding them. The streets of Spain are very narrow, with small, narrow sidewalks along the sides. Generally the sidewalks are about two feet wide, or just room enough for one person, and when two people meet one of them has to step out into the street and let the other pass.

In Spain the people drink lots of wine and when I ordered a dinner

ANSWER THESE IN FIVE MINUTES

The auto questionnaire is the latest type to appear upon the horizon, pushing Edison's famous list back into obscurity. Below is a list of questions submitted by a reader. Can you answer all the questions within five minutes, without using a book of reference? The answer to each question is merely the name of a well known make of automobile, nothing more. Really it's very simple if you just happen to know the answers.

Take out your watch and then cast your eye over the following:

1. Name an automobile with the same name as a president of the United States. Name another one.
2. What car would you name if some one threw something at you?
3. What would you do if angry?
4. How would you cross a stream without a bridge?
5. A famous battle of the Revolution.
6. A famous battle of the Revolution.
7. What car denotes royalty?
8. Which one is used for fuel?
9. Which one for food?
10. Which is represented by two letters of the alphabet?
11. The name of a watch.
12. Which car does a convict think of most?
13. A caretaker.
14. A discoverer of the lightning rod.
15. A river in the Holy Land.
16. Portion of a book.
17. A bright and shining light. Another one.
18. A California city.
19. Loveliest city of the plain.
20. The hardest car on the market.
21. A car always the same color.
22. A river of New York state.

the first thing the waiter brought me was a large bottle of wine. The Spanish people most always take a bottle of wine before they eat a meal. The wine that is used on the table at meal times is slightly intoxicating, but good Malaga or Muscatel wine sells for about 50 cents a quart and it is highly intoxicating.

From Spain I went to Gibraltar, at the entrance of the Mediterranean sea. As this is an English naval base I saw about 35 English battleships and cruisers.

The city of Gibraltar is small and compact and there is an old Spanish wall all around the city. I thought I would go upon the famous rock of Gibraltar, but I was informed that tourists are not allowed on the rock, as the English have a hidden battery some place on it and they are afraid of spies.

From Gibraltar I went to Rotterdam, Holland. Here there was a little snow on the ground and some ice in the harbor. It was not very cold, but after just coming from Egypt and Arabia it seemed very cold to me.

In Rotterdam the people are of light complexion, or more so than in Egypt or Spain. They are also large (Continued on Page 8).

JACOB L. CRANE IS LEAVING US

IN BUSINESS HERE FOR TWENTY-THREE YEARS

Plans to Continue in the Dry Goods Game in the City of Chicago.

Friends of Jacob L. Crane and family will be sorry to learn that they intend to leave Charlevoix before long to make their home in Chicago, Ill., where Mr. Crane will engage in the dry goods business.

Mr. Crane has been in business in this city for the past 23 years, operating a general dry goods business here and Linquist clothing stocks at Cadillac, Petoskey, Central Lake and Charlevoix. He was also president of the Charlevoix State Savings bank for ten years.

He has been active in civic work in this community, having organized the Charlevoix Commercial Association some 15 years ago, acting as its president during nearly the entire period. He was also one of the original incorporators of the Charlevoix Hospital, serving as vice president and director. He was president of the board of health for several terms, and also acted as director of the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association.

Mrs. Crane has been an active worker in club life in Charlevoix city and county. She is one of the charter members of the Shakespeare Study club in which she has been an enthusiastic and beloved member. She is also a member of the Charlevoix Historical society and has been an earnest worker in St. Mary's church and its societies and in Red Cross work. She has also been connected with other charitable organizations. In the social life of Charlevoix she has taken a prominent part and will be greatly missed by her friends and associates.

The Courier, with their many friends, regret their going, but extend to Mr. Crane and family best wishes for their success and happiness in their new home. Their address will be 325 Vine avenue, Highland Park, Illinois.

ENTERTAINED BY HER CLUB MATES

Shakespeare Study Club Says Good-Bye to Mrs. Crane.

On Monday, April 7, the Shakespeare Study Club entertained for Mrs. J. L. Crane at the home of Mrs. W. W. Mitchell.

After delicious refreshments had been enjoyed Mrs. R. B. Armstrong, in a few well chosen words telling of Mrs. Crane's loyalty and activity in the club, presented her with a beautiful set of Japanese book ends as a token of esteem from the club. Mr. and Mrs. Crane are leaving for Chicago this week.

THESE ARE LIVING COMPOSERS

CHAMINADE AND MEISNER THE WEEK'S SUBJECTS

Former Called Greatest Woman Composer—Meisner a Director in Public Schools.

The two Music Memory contest numbers for this week (22 and 23) are the composers Chaminade and Meisner and their principal compositions.

Chaminade.
Cecile Chaminade (Shah-mee-nah), pianist and composer, was born in Paris in 1861. At the age of eight years she tried her hand at composing church music. She gave her first concert when she was 18. Her parents were musicians, but her talent might not have had full chance to develop if the great composer, Bizet, had not recognized and encouraged it.

Mme. Chaminade has made many concert tours in France and other European countries and she visited the United States and Canada in 1908-1909. She has written in many forms but is most successful in the smaller ones, especially songs and piano pieces. She has been called "the greatest woman composer" and is undoubtedly the best known woman writer of music, some of her compositions having had enormous sales.

Her work is individual, the harmonies graceful and the melodies simple, but in spite of its pleasing qualities it cannot be classed as great music.

The French government made her a Chevalier of the Legion D'Honneur—with ribbons and cross—the first time in history that a woman composer had been granted this distinction.

"The Searf Dance" is an attractive piece written for the piano. It is of Oriental character and rhythm and has always been very popular.

Meisner.
Otto Meisner, an American, occupies an important place in the world of musical education. He has held the position of supervisor of music in the Oak Park public schools, of Oak Park, Ill. Besides, he has written a number of charming children's songs under a collection title, "Art Cycles." Meisner devised the small "Meisner" piano, which enables the teacher to direct and conduct at the same time.

"Michigan, My Michigan" is a pleasing and singable melody. It is especially acceptable, inasmuch as we had borrowed the melody, "Maryland, My Maryland," for our words.

Slight Fire.

The B. P. Wilkinson house, now owned by Ben Yettaw, standing at the corner of Garfield avenue and State street, caught fire in the roof from a chimney spark last Thursday afternoon at 2:30 and before it could be extinguished did about $50 damage to the roof. This is the only fire reported by the department since last publication day.

VISIT ENDS IN A BAD "RUCKUS"

WHEN CHOCTAWS AND MOONSHINE CAME TOGETHER.

Participants in Sunday Fracas and Liquor Purveyors Are Now in Jail.

Leo Tookolo went over Sunday afternoon to visit his friend, William Hickman at Bayshore. Both of these gentlemen are Choctaw Indians of Oklahoma origin.

While there, they got hold of some moonshine and shortly proceeded to start a rumpus. Tookolo coming out of the encounter with a badly puffed lip and much ruffled feelings. The police were notified and deputy Charles Marshall went over to Bayshore and gathered in Mr. Tookolo, bringing him to the county jail. A warrant has been issued for Hickman for having liquor in his possession.

Sunday night Hickman's wife, Elsie, left her home at 11 o'clock, clad only in a thin wrap and was gone until Monday night, when she was found in a nearby swamp by a search party of officers who hunted for her all day Monday. She claimed she had been "camping out" in the swamp since her sudden departure from home Sunday evening, fearing arrest. The Indians were induced to disclose where they got their liquor and two search warrants were promptly issued for the parties from whom they obtained it. The latter are now lodged in jail awaiting trial.

The officers claim that in the arrest of these people they have rounded up and finally "scotched" a place that has been under suspicion for a considerable time. The prisoners will be charged with keeping a place for selling liquor.

Elsie Hickman is a well known Indian beauty of Bay Shore. Hickman himself is quite well known locally as a young Choctaw who gained considerable wealth from his tribe's allotment of Oklahoma oil lands. He bought property and a Reo automobile and cut a great swath when he first came here, but is now penniless.

Highway commissioner, E. H. Thomas. Justice of the Peace, Clarence Jones. Member Board of Review (full term), Daniel Buckley; (one year), Carl Goodwin. Constables, Walter Fineout, Elmer Larsen, Barney Howard, Raymond Gokes.

Owners of fish shanties parked at the foot of Clinton, Mason and Antrim streets and on other property owned by the city, are asked to remove them within the next ten days, otherwise they will be burned. The practice of dumping ashes, tin cans, and other rubbish in the waters of Round Lake, Pine Lake or any waters within the city limits is strictly prohibited. Prosecution will result when guilty parties are apprehended. Help, without threat of prosecution, to keep Charlevoix a clean, healthy city.—Sam Hamilton, Harbor-master.—Adv. 15-12

AUTO MONEY IS NOW COMING IN Return Show Increase Over Those of First Quarter Last Year.

Auto license fees in Michigan increased $1,564,630.83 for the first three months of 1924, as compared with a corresponding period in 1923, according to a statement by the state department.

For the first three months of this year a total of $6,680,630.83 was collected in Michigan's 83 counties, compared with $5,116,000 for the first quarter of 1923.

Of the total amount collected, $3,340,314.26 will be apportioned back to the respective counties for use in their road building program. Wayne county will receive the largest, about $2,444,893.36 having been collected, while $1,222,446.68 will be apportioned back to the county.

Other counties with the amount paid in by the collectors and the amount apportioned back, follows:

Cheboygan, $1,372.80; $686.40. Emmet, $3,909.30; $1,954.65. Charlevoix, $3,305.55; $1,652.77. Wexford, $7,191.30; $3,595.65. Mecosta, $18,504; $9,252.

FIERCE SCRAP IN THE JORDAN

DICKEN AND PORTER LOCK HORNS IN CONTEST.

Latter Comes Off Victorious With 178 Votes Majority—Women Voters Out in Force.

One of the warmest elections they have had in East Jordan in years came off Monday.

The chief contest was between Dr. Hugh W. Dicken, the present mayor, who was a candidate for re-election, and Howard Porter. The indications have been pointing for some time to a stormy contest, to put it mildly.

The total vote was upwards of 650, Porter winning by a majority of 178 votes, as the returns are reported. Several days before the election and particularly on Saturday, the city was plastered with handbills, suggestive of the points of difference between the candidates and the voters were regaled with a large number of figures as to expenditures, appropriations and one thing and another.

Howard Porter is a son of W. P. Porter and identified with his father's lumbering interests, being in charge of production. Dicken is a practicing physician.

The election was marked by a large number of women voters. As a neighborly remark in passing, the Courier trusts that the contest at East Jordan will not develop any permanent sore spots, but will be allowed to pass as one of the incidents of politics in our form of government. We must have issues between men and principals in order to serve the people's will. The loser and his friends should not allow themselves to take their defeat too greatly to heart; neither should the winner fail to remember that he may be in for the same treatment at a later date, should he deserve it or not—just as the people happen to feel at the time. This latter is a little bit of philosophy that we have picked up during our observations.

CHARLEVOIXIANS VS. CHEBOYGAN

This Will Be Third Debate in State Elimination Contest.

On Friday evening, April 11, Charlevoix debaters will again meet Cheboygan. We won a former debate from this team, but the contest was close, and we understand that Cheboygan has added much to the strength of their team. This is the third debate in the state elimination contest. The judges chosen for the occasion are Mrs. Steck, Commissioner Washburn and Attorney Halstead.

The Cheboygan team is made up of Cornelius Fisher, Susan Shephard and Eleanor Keldson. Our school is represented by Vera Belding, Margery Brown and Albert Widdifield.

AGAINST PLAN TO KILL CROWS

GOVERNOR AND NOTED NATURALIST TAKE THEIR PART

Powder Manufacturers' Instigation of Wholesale Killing "Bees" Severely Condemned.

A scheme alleged to have originated with the gunpowder manufacturing interests has aroused the ire of no less a personage than Governor Perceval P. Baxter of Maine, who comes forward as a champion of the lowly and much abused and exterminated crow, latterly decided by scientists to be the friend and not the enemy of the farmer.

Playing upon the average American's fondness for the use of firearms, the Du Pont Powder Co., of Wilmington, Delaware, is sponsoring a nation wide crow shooting contest, with merchandise prizes amounting to $2,500 as a reward for the individual or shooting club which at the end of the three months' season has brought down the greatest number of crows or other birds or animals termed "vermin" in the prospectus of the competition. Already, it is stated, 87,000 people, including men, women and children, have filed their entries in the contest and are soon to begin the bird destruction. In fact, in Syracuse, N. Y., the shooting contest has started and the Onondaga Sportsmen's association has organized shooting competitions.

According to Governor Baxter and other staunch friends of the crow, this move on the part of the powder companies is actuated by the slackening in their business due to the cessation of hostilities on a large scale throughout the world. Finding no market for their large stocks of explosives, they are endeavoring to create a market for a considerable part of it by getting the people all worked up over crow shooting. The defenders of the crow claim that in destroying insect pests that would otherwise multiply and destroy the farmers' crops, the homely and raucous voiced bird is a real friend to the farmer and should be protected, and not destroyed. They allege that the Du Pont interests in their arrangement of the crow and his depredations have gleaned their material from a species of the crow family that is far more destructive to bird life than the common variety. Local conditions peculiar to the islands off the coast of Virginia, where the species studied are native, make the crow's vandalism there greater than is commonly the case.

Then again, say the opposers of the proposed contest, if people are permitted to shoot crows and other supposedly pestiferous birds, many valuable species of song and insectivorous birds will be slaughtered by mistake and through the sheer wanton lust to kill something.

TOO LATE FOR LAST COURIER

NUMBERS TWENTY AND TWENTY-ONE OF M. M. C.

Mendelssohn and Beethoven Are the Composers Whose Lives and Works Are Presented.

Numbers 20 and 21 of the Music Memory contest list were omitted from last week's paper through delay in their receipt at this office, and we are accordingly running them in this week's issue, together with the numbers intended for the current week.

Mendelssohn.

Felix Mendelssohn was born at Hamburg in 1809 and died at Leipzig in 1847. Thirty-eight years is not a long life but it is long enough to do great things. Mendelssohn's career was a triumphal march. All agree that he was the most precocious musical genius that ever lived, excepting Mozart. This is, however, the critic's personal affair.

As a boy, he composed a cantata, which was given in the parlors of his parents' home, with an orchestra secured for the occasion. Felix stood on a chair and led his band of musicians with that solemn dignity which was his through life.

In Mendelssohn's music, we get no sense of Titanic power such as we feel when Wagner is played; no world problems vex us. But, in it all you feel the deep, measured pulse of a religious conviction that never halts nor doubts.

In the "St. Paul," as in his other oratorios, are such arias for the contralto as "But the Lord is Mindful of His Own;" for the bass, "God Have Mercy Upon Us," and for the tenor, "Be Thou Faithful Unto Death." These reveal pure and exalted melody of highest type.

In life Mendelssohn received every token of approbation that men can pay to other men. His popularity was greater than that of any other man of his time. His path was literally strewn with roses.

The Nocturne from "Midsummer Night's Dream" is the love song which occurs in the second part of his work, written to accompany Shakespeare's play by that name. Coming as it does after the fairy music, which is light and tripping, one is inspired by the beauty and majesty of this famous melody—it has been set to words, a portion of which is called "Hymn to the Stars."

Beethoven.

Ludwig von Beethoven (1770-1827) was one of the greatest musical composers.

Beethoven was born in Bonn, Germany, of Dutch extraction and commenced his education as a musician at the age of five, training at length under the tuition of most illustrious predecessors—Bach and Handel—and revealing most wonderful musical talent.

Later, he left Bonn and settled in Vienna, where he attracted the attention of Mozart.

Beethoven was the composer of symphonies and sonatas that are known all over the world. At the age of 40 he became totally deaf, and though this lasted all his life, he continued to compose to the admiration of thousands.

The symphony attained its highest perfection thru Beethoven, though he did not appear as an innovator or revolutionist until he wrote his third symphony. From the fifth to the ninth we find a different melodic structure. The ninth symphony, which the first players called impossible, is considered the greatest of all instrumental music.

Beethoven had the world of sounds under his control—the grand finale with its extensive forms and colossal intensity is found first of all in Beethoven. He stamped his own individuality upon his music.

The Andante movement from the Fifth Symphony begins with a quiet legato melody and this first theme is carried through the whole movement and elaborated upon, first by one instrument and then by another. This number is one of great power and beauty and is interpreted by a great orchestra.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

The Message of The Cross.

All the great events of the Gospel yield in importance to the Cross. The Incarnation is preparatory to the Cross. The Transfiguration foreshadowed the Cross. The Resurrection was the complement of the Cross. Pentecost was the Fruit of the Cross. Bethlehem and Nazareth, Galilee and Jerusalem, Tabor and Olivet, gleam in the light of the Cross. All the great Doctrines of Grace revolve around the Cross. Our new life, with its peace that passeth understanding and its joy unspeakable, is born at the Cross. All the departments of human life are dominated by the Cross. The hitters of life are sweetened by the Cross. The shadows of death are dispelled by the Cross. The darkness of Eternity is irradiated by the Cross. The Heaven of the Redeemed is built upon the Cross. Hallelujah for the Cross.

6:30 p. m., (Note the change in time), Epworth League—Orson Everts is the capable leader. The counts for attendance, speaking on the subject and church going are showing good results. Boys as well as girls enter into the discussion with a vim.

7:30 Church time—Note change in time. The pastor's theme will be evangelistic. Make this the time when you will decide for Christ.

This Thursday prayer meeting in the church, 7:30 p. m. Read John 11. Choir rehearsal following the prayer service. Prayer meeting at Mr. and Mrs. Heise's, 813 State street, Friday night.

EXCEPTIONAL RIDING COMFORT

Owners continue to comment on the marked riding comfort of Dodge Brothers Motor Car.

Increased chassis length, low-swung body and generous seat depth have much to do with this.

COOLIDGE LEADS IN THE COUNTY

JOHNSON RUNS A POOR SECOND TO THE "SPHINX."

Democrats Seem to Favor Ford—Voters Evidently Found Little to Interest Them.

The election last Monday was marked by lethargy, except in spots that, while far from commendable from the standpoint of good citizenship, was to be expected under the circumstances. The ticket for Charlevoix and adjacent townships presented no contests to arouse the zeal of the voter and he was in most cases conspicuous by his absence from the polls. In one or two cases, as for instance in East Jordan, popular local issues were at stake and the excitement rose to a high pitch.

For president the vote was as follows: City of Charlevoix, 1st ward, Coolidge 24; Johnson 0; Simpson 2. 2nd ward; Coolidge 61; Johnson 13; Simpson 0. 3rd ward; Coolidge 45; Johnson 10; Simpson 0. Boyne City gave Coolidge a total of 391 votes; Johnson 81 and Simpson 11. East Jordan; Coolidge 429; Johnson 86; Simpson 13. Of the Democratic candidates Ford didn't get a look-in in Charlevoix, his vote being a goose egg, while Ferris polled a meagre five votes. Boyne City gave Ford a total of 67 and Ferris 42, while East Jordan favored Henry with 46 and the "good gray governor" with 29.

The vote on national committee-men stands incomplete as far as our information regarding the Democratic candidates is concerned. The Republicans came off as follows: Charlevoix; Davidson 84; Martin 32; Rasch 12. Boyne City; Davidson 11; Martin 7; Rasch 13. East Jordan; Davidson 210; Martin 152; Rasch 72.

As far as can be ascertained at this time (as the ballots will not be canvassed until Friday), the total county vote—cities and townships combined—was as follows: Republicans; President; Coolidge 1491; Johnson 289; Simpson 61. National committee-men; Davidson 737; Martin 329; Rasch 147. Democrats; Presi-

BEAVER ESCAPES FROM DETROIT PEN

Former Charlevoix Traffic Cop Proves a Bad Actor.

Wallace Beaver, sentenced to the house of correction at Detroit from Grand Rapids for extortion, escaped April 1 from that institution.

Beaver formerly lived at Mancelona and was for a time a state liquor officer. He was found guilty the last week in March at Grand Rapids by a district court jury before which he was tried on a charge of extorting $135 from a Cadillac soft drink parlor proprietor, as the price of silence regarding liquor purchased from the latter. When the verdict was given Beaver fell to the floor in a faint.

Beaver was arrested near Cadillac and was charged jointly with Ernest Dean of extorting $135 from James Mason, formerly the proprietor of a pool room in Cadillac.

Mason admitted selling liquor to Dean, who was acting as a stool pigeon for Beaver. Beaver handcuffed Dean and brought him into the pool room and Mason under arrest unless he was paid $200. Mason testified that he offered Beaver $135, which was accepted.

Beaver testified that the entire charge was a frame-up to prevent further successful activities on his part in gaining evidence against bootleggers. However, he failed to convince the jury of his innocence, for they found him guilty as charged. Beaver was sent to the Detroit house of correction for one year.

Beaver is the man who acted as special traffic cop in this county some three years ago. His record here was none too good and he held his job but a short time. From all reports he was a bad actor and the county was lucky to escape complications while he was in their employ.

OLD BEAVER ISLAND RESIDENT IS DEAD

Oliver Oscar Scripture Passes Away
at Age of 75.

The body of an aged Beaver Island resident was brought to this city last night for preparation for its last and journey to Prescott, Michigan.

Oliver Oscar Scripture was born in Greenbush, Me., January 23, 1849, and died of heart trouble at his home on Beaver Island April 7th last. He formerly followed the calling of a marine engineer, but of late years had run a small fruit farm. Mr. Scripture was a member of the Masonic lodge. His widow survives him.

Senior Class Benefit.

Coming to the Palace Theatre next Tuesday, April 15th, Reginald Barker's special production, "Hearts Aflame." This picture will be shown for the benefit of the Senior class of the high school. This statement to discriminate photoplay followers should be sufficient in itself to make them set aside a date to see this photoplay; for Reginald Barker has proved that his skill as a director of spectacular, massive productions is equalled by few in the photoplay world. But even he has surpassed himself; and in this amazing motion picture he has produced a forest fire that stuns with its reality, and thrills with its astounding appeal. It is just one element of greatness in a picture that is a masterpiece. See that you see it.

GOOD HIGHWAYS

Illinois Highways Will Have Roadside Planting

Native trees and shrubs are to be planted along the entire length of the Fox River trail in Kane County, Ill., making the road through the beautiful Fox River valley of even greater interest to the tourist.

With $17,000 already available the work of preparing the ground was carried on during the summer, and the actual planting was done this fall. O. C. Shaonds of Chicago, leading exponent of the naturalistic style of planting, has charge of the work.

Under the direction of Superintendent of Schools Osher Schaffer of Dundee, who is a leader in Kane county educational circles, this plan for beautifying this famous concrete highway has been financed, and membership in the Children's Highway association, are being sold to school children in each town along the trail, at 50 cents each, as a fund to take care of the trees, shrubs and flowers after they have been planted.—Children of Aurora, Elgin, Dundee, Geneva, Batavia, St. Charles and smaller towns along the highway are rapidly swelling the membership, and Mr. Schaffer is hopeful of raising $25,000 for the project, which will insure the proper maintenance of the planting for several seasons.

Highway in Kane County, Devoid of Trees or Shrubs.

Too frequently it is the case that enthusiasm dures up for roadside planting, a few trees are stuck in the ground with bare roots and trumpet and high-sounding words of dedication, and then the trees are left to die. It is especially gratifying to the people of the Fox River valley, and Kane county in particular, that provision is being made to preserve this planting once made.

Although some systematic planting of road-sides has been undertaken by states and counties, it is believed this is the first time a complete planting has been prepared for a cross-county highway 35 miles in length, and a definite scheme worked out for financing and maintaining the planting.

Practical Suggestions on Keeping Roads Good

Maintenance of improved roads has often been neglected. As a result, costly improvements have gone to ruin.

Insufficient funds for maintenance have been largely to blame.

No financial oversight can be more disastrous than failure to provide for our improved highways.

The character and volume of traffic determine the type of road to build, provided adequate maintenance is assured.

Economy, therefore, can be had only when proper maintenance is guaranteed.

No part of highway work requires more skillful supervision than maintenance.

A slipshod method of maintenance will ruin the best of roads.

Nowhere is there a greater field for application of sound business principles than highway maintenance.

Constant attention to detail, combined with close study, produces efficiency.

Efficient maintenance—the secret of public highway success.

Highway of Remembrance for Warren G. Harding

A road of remembrance for Warren G. Harding, beautified by trees planted by 6,000 children, is to be built in Allen county, Ohio.

The Harding highway from Lima will be planted for 26 miles, Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the American Tree association, announced, and later it is planned to extend the road from Marion to Canton, home of William McKinley.

Mrs. Harding has been invited to plant the first tree.

Road Improvement in Far East.

As in America, the automobile has forced road building in the Far East. During the last five years more new roads have been built in China than in any previous five decades.

America Helps.

American road machinery is constructing an automobile road 310 miles long in Argentina.

AT THE MOVIES.

TWO CLEAR ANGLES TO SPECIAL FILM

Big Forest Fire Is More Important, However.

"The Ninety and Nine," Vitagraph's special production based on the famous melodrama by Ramsay Morris, which will be shown at the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday, has two separate and distinct angles, the Biblical story of the lost sheep and the thrilling dash of the rescue train through the burning forest.

Mr. Morris wrote his melodrama on the Biblical story of the lost sheep and "The Ninety and Nine." The theme of the play is the regeneration of a man who has gone astray—the lost sheep—but when the melodrama was produced on the stage the "prop" locomotive across the stage, and quite naturally all the advertising matter in relation to the melodrama carried a picture of the rushing locomotive.

Betty Compson Coming.

Betty Compson and Tom Moore, featured players in "Over the Border," a Paramount picture dealing with bootleg operations along the Canadian border, which comes to the Palace Theatre next Wednesday, are finely cast in that strong production.

The little fellow had climbed up onto a chair and from there to the dresser where the tablets, which had been prescribed for Mr. Baker in his last illness, were kept, as it was thought, out of the child's reach.

The funeral was held at the home of William Gregory at ten o'clock Tuesday morning, Rev. Weaver of Petoskey officiating, and his remains were interred in the cemetery at Brookside.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By Our Regular Correspondent.

President Coolidge's demand for the resignation of Attorney General Daugherty, followed of course, by the latter's resignation, is commanding the widespread approval it deserves. Mr. Coolidge gave Mr. Daugherty every opportunity to resign voluntarily for the good of the party and his own good, as well as for that of the people, so that the Executive cannot be accused of snap judgment. On the other hand, there has come gradually to the attention of the President—what under other circumstances he would have been the last to learn—the appalling incompetence of Mr. Daugherty's administration of the government's great legal department, an incompetence which has characterized it ever since Mr. Daugherty became Attorney General. Since the Senate investigation started, conditions have become peculiarly embarrassing. The Senate committee recently demanded it be permitted to send an investigator into the Department to search for evidence. Mr. Daugherty refused, on the ground that it would be against the public interests. The refusal if made by any other attorney general would doubtless have been proper, but when made by Mr. Daugherty it had a sinister appearance. It is a curious instance of one's deeds coming home to roost that most of the men who are aiding Senator Wheeler in his fight on Daugherty are former agents of the Department of Justice whom Daugherty refused to dismiss even when advised of their untrustworthy character.

The grave illness of Senator La Follette, who at 69 is stricken with pneumonia, after being ill for some time with grip, is regarded as highly inimical to the hopes of those who desire a third party. Senator Hiram Johnson's failure to "sweep South Dakota"—he carried the primaries by a narrow margin—has served to convince political observers here that Mr. Coolidge's nomination is a certainty. The hopes of the third parties have been increasing with the increase of that certainty. But the physical breakdown of La Follette has served to dash their hopes. The story of La Follette's mental breakdown in 1912 is being recalled and few there are, even among his staunchest supporters, who believe that even if he recovers his health, that recovery will be sufficiently rapid to permit of his active participation in the forthcoming campaign. Talk of "Coolidge luck" is being revived and may prove a potent aid to the man from Massachusetts—not alone in the convention, but in the elections as well.

"What kind of bootleg whiskey did Jess Smith carry to Roxie Stinson's house on those week end visits to his ex-wife?" This is the question everyone is now asking as Senator Wheeler and his colleagues continue to broadcast "Roxie's bedtime stories." Her latest is that five men made a profit of $33,000,000 in Sinclair Oil. She says Jess Smith told her so. But Senator Wheeler and his colleagues would not permit Mr. Daugherty's attorneys to ask her who the five men were. Even they saw how ridiculous was the story, inasmuch as all the men who ever made money out of Sinclair Oil in its entire existence could not have made anything like that sum. At best, the bootleg must be responsible for three of the others. Close upon Roxie's fantastic tale came Al Jennings, former outlaw, who testified that Jake Hamon told him he paid $1,000,000 to secure Mr. Harding's nomination; that Mr. Daugherty got $250,000, Senator Penrose a like sum, Will Hays, $25,000, etc. Of course it is entirely possible Jake Hamon told that to Al—Jake is dead and can't deny it—but if he did, it merely shows how easy Jake thought it was to string a reformed bandit. Those who were at the Chicago convention—and your correspondent was one of them—know the story is merely a figment of the imagination, or a poor sort of joke designed to fool the man to whom it was told. Wheeler is having bad luck with his investigation. The gossip he is eliciting is so preposterous that he is making the investigation more and more ridiculous, as of course it was bound to be with its complete political domination and purpose.

Rep. Charles E. Winter of Wyoming calls my attention to the fact that were the courts to cancel the Sinclair Oil lease the government would be compelled to return the great number of quit-claim deeds to land within the Teapot Dome reservation, with the result that a very considerable area would pass into private ownership, including four quarter sections (640 acres) in the very center of the reserve, from which the navy oil could be easily pumped from practically the entire field. Judge Winter also says that Sinclair's construction of the pipe line from Teapot Dome has added 41 cents a barrel to the price the government gets for its royalty oil from the Salt Creek field, which means $3,750,000 a year. Of this 52½ per cent goes to the general Reclamation Fund; 37 1-2 per cent to Wyoming and 10 per cent to the government, for cost of administration.

NATURE'S WARNING.

Charlevoix People Must Recognize and Heed it.

Kidney ills come mysteriously. But nature generally warns you. Notice the kidney secretions. See if the color is unhealthy. If there are settlements and sediment. Passages frequent, scanty, painful. It's time to fear serious kidney trouble. It's time to use Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have done great work in Charlevoix. Ask your neighbor. Hubert Ackert, mason, 107 West Garfield Avenue, Charlevoix, says: "There was a constant ache in the small of my back and nights I couldn't get any sleep. My kidneys were sluggish in action and the secretions were scanty and burned in passage. I bought Doan's Kidney Pills at Metcalf's Drug Store, and they fixed me up in fine shape. I haven't had any trouble since Doan's cured me." Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Ackert had. Mrs. Jane Campbell, a resident of Ellsworth for the past 30 years, died on Thursday at the Petoskey hospital and the remains were taken to the southern part of the state for burial. A sister, Mrs. Gray of Saginaw, was with her at the time of her death.

George Liberty received word last week of the death of his sister, Mrs. Arthur Palmer, which occurred at her home in Chicago on Saturday. Mrs. Palmer's death has been expected for some time as she has been steadily failing in health. The Palmers were former residents here and have spent a part of each summer here since moving to Chicago.

Ellsworth High basketball team won from Junior High of Charlevoix on the local floor Wednesday evening of last week in one of the scrappiest and best played games of the year, the score being 8-4. The visitors made the mistake of underestimating the local outfit, and before they realized their error, the locals were leading, 6-0. This was the result at the end of the first quarter and was held the same until the last period, in which Ellsworth hung up one field basket while the visitors eaged two. The outstanding feature of the game was the team work of T. Yellow and H. Peebles for the local boys. The Charlevoix boys made a decided hit by their clean, sportsmanlike play and by their gentlemanly conduct while in town.

RESULTS OF LAST MONDAY'S ELECTION

Township Ticket as Nominated is Elected—Provision for Highways.

The Monday election was, as predicted, a lame affair, less than one-third the voting strength of the township being at the polls. The regular ticket as nominated at the caucus was, of course, elected, and on the presidential ticket Coolidge received 85 votes, Johnson 19 and Ford 3. Davidson led for the national committee with 40, Martin was next with 22, and Rosh trailed with 15.

One-half of one per cent was voted for highway improvement and the usual one-fourth was deemed necessary to take care of the repair work.

Banks township will be fortified for the coming year with the following officers: Wiltse, supervisor; T. E. Ross, clerk; Hans DeYoung, treasurer; Andrew Essenburg, highway commissioner; W. P. Smith, member board of review; John Brown, justice and J. Smith, highway overseer, while Henry Klooster, A. Ely, Bell Patterson and John Van Stralbon were elected constables.

PLAY FAREWELL GAME NEXT FRIDAY NIGHT

Central Lake, Old Opponents, to Contest Honors.

Friday night of this week will see the final games of the basketball season, the high school boys and the Independents clashing with the Central Lake teams on the local floor. Central Lake has been obliged by impassable roads to postpone these games on two occasions, but with cars now running between the two towns the games will surely be played this week as scheduled.

Come out and boost! Remember this is the last opportunity to see games until next year, and no doubt the last chance to see some of the local players in action.

A charge of 15c and 25c admission will be made and the first game will start promptly at 8:00 o'clock. Don't miss it.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to express our sincere thanks to the relatives, neighbors and friends for their kindness and sympathy shown during the illness and death of our beloved mother; also for the floral tributes. We thank the L. A. S. for the beautiful flowers sent during her illness, and we also thank the singers and hearers—Rev. Lawrence and Rev. Schroder for their comforting words.—Mrs. James Vanden Berg, Mrs. Joseph Hoffman, August, Henry and Margaret Vander Ark. Adv. 15-11 in stature and have a peculiar fashion of smoking long pipes that are sometimes three or four feet long.

The Hollanders do not all wear wooden shoes, as is generally thought in America. Only in the agricultural and fishing districts do wooden shoes predominate. In Rotterdam I remember of seeing only a few people wearing wooden shoes. Most every one wears shoes like we Americans.

The people are very slow. It is nothing uncommon to see a person walking down the street, looking around and moving along as if he were in a funeral procession. The Holland people are very polite and they always stop and talk together as if they were never in a hurry.

From Rotterdam, Holland, I went to Hamburg, Germany. Here things were different, although the people looked very much like the Hollanders and spoke almost the same language, as German and Dutch are very similar.

Conditions in Germany are very bad. There is little or no manufacturing, and so there is no work for the people. This makes it very hard, as people generally have to have something to eat and the government is bankrupt, so the people can get no help there.

The German money has changed. They have now a new stable mark, called the gold mark, and its value is about 25 cents in American money. A workman in Germany receives about three marks a day and he has to pay American prices for food and clothing. A meal in a restaurant never costs less than one mark and generally it costs two marks and clothing is the same price as in America, so the poor German people cannot make a living by working at common labor.

After the world war, Germany was restricted as to the number of soldiers she could have in her standing army, so the government took all the soldiers and changed their names from soldiers to police so that now in Germany there are a large number of police soldiers. These police stand on corners and wander around the city and, in general, they are a disadvantage.

Due to strikes, riots and revolutions, it is impossible to go from one part of the city of Hamburg to another without a passport. It is just as though there were a policeman standing on the bridge at Charlevoix and no one could cross the bridge without a passport. This makes it inconvenient for a traveler.

From Hamburg, Germany, I went to Southampton, England. Here, it was more like America, as the people spoke English and I could understand what they were saying.

The most beautiful thing I saw in all the world was the Statue of Liberty in the harbor of New York, as it stands for the freedom of the richest, the most respected and the best nation in all the world.

Robert Burns.

BAPTIST CHURCH

Sunday, April 13, 10:30 a. m.—B. Y. P. U. in charge of Group II. Topic, "My Decisions and What They Have Meant to Me." The scripture lesson is found in Luke 15:18; 10:42.

The great decision made by the Prodigal Son as recorded in Luke 15:18 is: "I will arise and go to my Father and say unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven and before thee." Worthy decisions require effort—they are useless when not backed by action. There are all kinds of decisions; some of hate, others of anger, some of selfishness. The big decision to make first of all is to turn the face Godward. "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God." This first decision determines the nature of all other decisions. It affects more than just today; it has a future value. Choose the road you intend to travel. "Make it the Christian way."

11:45—Sunday school. General lesson theme, "Elijah and the Struggle with Baal." Text, Matt. 6:24.

LIVE STOCK NEWS

Big Mistakes Commonly Made in Feeding Stock

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Following a questionnaire study of live stock feeding problems and how farmers are meeting them, made by the United States Department of Agriculture during the summer, the department is receiving numerous comments on the subject. Among those recently made was one containing the experiences of a Kansas farmer who considered abrupt changes in feeding, poor combinations of feed, and insufficient water to be the principal mistakes commonly made in feeding. Seeing live stock sold on the open market was to this farmer a means of concluding also that live stock of improved breeding made greater gains and produced more than common stock fed in the same way. In the experience of this farmer the improved live stock was 25 per cent more profitable from a feeding standpoint.

An eastern dairyman relates how he improved his dairy feeding methods by the better feeding of dry cows and by supplying silage during summer months. Feeding according to production and condition has likewise been beneficial. This farmer, in discussing the relation of breeding to feeding, stated that his present herd bull and the application of line breeding have resulted in heifers about 20 per cent better than their dams.

Many other comments of which the foregoing is typical, direct attention to means of getting better results from feeds. A compilation of the material obtained by the department has been prepared and may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Animal Industry, United States Department of Agriculture.

Two Farm Boys Build Up Prize Winning Pig Herd

Two farm boys of Muscogee county, Ga., have succeeded so well in their pig club work that they have been able to purchase a moderate-priced automobile and by this means attend high school, which is a considerable distance from their home.

These young stockmen, Webster and Dana Cartledge, have been practicing the feeding and care of pigs under the direction of their county agricultural agent since 1919, when they secured a pure bred sire in partnership. This they grew into a prize-winning animal. In 1920, each bought a gilt, giving his personal note for the purchase price, and later they together invested in a young boar they replaced their old one. From these purchases they have built up an excellent herd. They have shown their sows and litters at a number of community, county, and district fairs, and have sold many of the young pigs.

In 1922, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture, in addition to winning a scholarship to the Junior short course at the State Agricultural college, they received over $250 cash returns from their stock and had on hand more than $500 worth of hogs.

Ear Corn Hog Fattening Device Proves Success

An ingenious method by which ear corn can be fed to hogs by means of a self-feeder has been tried out with success on one of our western farms and should prove valuable to some of our feeders.

The self-feeder consists of a long triangular-shaped hopper, suspended with the apex down. In this is an opening the entire length below which is a wooden strip some two by three inches according to the size of ears. The hopper is suspended so that it swings on an axis that allows it to be rocked to and fro as the hogs root for the corn they see protruding from the aperture. This rocking motion feeds the corn downward, dropping it on the ground or the feeding platform below. As many sections can be installed as desired, the suggested length for each being eight feet, taking care of about fourteen medium-sized hogs.—F. L. Cooper, Agricultural Engineer, Colorado Agricultural College.

Equipment on Beef Farm Need Not Be Expensive

The equipment on a beef farm need not be nearly so expensive or elaborate as on a dairy farm. Where pure breeds are sold it is of course advisable to have the barns and sheds as neat as possible so as to make a good impression upon prospective buyers. Equipment for feeding steers need not represent a whole lot of money, but the bunks, sheds, and water supply should be so arranged that feeding may be performed with as little labor as possible.

Self-Feeders Are Best for Raising Fall Pigs

Fall pigs are best raised with self-feeders. Provide shelled corn, tankage and ground oats, if desired, in separate compartments of a self-feeder and let the pigs help themselves. Do not fail to provide tankage even if buttermilk or skim milk is available for feeding. If either one of the latter is provided the pigs will eat less tankage. They will not eat more tankage than they need, provided they can get all the corn they want.

defender of the crow, said in an address to the Boston Teachers club in Boston, Mass., last month: "Any extensive interference with the balance of natural life as nature has adjusted it is likely to have serious consequences. Investigation has proved that where one species of wild life, particularly a bird like the crow which destroys insects, is driven away or killed in large numbers, the insects on which it lives are likely to become pests." The Audubon societies of the nation should make organized protest against the proposed slaughter, Mr. Schmoer thinks.

In commenting on the matter, we would suggest that the bird hunters take their guns, move in a body on Washington and put the fear of God into some of our officials in high places who are playing ducks and drakes with the people's interests. They would probably find many "birds" there of the blackest hue whose actions even the much despised crow would scorn to emulate. This plan, we believe, is much more timely and to the point than the project of the powder interests.

WAREHOUSEMEN TO MEET HERE

CONVENE AT THE INN THREE HUNDRED STRONG

Annual Affair. Formerly Held on Mackinac Island, Now Falls to Our Lot.

Charlevoix is to be favored this summer with the presence of the biggest and best convention that has ever met here.

Secretary Charles H. Emrey of the Charlevoix Association of Commerce is in receipt of a letter from F. L. Bateman, president of the National Furniture Warehousemen's Association, whose headquarters are at Chicago, accepting the commercial association's invitation to hold their annual meeting at Charlevoix and outlining the program of the visit.

The convention will be held at the Charlevoix Inn, July 7th to 10th, inclusive, and arrangements have already been made by the Warehousemen's officials with Mr. A. I. Creamer, who will manage the Inn this season, looking to this end.

The official call for the meeting, which will be issued on or about the 15th of May, will be sent out to 300 to 350 members of the association who will attend as delegates from all parts of the United States and Canada, most of whom are owners and proprietors in their respective cities.

The business sessions will last approximately from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. each day. It may be possible for the delegates to reach Charlevoix on the 5th, in which event Sunday, the 6th of July, will be devoted to a trip to Beaver Island, or some other outing to be decided upon later. A late afternoon drive around Pine Lake or a sail over its waters by moonlight may be features of the visit to Charlevoix and it is probable that some of the delegates will want to do a little fishing. The convention is a strictly stag affair and only the delegates themselves will be present.

One of the evenings of their stay will be devoted to the annual banquet, which is a part of the regular program. This will probably be held on Wednesday, July 9th. It has always been the custom of the convention delegates in past years to stage some sort of an amateur theatrical affair, with talent recruited from among themselves, but this year will probably vary this procedure with some other form of entertainment. The mayor and the president and secretary of the commercial association are invited to attend sessions of the convention.

The Warehousemen have been in the practice of holding their conventions on Mackinac Island for several years past. That they are planning to come to Charlevoix this year is entirely due to the efforts of the commercial association, the Northern Transit Co., and A. I. Creamer of the Inn. We are glad to have them come to us and can assure them of the best welcome and attention that the city affords.

ARBOR DAY SET FOR MAY SECOND

Governor Appeals for Conservation of Trees and Birds.

Governor Groesbeck has issued his annual proclamation setting the date of Arbor and Bird day in this state, which will occur on Friday, May 2, 1924.

The governor wants the people of Michigan to cultivate a deeper knowledge and a more practical interest in the plant and animal life of the state. He feels that the observance of the day should not be merely a perfunctory and localized matter, conducted by the schools alone, but that all the citizens of the commonwealth should on this occasion devote their time to a better appreciation of what the tree and the song bird mean to Michigan.

Governor Groesbeck believes that the conservation of trees and birds is of prime importance. He predicts that "the idle land of the north, now of little value to the state, because of its non-production, can in another score of years become a vast forest of untold value, providing the various units that go to make this great commonwealth join with the state in a great tree planting campaign, beginning with Arbor day."

THOUGHTFUL THIEF RETURNED TICKET

Lou Moon Says He Wouldn't Think of Prosecuting Him.

While Lou A. Moon, genial proprietor of the Palace Theatre, was on his winter's vacation in Miami, Fla., he had a peculiar experience hefall him.

Mr. Moon was in line at the city post office, one day when he felt some one crowd him. He thought nothing further of it until after receiving his mail, he started for home. Feeling in his pocket, he discovered that his bill book was missing. The book contained no money, but there were a few memoranda, his business cards with Charlevoix address and his railroad ticket to Charlevoix.

Mr. Moon at once communicated with the police, who advised him to wait awhile as, they said, if the thief is an old hand he will keep the book and its contents; if a greenhorn, he will likely return it. So Lou wrote to Walker Miles, his representative here, and warned him to be on the lookout for the bill file and the ticket.

Two or three weeks later, sure enough, the book—ticket, cards, memoranda and all—turned up in the mail at this office. Walker promptly mailed the ticket back to Mr. Moon, who heaved a sigh of relief, vowing that he would not prosecute so thoughtful a thief, even if he could learn his identity.

DICKENS CLUB GIVES BANQUET

MEN FOLKS ARE INVITED TO THIS ANNUAL AFFAIR

Courses of the Meal Were Interspersed With Numbers of the Program.

Another year of successful study and diligent research came to a close for the Dickens club Monday, April 14th. The sixth annual banquet given by the members of the club, honoring their husbands, was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Musoa Rose Monday evening. It was in every way a decided success, and a fitting close to a year well spent.

The tables were most attractive in their appointments of yellow and Chinese blue, the club colors. Huge pots of blue forget-me-nots stood in simple grandeur, in their setting of iridescent shades, reflected by the soft light of shaded candles on a table resplendent with cut glass and highly polished silver. One could almost imagine himself with Wordsworth when he beheld "a host of golden daffodils," so natural were the favors nodding against the background of white linen. But lo, instead of being filled with dew, as were Wordsworth's daffodils, these were filled with nuts, browned and salted to a "queen's taste." Places were laid for forty. The out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Vandermade, Mrs. Vandermade having been a charter member of the club.

Promptly at 7 o'clock the guests and their wives found their places at table. In her usual lovely and original way, Mrs. W. H. Miller as toast mistress, welcomed the guests; "Our Husbands." She then announced that instead of following the usual course of banquets, satisfying the appetite first and later having the intellectual feast, each course would be preceded by one number of the program. She then introduced Mrs. Kaye Butters, who very pleasantly sang Josephine McGill's "Duna."

Between the first and second courses the guests were delightfully entertained by Mrs. Mason Rose. Her first number was a pianologue, "Make Believe," by Carrie Jacobs Bond, followed by "How We Die," by Edmund Vance Cook. Following the second course Mrs. Archie Livingston was much enjoyed in her rendition of Ciro Pinsuti's "Welcome Pretty Primrose." After the third course Dr. F. H. Wilkinson responded very cleverly to the toast, "A Night Out." Between the fourth and last courses came the treat of the evening, two readings by Mrs. Vandermade, "Sweet Day of Rest" and "Advice to Husbands." The last course was followed by G. M. Adamson's "Flying Spray," a piano duet by Mrs. R. L. Lewis and Mrs. W. S. Richardson, the interpretation of which was much enjoyed by all present.

After the usual exchange of greetings and "listening in" for some time on Mason's radio, all departed, the husbands especially expressing themselves as being sorry to have to wait another whole year for an affair of this sort. To their way of thinking these banquets might be made a semi-annual affair.

HANDEL CREATOR OF THE MESSIAH

PECULIAR ORIGIN OF ORATORIO EXPLAINED

Saint Saens a Recognized Pianist at 17—"Samson and Delilah" His Magnum Opus.

This week on the Music Memory Contest program we have the composers Handel and Saint Saens. These are numbers 24 and 25 on the list.

Handel.
George Frederick Handel (1685-1759), born in Germany, is one of the world's greatest masters of music. He wrote 17 other oratorios, but the "Messiah" was the most popular. This composition is given annually in some cities in the United States and in many towns. As a vocal and choral writer, Handel is supreme. The "Hallelujah Chorus," which we studied last year, is the most popular and "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth" is very well known. An oratory in the 16th century was a small chapel for private devotion. A priest invited the young people to his oratory once a week to enact Bible scenes. Interest was greater when musical accompaniment was added. This was the beginning of oratorios, which meant that the text was taken from the Bible and sung by solo and chorus, the chorus being the chief feature with accompaniment of orchestra, without scenery, costume or acting, as in opera.

Saint Saens.
Camille Saint Saens (San Sahahn), born in Paris, France (1835-1921), played the piano almost as soon as he could walk. At 17 he was a recognized pianist. He distinguished himself as a writer of religious music and opera. "Samson and Delilah" was his most important opera. The "Dance Macabre," or "Graveyard Dance," depicts a gathering of ghosts in a graveyard. At the sound of a bell they assemble and the weird harmony and rhythm describe their gambolings in a most imaginative fashion. At another bell they return to the graves and the music passes into the closing chords as a requiem. The conception is whimsical and admirably worked out instrumentally. "Dance Macabre" illustrates the diversity of Saint Saens' work. "The Swan," by him, was studied last year.

"LAST DAYS OF POMPEII" COMING

Latin Club's Movie Unique Among Screen Productions.

Members of the Laeti Latini club of Charlevoix High school are now selling tickets for the biggest and best movie of the season, to be shown at the Palace Theatre Monday, April 21st.

The six-reel production is of the type that usually is shown only in the larger cities. Don't miss this chance to see it here.

The "Last Days of Pompeii" is a picture that is rarely equalled in magnitude and interest. Remember the date and reserve it for the film showing of a most fascinating and awe inspiring event in history, coupled with a charming romance that meets many obstacles but overcomes them all, so that they "live happily ever after."

FINE FARM HOME BURNS TO GROUND

Orton Van Dusen Place on Norwood Road a Ruin.

The farm home of Orton Van Dusen, five miles out of Charlevoix on the Norwood road, burned to the ground at 11 o'clock last Monday morning, the shingles catching fire from a spark from the chimney. In less than half an hour from the start, the structure, one of the finest farm houses in this part of the country, was a mass of smoking ruins.

Extensive improvements in the house, including the installation of a bath room, new plumbing and redecoration of the walls, had recently been completed. The electric light plant alone represents a loss of upwards of $400. Some insurance was carried, however.

When the fire was discovered a portion of the roof some six by eight feet was blazing. Mr. Van Dusen, who was being assisted by four or five of his relatives and neighbors in dressing hogs at the time, climbed to the roof with a pail or two of water, but soon realizing that the blaze was beyond his control, called on the others to save what they could of the furniture, and a considerable portion of this was spared destruction through their efforts.

MISS HAMMETT BECOMES BRIDE

IS NOW MRS. R. DINEEN LATADY OF BIRMINGHAM

Romance of R. C. Hammett's Youngest Daughter Began at Shonts Estate on Mobile Bay.

The following item announcing the marriage of a former Charlevoix girl is taken from the April 9th issue of the Mobile (Ala.) Register:

The wedding of Miss Elizabeth J. Hammett of Charlevoix, Mich., and Mr. R. Dineen Latady of Birmingham, Ala., which was solemnized Sunday morning, April 6th, at Daphne, Ala., is of interest both in Mobile and on the eastern shore. This marriage is the culmination of a romance dating from last winter, the Richard Hammetts having spent the last two winters at the Shonts estate on Mobile bay. The home was bright and spring-like in its decorations of wisteria and bridal wreath, and immediately following the ceremony a six-course luncheon was served, this courtesy including the relatives only. The bride of exceptional beauty and charm is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hammett of Charlevoix, Mich. Mr. Latady is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Latady, prominent property owners of Mobile.

Mr. and Mrs. Latady left Mobile on the Pan-American for Birmingham, their future home, Mr. Latady being connected with the First National bank of that city. Scores of good wishes follow this young couple.

WORKING TO STOCK PINE LAKE WATERS

C. A. of C. Directing Special Efforts to This End.

Through the efforts of the members of the Charlevoix Association of Commerce 30,000 one-inch rainbow trout have been planted in the streams tributary to Pine Lake. Twenty-one cans of brook trout are coming from Northville, Mich., this week and applications are now in and accepted by the State Conservation Department for the planting of several thousand of the trout and a large quantity of hms, which will probably be planted by the Conservation Department agents.

While other inland lakes of this region will receive their quota of fish, it is believed that Pine Lake, with its clear waters and shore conformation favorable to the breeding of game fish, is the coming chief fishing ground of this locality and special efforts will be directed towards making it such. Boyne City and East Jordan will be asked to assist in the work. It is planned to include wall-eyed pike among the different varieties with which the lake is to be stocked.

CLAIMS ELECTION FRAUD IN WILSON

IRREGULARITIES MAKE RE-COUNT INVALID

Defeated Candidate's Petition Uncovers Shocking Laxity of Inspectors.

Wilson township has lately been the scene of a rather disgraceful political squabble, which terminated in a petition for a recount of votes filed by Claude Pearsall, defeated candidate for the office of highway commissioner.

Pearsall's action was based on his contention that the action of the board of election inspectors constituted a fraud, through mistakes and irregularities in the election; that persons applied for and received ballots who had not been registered, and were permitted to vote without being sworn as to their qualifications, as required by law; that the voters openly displayed their marked ballots in the presence of their friends, the inspectors and others, which is in violation of the law and that one or more of the voters signed their ballots; also that the initialing inspector initialed the ballots with a common lead pencil, instead of indelible pencil, ink or indelible stamp, as required by the statute, and that there were several other irregularities.

When the township board met on Tuesday to make the recount, it was discovered that the ballot box containing the ballots had been left in the town hall since the election, unguarded and unlocked, and that no cover had been placed over the deposit slot in the box—in fact, the ballots had not been protected in any of the ways prescribed by law. This condition prevented the township board from attempting to make a recount of the ballots, so that the title to the office of highway commissioner must be determined by court proceedings, if at all.

It is commonly known that election machinery—not only in the townships, but in villages and cities—is very inadequate and abused in one way or another, either by intention or through the ignorance of the inspectors.

It seems high time that the legislature paid less attention to passing election laws and more attention to devising a method of securing competent and efficient election inspectors. Elections are the only means of securing an expression of the people's will upon the selection of officers and the adoption of the various propositions that must be submitted to them.

When such conditions as those recently revealed in Wilson township are permitted to pass unchallenged and elections are run in a haphazard manner, the public must inevitably suffer.

Our election laws are far from perfect and their imperfections give rise to criticisms often advanced against the democratic form of government.

GROUP POLICIES FOR RETAILERS

Bellinger Jewelry Store Participates in New Plan.

Charles R. Bellinger, proprietor of the Charles R. Bellinger jewelry store, Charlevoix, is one of the more than 4,000 retail jewelers in the United States who has taken advantage of the insurance agreement recently instituted between the American National Retail Jewelers Association and the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., whereby the latter organization has agreed to issue policies under a wholesale plan to the jewelers and their more than 13,000 employees.

The Wholesale insurance plan is comparatively new in its operation. There have been numerous group insurance arrangements through which employees of large industrial organizations received such protection, but this is one of the first instances of smaller forces of workers in one great commercial group having a similar privilege.

M. E. CHURCH
A Message of Easter.
 A legend has come down the centuries that when Jesus rose from the grave on Easter morning and walked out into Joseph's garden, where ever his foot pressed the earth white lilies rose in fragrant beauty.
 The legend symbolizes a great truth, for wherever Jesus has gone on this earth, joy and hope have sprung up in human hearts, gladness has supplanted sorrow, and life has risen out of death. Not resignation, but exultation, is the Christian attitude toward those who have been called from us during the year just gone. "They are before the throne of God and serve Him day and night in His temple."
 "For they follow Him who vanquished death upon the Cross."
 Our hope as Christians is a lively hope; not a dead hope; not a languid and languishing hope; but a living, vital, active principle.

 Its author is God; its source is mercy; its medium is through the resurrection of Christ.
 It is "undefiled." It is not tainted by sin; all its enjoyments are right and good and holy. It "fadeth not away."
 It is "reserved in heaven" for all believers. It is "prepared," or "laid up" there, beyond the reach of all enemies, for you and me.
 Let us open our hearts this Easter tide to receive this hope anew—in our own lives and in the life of our church. By reading the scriptures, by prayer and meditation and by attending the various services, these days may be made full of blessings and Easter a glad time. Kindly accept this as your personal invitation to meet with us in worship, especially for the services on Easter.—Selected.

DODGE BROTHERS

SPECIAL 4-PASSENGER COUPE

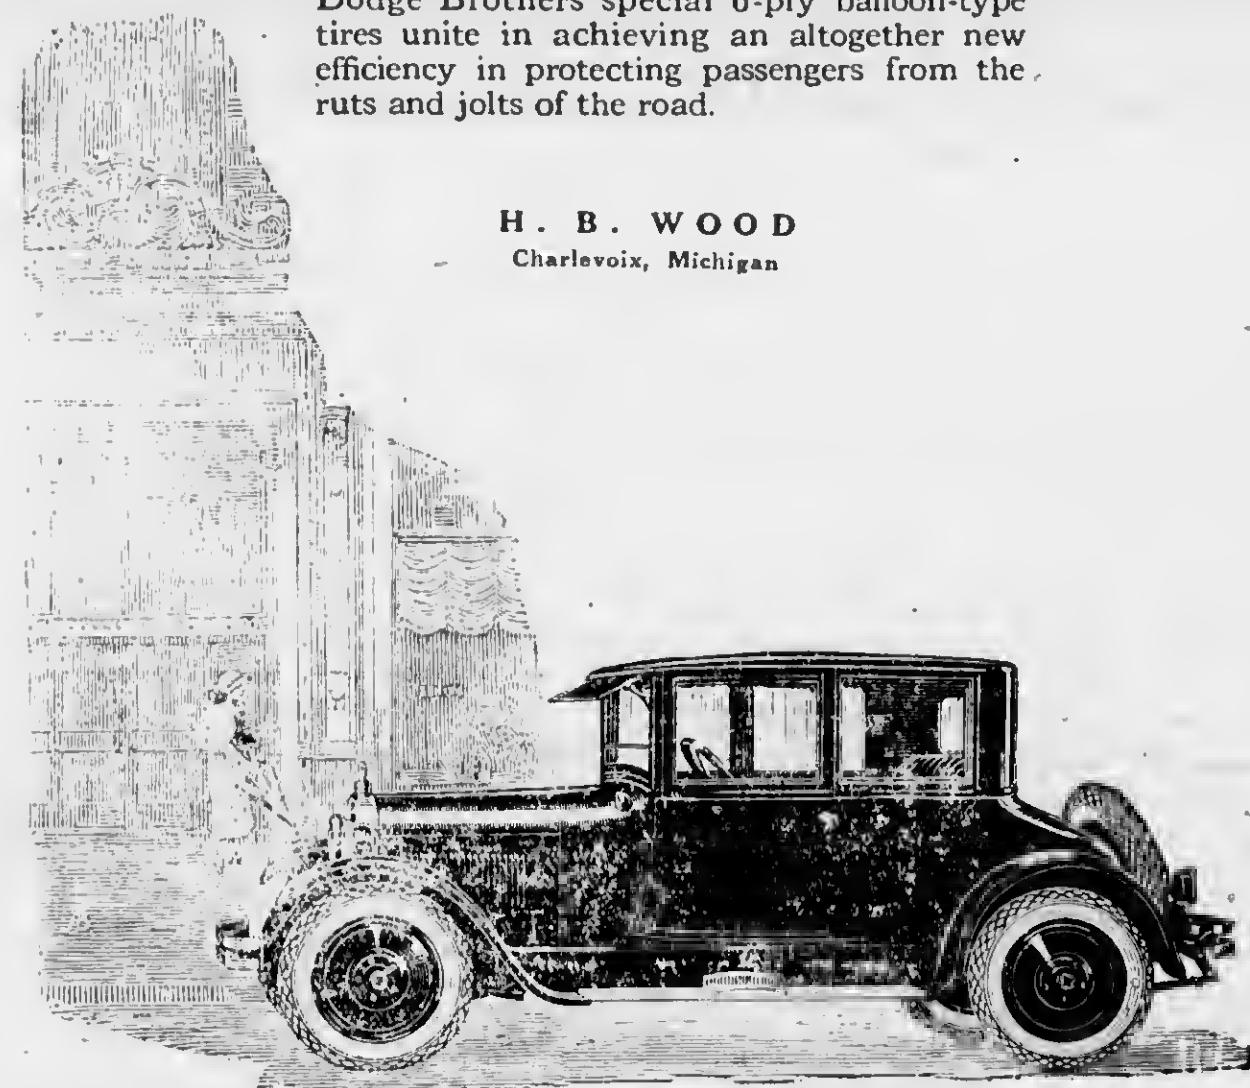

To see this car is to commend its beauty.

It stands out strikingly, both in the symmetry of its design and in the excellent good taste and smartness of its equipment.

In the final analysis, however, the most popular feature will unquestionably prove to be its exceptional riding ease.

The seats, the new spring suspension and Dodge Brothers special 6-ply balloon-type tires unite in achieving an altogether new efficiency in protecting passengers from the ruts and jolts of the road.

HOW ABOUT THE CONGRESSIONAL DELEGATES?

It is none too soon for the people of Michigan to begin thinking seriously of what they intend to do about the state delegation to the house of representatives in Washington.

Certainly there is no room for serious question regarding the necessity for doing something. The inadequacy of the present delegation is painfully apparent. It possesses no leadership, no outstanding figure, no member who commands real national attention and respect. Some of the members are better than others; one or two perhaps are, on the whole, adequate; a few have acquired a little transient notoriety, but the delegation generally is submerged in the sea of mediocrity that has swallowed most of the lower house.

It is Michigan's duty to itself to put an end to this condition, and send to Washington men who have force and real size, and who can develop influence, and give the state the place and prestige to which it is entitled. It is nonsense to say that this cannot be done. Only the indifference and the neglect of the voters will prevent it from being done.

A congressman need not be a genius in order to make good. He must have intelligence, backbone, honesty and common sense, and he must be diligent. But a combination of these qualities in one American, man or woman, is not excessively rare. There is plenty of material in every district of Michigan from which to select good congressional timber. The question is how to get it into use.

The answer to that question in detail is naturally a local problem in every district. But suppose that in each district responsible men and women of the Republican and Democratic parties decide to take control of their primaries away from the minorities and cliques that have been running them. Suppose that after going over the field they get together in pre-primary party gatherings and select their candidates on the basis of ability and general reliability, rather than on the basis of glibness or factional pull, and also with a view to outbidding the opposition so far as the general caliber of their selections are concerned. And suppose they then go to their party primaries in force and vote for their candidates. Wouldn't that help a good deal? Wouldn't it pretty nearly insure a betterment of the Michigan delegation to the national house of representatives? We are optimistic enough to think it would. Anyhow that or something like it will be worth trying.—Detroit Free Press.

Let the above sink in deep, dear reader, for it exactly covers the situation in the 11th Congressional District. Will some one inform us of at least one real accomplishment during the three terms of our present incumbent? Has Charlevoix and its interests been looked after? If ever a district needed a live representative, the 11th certainly does. Pick a live one and stand back of him in the coming primary.—Ed.

HOME CLEANING

House cleaning? Everybody's doing it except two classes. One is composed of those few rarely perfect housekeepers who keep everything clean all the time and thus feel no need of a general overhauling. The other comprises sloppy folks who never get houses or lives really clean at all. All others feel some urge of the lengthening sun to make whole-house clearance and cleanness in house and yard and start the new season with possessions sweet, fresh and sanitary.

Home cleaning is a different process. How many housewives take stock of mental, moral and spiritual growth of the family at semi-annual or any other intervals?

Every soul, especially that of a small child, is entitled to its own privacy of spirit—its own hopes, without interference from anyone else. The wise parent knows this and does not try to do the thinking for any other member of the family. But the family as a whole is a sort of individual, as a house is, and over this the wise mother has some supervision.

It is this family life, the life of the group within these clean and gracious walls, that in so many cases needs attention and gets none.

Are there left-over grudges, laziness or unfairness which ought to be cleaned out along with the ashes? As the waste paper goes, would it not be well to put in a wholesome magazine or two, to lay a couple of books-of-sound-worth on the clean cover of the polished library table, a bit of good music in the rack?

Might it not help everybody's happiness if after an especially appetizing Sunday breakfast a "family meeting" were called, in which every member of the group contributed some idea tending to make the home pleasanter?

Finding fault with the home as an institution is not useful. Taking thought for the individual home might succeed in growing sweetness, fun, mutual consideration and constructive interests where there had been selfishness, inharmonious and mental and moral heedlessness, just as winter's dust and debris are made to give place to cleaning and spring flowers.

CITIZENS FROM CANADA

Canada is greatly disturbed by its loss of citizens to the United States. It was bad enough, when the Dominion found in its last census, that it had a million less population than it had supposed, because that number had come to this country. The war was thought to have stopped the leakage. Yet figures show a greater drain than ever.

In the first nine months of 1923, more than 127,000 Canadians entered the United States and officially registered their intention of remaining here. In the summer months the movement ran from 16,000 to 18,000 a month. The actual volume was considerably greater, for many Canadians came over without formality, by the simple process of rowing across a river or walking across the unwatched border line, and many who came here through regular channels remain here without having registered their intention. The movement at present, Canadian observers say, may reach 300,000 a year.

This is a sad loss to Canada, because these emigrants are mostly native born Canadians of mature years, and therefore a serious economic drain. They are not really replaced by babies or immigrants from the old country. There is an effort being made now to concentrate less on bringing in new citizens from abroad and more in keeping those already in the country.

The United States, while sympathizing with Canada in its loss, can not feel altogether sad about it. The recruits from that country are most like Americans of any of our immigrants, the most easily assimilated, and perhaps of the highest economic value, since most of them are skilled workmen or farmers. We could bear it cheerfully if some countries farther away were as eager as Canada to keep their people at home.

Begin to Repair Highway When Opened for Traffic

A man who spent $25,000 for a house and contents and refused to spend a hundred dollars to stop the leak in the roof, which spoiled both, would be considered a fool. But there are many counties and many states which spend from ten to twenty-five thousand dollars a year for a good road, and refuse the hundred dollars a year needed to keep it in perfect order.

The time to begin to repair a good road is the day it is opened for traffic. Homely philosophy says that a stitch in time saves nine, and road experience proves that a bucket of oil, a little sand, a few rocks and a man with a shovel now can save the expense of a whole road gang and expensive machinery later.

The modern road consists of a foundation course of stone, a smaller, lighter course on top, a wearing course of still smaller stones, a binder of oil and sand, and perhaps a top dressing of the same. As long as the structure is complete, the road will wear. But let time, or a too heavy load, or frost, or some other cause, dig a hole through the wearing course into the foundation, and the "bad spot" will begin to "travel." Stones will break away and roll in the ditch, the surface will disintegrate and in a comparatively short time a large and rough hole appears.

A good road is no better than its worst mile. A mile of holes and ruts cuts down the usefulness of ten miles of good road. To repair a large hole costs much money. To inspect the road often and stop up the little hole when it starts is very inexpensive. The greatest city fire in history could have been put out by a child with a cup of water if found in time. So can the worst possible damage to roads be inexpensively prevented, if the maintenance is begun in time.—Good Roads.

AT THE MOVIES
A splendid cast has been afforded "Masters of Men," the great sea story by Morgan Robertson, which the Palace Theatre will show next Saturday and Sunday, headed by Earle Williams, Alice (Lilburn), Cullen, and Wanda Hawley. The story is a striking, vivid picturization of life at sea with the background of a heart stirring love drama involving the four principal characters.

It is a picture of American youth and it is as fresh and wholesome as a breath of the sea upon which the action occurs. Dick Halpin, an orphan living in a small town, is falsely accused of a theft committed by the brother of the girl he loves. He accepts the blame in order to spare her humiliation, runs away and joins the United States Navy. While on shore leave Dick and Lieutenant Breece, his superior, are shafted and flung into the forecabin of the "Mary Earl," commanded by one of the old time sea masters. The boys fight their way out of their difficulties and manage to escape and rejoin their ship just as the Spanish fleet is coming out of the harbor of Santiago. Dick's heroism helps save the day.

Two phases of sea life are realistically portrayed; the clean, wholesome conditions on board a United States battleship and the brutality and cruelty men suffered on board a sailing ship. Vitagraph has spared no expense in staging the ordinary seaman's days before the mast, and assisted by the United States Navy Department the producers have been enabled to show the most authentic scenes of naval life ever filmed.

SEASON'S END IS GLORIOUS

ELLSWORTH QUINT CONQUERS CENTRAL LAKE SQUAD

Trimmed Their Opponents by Score of 20 to 13—Fastest Game of the Year.

The basketball season here ended in a blaze of glory Friday night of last week, when the local school boys won from Central Lake 19-16, and Ellsworth Independents trimmed their Central Lake rivals 20-13.

The high school game was one of the best and fastest played this year, being a see-saw affair, with neither team getting lead enough at any time to fall back and depend on defensive play. Ellsworth led 10-7 at the end of the first half and finished with the same three point lead in spite of the fact that the visitors tied the score on two occasions and held a one point margin late in the game.

The Independent game, while having plenty of thrills, was filled with too much "rough stuff" to be classed as a good exhibition of basketball. At times the floor resembled "Boyle's thirty acres" during the unpleasantness between Dempsey and Willard. The only redeeming feature was the play of Elzinga, the Ellsworth right forward, who was content to keep out of the general scramble. He incidentally scored 15 of the total of 20 points.

Several Central Lake fans came over with their teams to help swell the crowd, and went home following the games, convinced if not satisfied.

CERTIFIED SEED MAKES 'EM SMILE

ELLSWORTH POTATO GROWERS ARE HAPPY NOW

Last Load of Pedigreed Tubers Left Last Week Amid Great Rejoicing.

The last shipment of certified seed potatoes left last week and growers of these potatoes are wearing a smile that will need a hat full of hard luck to erase.

B. H. Brat, H. S. Peebles, Henry VanderArk, Henry Black, Mrs. D. E. Carpenter and Vernon Vmace—the latter, however, on a small scale—were the other local farmers to profit by the certified seed game and all express satisfaction with their year's work.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The April meeting of the W. C.
T. U. was held in the parlors of the Congregational church Friday, April 11th.

Mrs. Harry L. Oldham favored the audience with an instrumental selection, which was much enjoyed by all.
The group meeting, held at the home of Mrs. Maude Ulrich, was reported as being an enthusiastic and instructive session. A pot luck added to the pleasure of the occasion.

The Charlevoix County W. C. T.
U. meeting will be held in May, in Charlevoix, as announced by the county president, Mrs. Jennie Alcox.

Mrs. Henry Jacobs had charge of the program for the afternoon. Mrs.
DuBois read a selection, "We Want to Come Back." Mrs. F. Metcalf gave a short paper, saying, "The Modified Volstead Act Would Restore Political Power to the Brew-

how "America Must Be Saved From Ever Going Back to Beer and Wine."

The W. C. T. U. is working along the same lines as the Women's National Committee, who have just held their convention in Washington, D.
C. This convention was sponsored by Mrs. Coolidge, Mrs. Harding and Mrs. Willebrandt, the W. C. T. U. representative at Washington, and other prominent women. Mrs. Wil-lebrandt is quoted as saying, "Corruption in high places is revolting, but the condition that proves fatal to this country is lethargy in local government."

Selection of officers who will themselves, obey the law will help to enforce law. But the great need of today is obedience to law by all people. A revival of devotion to the constitution is needed, as many communities have "civic sleeping sickness."

The challenge of today is a mighty movement for a sober world and a sober mankind.

NEW RULES FOR AUTO LICENSES

REGULATIONS COVERING ISSU-ANCE OF 1924 PLATES

Owners of New Cars Must Bring Proof of Purchase—No Plates for Out-of-State Cars.

New and stringent regulations regarding the issuance of automobile license plates have been received at the office of the county clerk from Charles J. DeLand, secretary of state, and owners of new cars are urged to note and bring all the documents required when applying for their plates. The new rule is as follows:

1—Branch managers may issue license plates for all new cars purchased in Michigan, if purchased within ten days of the date of application for license, provided that such application for license is accompanied by application for certificate of title and bill of sale from dealer.
License plates sold in violation of the above will be taken up by this department, as they are issued illegally and without authority.

1—Branch managers may issue license plates for cars purchased outside of Michigan. Application for license plates, application for certificate of title, bill of sale or title from state where car was purchased if the state has a title law, registration card and fee must be sent direct to the secretary of state at Lansing.

All applicants for automobile licenses are asked to come prepared to tell what model their machine is, as the fee is figured on the weight and horsepower and these are determined by the model.

Some people apparently do not yet understand that the certificate of title must be brought to the office to obtain a license, Deputy Charles H.
Emrey says, but the title must be stamped at that office before the license is issued.

PURPLE CROSS IS FUNERAL EMBLEM

Grand Rapids Herald—File this thought away for ready reference:
A purple Greek Cross on the windshield of an automobile is a signal to stop your car and wait for that machino and all others with a similar insignia to pass. That cross is a warning that these cars constitute a funeral procession.

Our new Michigan state law reads:
"Motor vehicles forming a funeral procession when going to any place of burial shall have the right of way over all other vehicles except fire apparatus, ambulances and police patrol vehicles, at any street or highway intersection within this state.
It shall be the duty of the undertaker having charge of such funeral procession to supply each motor vehicle forming a part thereof with a card not less than eight inches square which shall be white in color, and upon which shall be printed, stamped or stained a purple cross, the extremities shall extend to the edge of such card. Each motor vehicle forming a part of such funeral procession shall have displayed on the right hand side of the windshield thereof the card aforesaid in a secure manner.
Any person passing through a funeral procession of motor vehicles designated as aforesaid, with a vehicle of any kind, shall be deemed guilty of misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not to exceed $25."

"The Car for Everyone" says noted "MOTOR" authority

The New Essex possesses many qualities which I did not believe could be incorporated in a closed car selling for $975.

"It is a type long needed in this country. It possesses grace and beauty, can travel at sustained high speed without passenger discomfort, is surprisingly economical to operate and does not cost much to buy.

"It is unusually smooth, accelerates better than the previous Essex, which is saying a great deal, and is 'the' car for everyone."—H. A.

SAYS DURANT HOLDS
THE MASTER HAND

Wall Street Says His Prospects Exceed All Except Ford.

Inate contradictions, explanations, and hastily prepared comment by automobile executives mainly purporting to show that there would be no curtailment in spring production was the big topic in Wall street today. Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of the General Motors corporation, in speaking of conditions as especially indicated by General Motors is quoted as admitting that General Motors had about 10 days' current production on hand unsold and that cars in dealers' hands are in excess of the corresponding time last year.
He explained that this condition was sought in view of the fact that last year General Motors was unable to effect prompt deliveries, and lost business thereby, says a New York news item.

C. W. Nash, president of Nash Motors, says that the automobile industry looks to the future with confidence, but that the industry itself will grow through those manufacturers best qualified to serve the demands of the public. Mr. Nash says that he sees a process of elimination in the automobile industry and that only the fittest will survive.

The real view by the so-called "wise ones" of Wall street is that the master hand of W. C. Durant, president of Durant Motors corporation, is seen virtually in control of this gigantic industry.

Wall street has come to the realization that Durant has made good and that his companies are in a better position today to supply a line of cars designed to serve the most exacting demands in the transportation field than any others. It is pointed out that General Motors pays to W. C. Durant and his associates a profit on every car they build.

It is well known that Mr. Durant holds large blocks of preferred and common stock in the General Motors corporation, in Fisher Body, Hayes Wheel and other industrial concerns supplying products for the automotive industry.

It has been discovered that every time Fisher builds a body, Durant makes a profit; every time Hayes makes a wheel, Durant makes a profit; every time General Motors builds and sells a car, Durant makes a profit. It has also been pointed out that every prediction regarding the automobile industry that Durant has made in the past 20 years has come true.

Durant Motors annual financial statement will be given to the public in the near future and the company is known to have made money.

The prospects for the future of Durant are considered in Wall street to be better than any motor car manufacturer excepting Henry Ford and some of the smart traders are quietly picking up Durant securities.

CHURCHES ARE FILLED EASTER

PEOPLE THROG TO ENJOY THE FINE MUSIC AND FLOWERS

Special Evening Programs Delight Audiences With Inspiring Anthem and Hymn.

Easter Day in the churches was marked by the usual profusion of beautiful flowers and fine music. Notwithstanding the excellent weather for automobile, the Sunday morning and evening turn-outs at the services were fully up to the average.

At the Congregational church a special evening musical service was held at five o'clock, several difficult anthems being well rendered by the chorus choir and Sunday school choir of little girls under the direction of Henry L. Oldham.

W. Ruffner's "Christ The Lord Is Risen Today" was used as a processional and recessional at this service, the choirs marching in procession to their places, led by little Miss Bistie Oldham, who performed her responsible duty with befitting dignity.

Following the processional, the anthem, "King of Kings," by Caleb Simper, was sung, the solo parts being taken by the little girls, who did most wonderfully well with them.

Foster's "As It Began to Dawn" and "The Strife Is O'er," by Stewart, were also given by the choir and the solo, "Salvation to Our God," was most effectively and beautifully sung by Mrs. Archie Livingston.

The church was artistically decorated in keeping with the Easter festival; panels consisting of white bands, six inches wide with silver borders, bearing in purple letters the text, "Christ is Risen," "Jesus Lives," and "Hallelujah," repeated thrice, being draped about the organ. The front of the platform was banked with potted flowers and shrubs and bunches of Easter lilies, and presented a remarkably beautiful appearance.

Following the service Mrs. Archie Livingston was presented with a beautifully beaded hand bag as a token of affection and regard from her friends in the Mary Brewster Circle and the choir for her having so generously given of her talent and time to the service of the church during her membership.

Mr. Oldham has been petitioned by members of the congregation to keep his choir together during the summer months and from time to time put on a choral service. Next Sunday the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs will meet in a body at the church and the full Easter choir will be present on this occasion.

At the Methodist Episcopal church a wonderful attendance was reported, the offering from the Sunday school alone totalling $116.25.

A special evening musical service was also presented in this church under the direction of the choir leader, Mrs. Constance Gaskin, ably assisted by Mrs. Archie C. Belding at the piano. The cantata, "The Crucified," by George D. Nevill, formed the musical piece de resistance of the evening, the story of Easter and the Cross having previously been illustrated by stereopticon pictures. This cantata is divided into nine parts and is a difficult and impressive piece of music. First came a full chorus, "The Upper Room;" a baritone solo, supported by a chorus of women, entitled "Assurance," then a baritone solo, "Benediction;" a full chorus, "Gethsemane;" a men's chorus, "Betrayal;" an alto solo, "Judgment;" a full chorus, "Calvary;" a soprano solo, supported by full chorus, "Resurrection," and as finale, a full chorus, "Lives Again Our Glorious King." The cantata was most excellently performed and Mrs. Gaskin, as well as the rest of the choir, deserve great credit for their hours or arduous labor in its preparation.

NEW BARBER SHOP NOW BEING BUILT

S. M. Rose Erecting One-Story Edifice on Bridge Street.

Captain S. M. Rose has purchased the O. E. Wilbur property on Bridge street, being the lot formerly occupied by the shoe shining establishment of "Bill, The Hatter," between the Bonthron plumbing shop and the channel bank, and will erect thereon a one-story and basement building which he will devote to his barber shop and baths.

The work of tearing down the shoe shining booth and excavating was started last Thursday. The new building will measure 16 feet, 10 inches in width and 34 feet in depth. On the concrete basement wall will be built a structure of concrete and tile, stuccoed with Kelly stone, similar to the George Weaver cottage on South Bridge street, and trimmed in front with red pressed face brick. George Lusk will have charge of the foundation work and Floyd Ikens will lay the tile.

Mr. Rose will use his present equipment in the new building for the time being. There will also be facilities for tub and shower baths. He expects to occupy the building on June 1st.

HAYDN WAS A JOVIAL CHAP

EVEN PUT A "JOKER" IN HIS "SURPRISE" SYMPHONY

Moszkowski, Polish Writer of the "Serenata," Is Still Living in Paris, France.

Numbers 26 and 27 of the Music Memory Contest schedule are on Haydn and Moszkowski, Austrian and Polish composers of the 18th and 19th centuries.

Haydn. Franz Joseph Haydn (1732-1809) is one of that group of great musicians who lived in or near Vienna during the 18th century. He was born in the little Austrian village of Rohrau, of humble peasant parentage, in 1732. Thus, he was 24 years older than Mozart, whom he yet outlived by 16 years.

As a boy, he sang in the choir of St. Stephen's church at Vienna. After outgrowing this position he had many hard experiences as a struggling musician, but finally became leader of the musical establishment of a wealthy Hungarian nobleman named Esterhazy—a post which he filled for many years. During this time he wrote many works, the most important of which were symphonies (elaborate compositions for orchestra, each made up of several complete pieces called movements).

In 1790, on the death of his patron, Prince Nicholas Esterhazy, Haydn was released from active service, although he was given a liberal pension by the succeeding prince. Soon afterwards Haydn accepted the invitation of a London music publisher to come to England. Upon this and a following visit, he was received with many marks of distinction, producing 12 new symphonies and having the degree of Doctor of Music conferred upon him by the University of Oxford.

His two great choral works, the oratorios "Creation" and the "Seasons," were composed at Vienna, where he spent an honored old age. His death occurred there on May 31, 1809.

"Papa" Haydn, as he was nicknamed, was a genial, fun loving man, of whom everyone was fond.

The Andante from the "Surprise" symphony is well known. The Surprise consists of a very loud chord in measure 16, which comes as a shock in the midst of this quiet movement. When Haydn was asked what he meant by this chord, he replied, "That is to make the ladies jump."

Moszkowski.

Moritz Moszkowski (Mos-koy-ski) was born in Breslau, August 23, 1854, the son of a Polish gentleman.

After earning fame as a pianist, teacher and composer, he settled in Paris in 1897, where he has since resided. He has written many refined and pianistic piano pieces, besides larger works, including an opera.

The piece called "Serenata" is a love song or serenade which was sung under a window. It ranks as a small classic.

HIGH HERD GOES TO ART SHEPARD

LEADS THE COW TESTING ASSOCIATION IN MARCH

Behling of Boyne Is Runner-up—Meggison Has the Two High Cows.

The Charlevoix County Cow Testing Association reports that the high herd for March belongs to Art Shepard. His pure bred and grade Holsteins averaged 46.12 pounds of butterfat for the month. This is the third month in succession that they have been high herd.

The runners-up for high herd for March are the seven pure bred Holsteins owned by Frank A. Behling of Boyne City. His herd averaged 45.5 pounds of butterfat, in spite of the fact that they were out of condition and not at their best flow of milk.

The honor of owning the two highest cows in the association for this month goes to George Meggison, as his two grade Jerseys made 66 pounds of butterfat each. These two Jerseys are making quite a record for themselves, as no other Jerseys in the association have been able to reach their mark as yet.

The average production of butterfat for the 264 cows in the association, of which 22 are dry, is 25 pounds and 638 pounds of milk. The two highest cows for the last eight months in each of the age classes are all pure bred or grade Holsteins. They are as follows: 2-year-old class

A. J. STELTER BUYS PICKLE COMPANY

Former Heinz Official Is Locating in Charlevoix.

A. J. Stelter, who has recently purchased the James H. Johnson pickle station and business here and who is locating in Charlevoix, states that farmers are appreciating the high prices being offered for pickles and that acreage will be heavy.

Mr. Stelter is an old Heinz man, having been connected in the production end of the enormous Heinz business for 14 years, handling territory in Wisconsin, Michigan and other pickle growing sections. During eight years his headquarters were in eastern Michigan districts and, until just recently, he has been general assistant to the general manager of the several state territories of the company's pickle salting house districts, with headquarters at Grand Rapids.

Mr. Stelter's former home was in Wisconsin, where he was reared on a large farm, and in which state he first connected with the H. J. Heinz company. He also had two years previous experience with a large canning company at Marquette, Wisconsin, in the heart of the Wisconsin pea territory.

We welcome Mr. Stelter here and Three-year-old class—Moonshine, grade Holstein, 201 pounds of butterfat and 5,761 pounds of milk, owned by Art Shepard; Spotty, grade Holstein, 261.83 pounds of butterfat and 7,258 pounds of milk, owned by D. Four-year-old class—Lady Pietertje Tritonia, pure bred Holstein, 317.97 pounds of butterfat and 10,177 pounds of milk, owned by Art Shepard; Siloam Marie De Kol, 2nd, pure bred Holstein, 276.64 pounds of butterfat and 6,760 pounds of milk, owned by Orchard Bay Farm. Five-year-old class—Empress Josephine Tyson, pure bred Holstein, 309.43 pounds of butterfat and 10,221 pounds of milk, owned by Breezy Point Farm; No. 5, grade Holstein, 252.5 pounds of butterfat and 5,384 pounds of milk, owned by Frank Shepard. Mature Cow class—Cannary Voeman De Kol, pure bred Holstein, 325.29 pounds of butterfat and 9,593 pounds of milk; Snope, grade Holstein, 305.42 pounds of butterfat and 7,992 pounds of milk, owned by Art Shepard.

The association herd book shows that 56 per cent of the cows tested are Holstein and 15 per cent are Jerseys; 9 per cent shorthorn, 7 per cent Guernseys and the rest are badly mixed. Of all the cows tested 29 per cent are pure bred cows, of which 23 per cent are Holsteins, leaving 6 per cent of the pure bred cows among the Jerseys and shorthorns.

The following table gives the names and records of the cows in the association that have produced more than 50 pounds of butterfat or 1,300 pounds of milk during the period of 31 days ending March 31, 1924:

DISASTROUS FIRE ON THE PENINSULA

Clarence Johnston's Barn Burns, With Cattle, Hay and Car.

Last Saturday evening at about 5 o'clock, the large 80-foot barn belonging to Clarence Johnston, on the Peninsula about three miles from Ironport ferry, caught fire and burned to the ground with all the tools; also ten head of cattle, 100 bushels of rye, some oats and five or six tons of hay. A car that he had just bought and brought home the day before was also destroyed.

Two small boys were in the barn at the time the fire started. The loss amounted to $5,000. There was only $1,000 insurance to offset this loss.

"BOOSTER CAMPAIGN" NOW ON

PLEDGES ASKED FOR 1924 ADVERTISING PROGRAM

Money to be Used by Commercial Association to Put Charlevoix on the Resort Map.

Charlevoix's "Booster Campaign," under the auspices of the Association of Commerce, is on.

Realizing that Charlevoix's future as a summer resort and playground depends greatly upon the proper advertising of our resources, the following public-spirited individuals and concerns have pledged their support to the extent of the amounts set opposite their respective names, to be used by the Charlevoix Association of Commerce in their advertising program for the year 1924.

If your name doesn't appear thereon, do not feel slighted. You will be solicited before long by a member of the committee. In fact, you need not wait until you are solicited, as it is as much your concern that Charlevoix's advertising campaign should be a success this year as it is that of the committee members or those who have already signed the subscription roll. You can "come across" at any time.

Those who have put their names down to date are as follows:

BATH PAVILION AND FINE GARAGE

Now Being Built on Inn Property For 1924 Season.

Ground was broken last Saturday for the Charlevoix Inn's new $25,000 garage, which is located on the street parallel to and between Petoskey and Dixon avenues, just north of the ball park and facing south.

This building is to be 56x156 feet in dimension, with capacity for 30 cars. It is of steel frame construction, sheathed with pine siding and roofed with asphalt shingles. W. E. Parmelee of this city has the contract for the job.

Down on the lake front, on the site of the old Inn boat dock, similar activities prevail. Here a gang of carpenters, headed by Engineer Higgins of the P. M. R. R., and Thad Bailey, foreman, are constructing a new bathing pavilion with chutes, spring hounds and other accessories.

Both jobs are being performed under the authorization of the Central Land Co., which is the organization of Pere Marquette officials that own the Inn property.

LOCAL NINE WINS OPENER

NOSE OUT CENTRAL LAKE SOUTHPAWS, 13 TO 12.

Game Ragged and Showed Mutual Lack of Practice—Looked Scary For a While.

In their first plunge into the baseball season the Charlevoix High School outfit emerged with the bacon. They had it, yes, but their grip was slipping when the ninth inning rolled around and the south stagers crept up from a 7-0 shut-out in the fifth to a rather threatening position.

The heavy scoring on both sides made the game full of thrills. From the first it seemed as if the locals had the edge on the Central Lake outfit, both in fielding and in batteries. Throughout the first six innings the locals led by a big score. "Spit-ball" Cunningham pitched a complete shut-out during the first five. Dagwell was then substituted and the Hatch team scored two. From the fifth on, the scoring continued until at the close of the eighth the score stood 10 and 13. Charlevoix failed to score in the ninth, while Central Lake netted two runs with only one man out. The bases were full. But just as the bases seemed slipping out of the red and whites' grasp, a neat double play, from Hallett (third base) to Todd (catch) which caught a man on home, and then from Todd to Dagwell (third), which put out another man on base and closed the big conflict. Another double play worthy of note happened in the fourth inning. "Big Mitt" McCann (playing short) pulled down a neat one and pegged to Bacot, catching a man on first.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

Dear Friends:

The seed corn situation is serious. In most localities the corn went into storage last fall with a high moisture content and as a result of the exceeding cold winter it froze, and germination this spring is proving to be very low, from 40 up to 60 and 65 per cent.

Through the co-operation of the teachers of the rural schools we have been conducting a Seed Corn Testing Campaign. The results from some of our tests here in the county have not been very too satisfactory.

My idea at present is that if we can locate some corn that tests at least 85 or 90 per cent and there is no surplus, we can no doubt find a ready sale for it at a good price. Get in touch with your local school teacher and see about getting your corn tested. It will mean a lot to you from a seed standpoint, and you may be able to sell some. We will through this office make an effort to aid in selling any corn which proves to be good.

Test—Don't guess.

Yours very sincerely,
B. O. Hagerman,
Co. Agr'l Agent.

Red Crown

The High-Grade Gasoline

Gives Better Carburetion

Thirty-seven nationally known automobile factories buy Red Crown Gasoline in tank car lots for testing purposes.

These manufacturers use Red Crown because it has made good—because after comparison it has been found to deliver more mileage, more power, less carbon, easier starting, greater flexibility, quicker pick-up, and smoother acceleration.

It is practically certain that your car was tested and proved with Red Crown before it left the factory and that its entire carburetion system is adjusted to Red Crown Gasoline.

These are weighty arguments why you should use Red Crown, but there is a more forceful reason in the unqualified guarantee of uniformity which the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) gives you with every gallon of Red Crown you buy.

Fill up with Red Crown anywhere and everywhere and you will get more mileage, better mileage, and better carburetion.

It was only a casual meeting of two men in the depot at Grand Rapids, where both were waiting for the train. That was about the only thing of common interest between them, but being thus thrown together they naturally struck up a conversation by way of sociability.

"Where is your home, Mr. Shift?" asked Thrift.

"Well," drawled Shift, "I ain't really settled down nowhere for good. I've been having a heck of a time to find a place that just suits me. You see I lived for some years up in the northern part of the state, but there wasn't nuthin' there that amounted to n' whoop, so I got sick of it. It was a kind of summer resort town where you have to break your neck for three months in the summer and then starve for the other nine months. Say, that place was deadlier than King Tut after the resorters went away. There wasn't a thing to go to except the pool rooms and I got all of them I wanted in the summer."

L. H. Wheeler, retired engineer, 807 Bridge St., says: "My kidneys were weak and I had to get up three or four times during the night to pass the secretions, which contained sediment. Charlevoix Pickle &
Produce Company

"Why, if everybody was so busy during the summer," Thrift interrupted, "I don't see how you could spare time to hang around the pool rooms."

"Oh, well, of course, er—, that is, you see, Stranger, them that was workin' was mostly busy, but I was n't feelin' first rate and then the climate didn't agree with me anyway. In fact, that is the god-durned place for climate. You see, one great trouble is that the summers is too hot for heavy work and the winters too cold for light work; so you can't do anything if you want to. Always something to put a feller right up against it. Why honest-ly, I've seen snow three feet deep in the streets up there. And lone-some! Gee Whiz! And then in the summer the blame resorters are so thick that they crowd you right off from the sidewalks. And say, just between you and me, them resorters ain't the best thing for any town. They're a high headed bunch of smart Alecks. They demand the best of everything and the poor natives can take what's left, if they can stand the price; and believe me, the prices up there are somepin' frightful. But speakin' of resorters, you know when them folks are there you've purty near got to fight to get a seat in the picture show. Why they just march right in and push you aside and gobble up all the best seats without makin' any bones about it. And church—why say, they would come pourin' in there every Sunday when some 'big resort preacher' was going to talk, and they filled up every seat and chair, b'gosh, so that the home folks couldn't even get in at all."

"What church do you attend?" asked Mr. Thrift.

"Well, um-m—, I didn't attend any myself, but I heard 'em tellin' about it. And then there's another hnd thing up there. There wasn't a day, hardly, that somebody didn't come around soliciting for some durn thing or other—church, baseball, football, Salvation Army or some blame celebration. Why say, it just kept a feller poor all the time."

"Did you ever keep track to see how much these contributions cost you for a year?" Thrift ventured again.

"Why, no, I don't know as I ever did. Well, you see, it almost always seemed to happen that I was out of town or under the weather or somepin on those days—and then I didn't believe in this beggin' business myself, anyway; so I simply put my foot down and wouldn't let them hully-rag me a durn hit. They could git their contributions from them that was easy marks."

"But take it all around, that was sure a bum place for a man to try to live. There wasn't a thing you could make a livin' at, no matter how hard you worked. Say, that town was so dead that all it needed was buryin, and the few folks that lived there didn't have ambition enough to bury it. I left there two years ago, and I'm through with it."

"Well," remarked Mr. Thrift, "I suppose there is a great difference in resort towns. I have been living in one of them for nearly two years and find it very pleasant and interesting, especially in the summer season when the resort people are there. And, while we do have to work good and hard during that time, those folks are willing to pay well for everything they get, and we realize that just the presence of such a class of people is a valuable asset to our town. They bring us up to date ideas from the cities that simply put our town in a class by itself. They are, as a rule, highly cultured and successful people and their influence is necessarily elevating. Oh, of course, I'll admit that there is a certain wild young jazz element among them, as much as we regret it. But we never have any such rough stuff on the streets as you mention in the town where you lived."

"There isn't a town of its size in the state where they have such a wonderful school; where they send so many young folks away to the colleges; where they hear such sermons and lectures and enjoy so many city privileges as we do right there in that town. And we've got to admit that the credit for much of this is due to the summer resort business and the people who go there. We never could have had such a school if it were not for the vast amount of valuable resort property which pays half our taxes. Same way with our library and lots of other things."

"But coming back to the town itself," said Thrift, "I am of the opinion that one would have to travel some to find a place that averages up any better. The summers are simply marvelous, and for pure water and real scenery, we've got the world beat to a frazzle. Best harbor on the lakes, wonderful auto roads through the country and along the shore, and—" right there Shift straightened up and took notice—"and everything to make it a desirable place to live," continued Thrift. "And even the winters are not so bad. Of course we have snow, and sometimes it gets as cold as in Chicago, but not often. At any rate we know about what to expect, and get ready for it, and then we really enjoy it. We wear winter clothes and—it's a kind of joke up there, but you know some of the women actually wear underclothes when the weather gets down around fifteen below—of course some would rather freeze."

"But we never have any trouble about finding something to do; that is for anybody who really wants to do something or knows how to do anything. Our stores do a fair business all winter, and as for amusements! Why, say, there's something on all the time; all the way from private parties to lodge suppers, club gatherings, picture shows and high school lecture course. And the women's societies! They're so thick that they can't find days enough in the week for all their meetings."

"But if we ever do run out of something to do, there's the fine little library that is free to every one, and there's no possible excuse for anybody to loaf."

"But say," Thrift continued, "the real fun comes when the harbor and bay freeze over and we begin to enjoy the ice sports. We have the greatest ice fishing you ever saw; perch, trout and herring—and the skating and ice boating are immense. Of late years we have been holding a one-day ice carnival, and it—"

By this time Shift was looking wild eyed and excited. He twisted around and looked squarely into Mr. Thrift's eye.

"Say, Stranger," he stammered, with trembling voice, "What the heck are you givin' us? What town is that where you live?" And when Thrift told him there was a gasp and a gulp before Shift could speak. Then he struggled on. "Well, I'll be —, Why, say, man, that's the same town I left two years ago. It must have changed some since I left."

"That's possible," said Thrift. "Sometimes there's nothing that will change a town so much as to have some folks move out of it."

And behold, these two men had told Two Tales of a City.

Let the reader draw up his own conclusions as to what made the difference in their views.

"If you want to live in the kind of a town

Like the kind of a town you like, You needn't slip your clothes in a grip

And start on a long, long hike. You'll only find what you left behind.

For there's nothing that's really new, It's a knock at yourself when you knock your town;

It isn't your town, it's YOU. Real towns are not made by men afraid

Let somebody gets ahead. When everyone works and nobody shirks,

You can raise a town from the dead. And if, while you make your personal stake,

Your neighbor can make one, too, Your town will be what you want to see—

It isn't your town—it's YOU.

The Song of the Builders

ON every hand is heard the rattle of the builder's hammer and the rasp of his saw. Overnight, it seems, buildings rise—new streets appear.

And the thousands of new homes and great buildings increase the problems of the public service companies.

This Company attempts to foresee the great growth of service demand and extends its plant into new districts as rapidly as possible, in an effort to most efficiently serve the people of Michigan.

However, sudden unforeseen population and industrial growth frequently make it impossible to furnish utility service at all points immediately upon demand. Hundreds of new telephones are wanted. The Telephone Company's problem is the same as that of the water, sewer, gas, electric, street, and school services.

But Telephone Plant expansion is breaking all records. Thousands of new instruments are being installed, miles of new circuits are being built and additional exchange facilities are being provided, to meet the call for service.

Everything possible is being done to provide service for all who desire it.

WHEAT CROP IS IN GOOD SHAPE

WAS CONTINUOUSLY UNDER SNOW IN NORTH

Rye Also Makes Good Showing—Winter Killing Confined to Small Areas.

In central and northern counties wheat was continuously under snow from the first of the year up to the first of April, and should be in excellent condition. In the southern districts it was well protected with snow up to about the first of March, after which there were alternate periods of freezing and thawing, the ground being bare a part of the time. The reports received by Verne H. Church, Agricultural Statistician, and L. Whitney Watkins, Commissioner of Agriculture, indicate that local damage occurred in some southern counties, but the extent could not be determined at the time of the April 1 report. The majority of the reporters considered the condition favorable and that the injury was mainly local in extent. In several counties the Hessian fly did considerable damage last fall, which lowers the prospects in the sections affected. The average condition for the state was found to be 86 per cent, three per cent better than last year, and two per cent above the ten-year average.

The condition of the wheat crop for the country as a whole was 83 per cent. While it is too early to make an estimate of the probable production, this percentage represents a crop of 5,194,155,000 bushels. Last year's final estimate was 5,722,310,000 bushels. While the condition is better than it was last year on April 1, the average is considerably less.

The rye crop is reported in generally good condition in nearly all sections, winter-killing being confined to small areas and chiefly to hilly fields where the snow had blown off in southern counties. The April 1 average condition was 89 per cent, one per cent above the ten-year average and four per cent better than on the same date last year. However, the exact condition could not be determined until the snow disappeared and growth had started.

The average condition for the country as a whole was 83.5 per cent. If this condition remained until harvest time, the production would be approximately 59,135,000 bushels, or 4,000,000 bushels less than last year's. The average, like that of winter wheat, is less than in 1923. Following the spectacular increase in swine during 1922 and 1923, Michigan farmers are reducing their herds. The number of breeding sows now on farms is nine per cent less than last year, the present total being 177,000. High priced feed and the low prices received for hogs during the past season have been discouraging to the business. The decrease for the United States is even greater than in Michigan, there being nearly 11 per cent less on farms now than one year ago.

The supply of farm labor is rated at 67 per cent of normal, and the demand 79 per cent of normal, giving a ratio of supply to demand of 85 per cent, as compared with 71 per cent one year ago. High wages have reduced the demand and the remarkable activity in industrial lines for several years has depleted the farms of surplus labor. The average wages as reported are $43.20 per month with board, and $58.60 without board. Day wages average $2.55 with board and $3.50 without board.

The average wage paid throughout the country is $33.71 with board and $47.62 without board, or a little over 20 per cent less than Michigan farmers have to pay. The nation's supply of labor is placed at 83.4 per cent, and the demand at 90.4 per cent of normal.

"My Dear Mr. Oldham: Kindly convey to the members of your choir our appreciation of the music furnished by them at the funeral service held April 3rd.

It seemed to us most fitting in every detail—selection of familiar hymns, the sweetly solemn chant, and Chopin's wonderful march were in themselves a tribute of love to the departed. We thank each and every member.

Store Burns.

The ice cream and soft drink parlor and candy store operated by Mr. and Mrs. Milton Wilkes at Bay Shore, was burned Monday night. Mr. and Mrs. Wilkes, who used a part of the one-story building as a living apartment, escaped through the rear part of the building in their night clothes. Not a thing was saved. Some insurance was carried.

Get-Together Spirit.

A good way to make people love one another and to teach them to combine for general improvement is to give them a chance to get together for harmless fun that will refresh their bodies and soothe their minds, and if these are not the principal purposes of the church they are at least among its objects.—Brooklyn Standard-Union.

AT THE MOVIES

Fourteen outstanding thrills are reported in "The Midnight Alarm," the Vitagraph special production which will be shown at the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday. These thrills were tabulated by David Smith, the director, in calculating the superior audience value of his greatest picture.

These thrills are so interwoven with bits of romance and pathos and intrigue as to maintain the interest of the spectator at a high point throughout. A spectacular fire scene, a train crash, a near wreck of a train at a draw bridge, and a rescue of the heroine from a vault in a burning building are some of the high spots in this pulsating play.

REPORTS SHOW GOOD INCREASE

NORTH ANTRIM COW TESTER
GIVES MARCH FIGURES

Production Greater Than Last Month,
But Low Cream Prices Bring Down Net Profit.

The report for the month of March on the work of the North Antrim Cow Testing association shows a decided increase over the previous month, as would be expected with the increasing number of freshening cows and more favorable climatic conditions.

During the month of March 293 cows were on test, of which only 59 were dry, as compared with 81 dry in February. The average cow in the association produced 615 pounds of milk at an average test of 3.69 per cent and 22.71 pounds of butterfat and $2.77 net profit, as compared with 486 pounds of milk at an average test of 3.89 per cent and 18.9 pounds of fat with $2.30 net profit for the month of February.

No doubt it seems strange that the net profits are not greater with the increased production, but the unfortunate fact about the matter is that the increased production is following a lower price for cream and the feed prices are practically the same.

In the course of the month 54 cows produced over 1,000 pounds of milk, 25 made over 1,250 pounds, 32 cows produced over 42 pounds of butterfat, 4 cows made over 50 pounds of fat, 17 men kept daily milk records, 32 members out of the 33 fed grain, 9 separators were tested and 17 cows were sold, of which three were for beef. Three new cows were entered, one being a pure bred.

It is very unfortunate, to say the least, that the best cows of the community are not in the association, and furthermore, it seems to be time that the cows giving 3 pounds of fat a day or 14 quarts of milk twice a day as regular as the clock ticks, are not being tested. It is rather uncommon for a person in the field to buy cows who isn't immediately told that the cow gives at least 12 quarts of milk twice a day, testing between 4 and 5 per cent fat. You never heard of a cow testing less than 3 per cent if you are in search of one.

As a matter of fact, in nearly two years I have found only two cows that have ever given 14 quarts of milk twice a day, and have as yet to test one giving 3 pounds of fat a day, yet, in less than a month ten different men have told me sincerely that they had cows doing even better than that. Strange as it may seem, found on the milk takes up a lot of space, but don't weigh quite as much as milk.

Then again, many men say they can tell beyond the shadow of a doubt how rich in fat the milk is by simply looking at it. Men in the association don't claim to do that; neither do they claim to have 60 pounds of milk cows or even 3 pounds of fat-a-day cows, nor cows making a fortune in a little less time than it takes to tell it.

If you purchase a cow, how many times does she freshen within three months of the time set? How many men can tell absolutely by simply star gazing at a cow how much milk she will give? The answer is—join an association immediately and get on the right track. If you are of the type pictured above, it will bring you down from the skies with a broken neck and incidentally show you the way to better cows, through a new knowledge gained by being a member and based on records of performance—not on guess work.

F. H. Hemstreet had the highest cow for the month—a pure bred Holstein producing 61.5 pounds of butterfat. Tony Shook came next with a mixture cow at 55.6 pounds; Mettus Rubingh third, with a grade Guernsey at 50.9 pounds in 29 days; John Hennip, fourth, with a Holstein mixture at 50.2 pounds; Robert Watson, fifth, with a Durham mixture at 49.1 pounds; F. H. Hemstreet, sixth, with a pure bred Holstein at 48.9 pounds; Hitchcock Stock Farm, seventh, with a grade Durham at 48.7 pounds; Robert Watson, eighth and ninth, with two grade Guernseys at 48.3 and 48.1 pounds respectively, and D. H. Brat came tenth, with a pure bred Holstein at 48.1 pounds also.

Robert Watson had the highest herd for March—his eight grade Guernseys and Jerseys produced 40.08 pounds of fat, 932 pounds of milk at a test of 4.3 per cent, and $9.99 net profit per cow. D. H. Brat came next with his nine pure bred and grade Holsteins, making 36.28 pounds of fat, 1,219 pounds of milk at an average test of 2.98 and net profit of $7.03. Tony Shooks was third, with 12 Holsteins making 35.8 pounds of fat, and 1,062 pounds of milk at a test of 3.37, and $6.64 net profit. The next in order are Peter Wieland, with nine pure bred and grade Holsteins, Herma Leevers with seven Holsteins, Edward Fillosson (Continued on Page 7).

WHERE AND WHO IS THIS MR. TENNISON?

Ellsworth Co-op. Members After Public Pulse Writer.

A reward of one silver plated cork screw, slightly used but in good working order, is being offered by the Banks Marketing Association for information as to the identity of the person signing himself or herself "A. J. Tennison" and claiming to reside at Ellsworth, this state, over whose signature a letter was published in the Public Pulse column of the Grand Rapids Press, date of April 16th.

Said writer took a good two-handed slam at the local co-ops in which the association was blamed for high taxes, high rate of interest at banks, low prices for produce and high prices for feed and seeds, and in fact, blaming the Ellsworth Co-operative association for nearly everything except causing the world war and being the cause of the hoof and mouth disease.

Evidently the writer knew that practically all statements made in the letter were pure "bunk," and for that reason assigned a fictitious name, as there is not at present, and in the memory of the oldest residents, never has been, an A. J. Tennison living in this community. If any one of that name can be found, finder will confer a favor as well as win a useful reward by notifying Ennes Schoover, manager of the local farm association, or any director in the concern.

with five Holsteins, Ernest Loehne with six Jerseys, John Jansen with six Jerseys; Hans DeYoung with seven Holsteins, and George Rubbing with nine cows. The first six names mentioned all made over 30 pounds of fat per cow.

D. H. Brat's herd had highest milk production, averaging 1,219 pounds of milk per cow. Tony Shooks next—his cows producing 1,062 pounds of milk per cow.

D. H. Brat had highest producer of milk, a pure bred Holstein producing 1,851 pounds of milk for the month. F. H. Hemstreet next, with a pure bred Holstein producing 1,758 pounds of milk.

For the first eight months, Ernest Loehne still has the high cow on butterfat production with a pure bred Jersey producing 367.1 pounds. Next, D. H. Brat with a grade Holstein at 272.1 pounds. Others above 250 pounds of fat are John Hennip with a grade Durham at 260.4; Ernest Loehne with a pure bred Jersey at 259.7, and D. H. Brat with a grade Holstein at 253.2 pounds of fat.

In net profit for eight months Ernest Loehne's cow has made $93.22, next Tony Shook's with a mixture of $65.13. The following have cows making over $60: John Hennip, Hermann Heeres, 2 cows, Robert Watson and Earl Burns.

It is a mighty hard combination to combine a large milk flow with a hard test, but Tony Shooks has been fortunate enough to possess one. Buying three cows at the same time, one of these cows has made $65 in five months time including one dry month, and is second in the association with all the other cows on test eight months. Of the three cows she was purchased at the least price and for the last two months has made more than the other two combined.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Mr. Austin is in receipt of a letter from Mr. Treloar, director of the Northern Michigan Tournament, which is a statement of the financial side of the recent basketball tournament held at Petoskey. It is given below:

Total receipts	$2271.62
Total expenses	1276.71
Balance	991.71
Less entry fees to be returned	115.00
Amount to be pro-rated	876.91
Refund at 80 per cent	850.09
Balance on hand	26.82

The report of attendance at the high school for the past month was very gratifying. The percentage of attendance was nearly 97 per cent. Over 66 per cent of the students were neither tardy nor absent. There was only one case of tardiness. Cooperation of the parents may greatly better this good record.

Baseball prospects for this year are very bright. Practically all last year's men are on the job again and in addition some promising new material, as well as some old timers returned.

The game with Central Lake last Friday was a good "conditioner" for the boys and revealed some of the weak spots that will have to be doctored up before next Friday's game. The boys are working out daily, rain or shine and are out to retrieve last year's defeat at the hands of East Jordan when they meet them on the home grounds next Friday afternoon.

A full schedule of games will be played from now until the close of the season, with a possibility of a southern trip the week following the close of school.

Come out Friday and see the boys in action. They appreciate your support.

Among the new courses being offered for next year will be those of Economics and Expression. The former is of vital interest to all students, since it touches the things of everyday life and problems confronting everyone as an individual and as a citizen. This course will continue throughout the year. The Expression course will include drills in correct pronunciation and enunciation and the reading of selections from our best literature and practice in oratory. Both of these courses will be taught by Mrs. Rose.

POMONA AND WILSON GRANGES TO MEET

At Wilson Hall Next Saturday Afternoon and Evening.

Charlevoix County Pomona Grange will meet with Wilson Grange at the Wilson Grange hall on Saturday, April 26th, for afternoon and evening sessions.

The program for the afternoon session, which commences at 2:30, fast time, is as follows: Song, America; Welcome, S. R. Nowland; Response, T. S. Barber; Recitation, Ruby Hardy; Music, Mrs. H. L. Wilson; A Farm Organization, Alice Smatts; Remarks by Mr. Kiefer and an address by A. J. Suffern, East Jordan banker, on "The Relations of the Banker to the Farmer." A cordial invitation is extended to all in attendance to remain to supper. If this is not possible, hurry back, so as not to miss any of the evening program.

At the evening session, which begins at 8 o'clock, fast time, the following is the order of events: Community singing; roll call, "Which is the most use to a community—a kicker, a critic or an indifferent person?" Recitation, Helen Hardy; Saxophone solo, Loton Wilson; Dialogue, Zola Barber and Melba Sutton; Duet, Mesdames Secord and Smatts; Address, H. L. Barnum (Cadillac Exchange), "The why of a five-year contract for marketing Michigan potatoes;" Discussion, led by Eugene Stroud, into which it is desired that many will enter, as it is a very timely topic and one that all potato growers will be asked to consider in the very near future.

For all the news, read the Courier.

The acre not producing at least $175 worth of pickles is not doing nearly what it should. Acreage will be heavy. Adv. 17-11

The KITCHEN CABINET

(© 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

Of all pleasures, none is so satisfying as the full enjoyment of our common humanity. It loosens the swaddling clothes that wrap us round; it alone gives us freedom.

A FEW HOT PUDDINGS

A simple pudding easy to prepare and well liked by all, is:

Cottage Pudding.—Cream two tablespoonfuls of butter, add three-fourths of a cupful of sugar gradually, one beaten egg, and alternate one-half cupful of milk with one and a quarter cup of sifted flour well sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Bake in a small dripping pan and cut into squares to serve, hot. For the sauce, take three-fourths of a cupful of sugar, add two tablespoonfuls of flour and when well blended add one-half cupful of boiling water. Cook until the starch in the flour is well cooked, then add a tablespoonful of butter and a fourth of a teaspoonful of grated nutmeg, three tablespoonfuls of vinegar. Serve boiling hot over the hot pudding.

Betty's Pudding.—Take one and one-half cupfuls of flour, one cupful each of chopped suet, brown sugar, raisins, currants or chopped prunes, grated carrot, grated potato, one grated lemon, one-half cupful of chopped orange peel, one-half teaspoonful of nutmeg, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one teaspoonful of cloves. Mix all well and steam three hours.

Oats Pudding.—Beat two eggs, add one cupful each of sugar, chopped dates and broken walnut meats, one teaspoonful of baking powder, one teaspoonful of vanilla, three tablespoonfuls of flour, three tablespoonfuls of milk. Mix and bake in a slow oven forty minutes. Serve with foamy sauce or sweetened whipped cream.

Chocolate Pudding.—Beat one egg, add one-half cupful of sugar, one cupful of milk, add to one and one-half cupfuls of flour sifted with three teaspoonfuls of baking powder and a little salt. Add two squares of melted chocolate and steam one and one-half hours. Serve with:

Foamy Sauce.—Cream two tablespoonfuls of butter, add one cupful of powdered sugar, one beaten egg, a pinch of salt, a teaspoonful of flavoring and one cupful of whipped cream. If cream is not at hand pour a cupful of hot milk over the egg and other ingredients and beat until foamy.

Cause of Root Knot and Way to Control

Much Damage Done Crops by Disease of Plants.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A serious disease of plants known as root knot and root gall causes immense damage in all except the most northern parts of this country, says the United States Department of Agriculture, and attention should be directed to the continued spread of this disease in order that effective measures may be adopted for its control. Root knot is the cause of serious damage to many crops. The extent of the damage is difficult to estimate, since it is both direct and indirect and in many cases is overlooked entirely. The direct damage is that caused to the growing crops. The indirect damage results from the fact that the presence of the disease makes it impracticable to grow certain crops which are particularly susceptible to injury.

The disease is fully discussed in a new bulletin issued by the United States Department of Agriculture as Farmers' Bulletin 1315. Control methods suggested vary under different conditions. Some crops are resistant to the disease and these may be used on infested soil. The disease may be eliminated in green houses and seed-beds by the application of steam under high pressure or by the introduction of uninfested soil into clean whitewashed benches. The home vegetable garden of the South can very well be brought back into productivity by a special grain and chicken-garden rotation.

Those interested in this subject may secure the bulletin, while the supply lasts, from the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Profitable for Farmers to Begin Raising Colts

That the time has arrived when the farmer will find it profitable to begin raising the colts which will be needed soon to replace the old horses on his farm, and that should he raise a few more than he needs of the good dependable draft type, they will be readily salable at a profitable price by the time they reach a salable age, are outstanding conclusions drawn by W. H. Peters, chief of the division of animal husbandry, University of Minnesota, in Special Bulletin No. 80, entitled, "The Colt as Profitable Farm Product," and issued by the agricultural extension service. Mr. Peters contends it will not be long until the purchasing power or value of horses will start definitely upward. Old horses are dying off much more rapidly than colts are coming on to take their places, he says. In this new bulletin of 20 pages Mr. Peters not only analyzes present-day problems in horse raising, but discusses the feeding and care of horses. Copies of the bulletin can be had without cost upon application to the office of publication, University Farm, St. Paul.

Winter Water Supply Is Important for Poultry

The modern hen eats a balanced dry mash for egg production, but it takes water to wash down that mash. So it pays to keep a galvanized pail of fresh water near the mash hopper. If the pail is placed in a small wooden store box just a little wider than the diameter of the pail, it will not be tipped over when the hens jump up on the side.

If iron pails are used for winter drinking fountains you have a receptacle that is easy to secure and clean. A little boiling water and a few corn cobs will soon scrub the scum from the drinking pails and make the water more healthful and appetizing. Hens relish clean water and drink more of it when the fresh supply arrives. The use of clean pails is a great help in keeping down the spread of respiratory diseases.

Timely Farm Hints

Keep the pigs free from lice.

Do not pasture clay lands while wet.

Do not allow sheep to take the cold rains.

When exposed farm machinery meets winter weather the result is junk.

Keep all of the young animals growing by supplying abundant ration, relatively high in protein.

Sanitation and prevention is the best insurance against such contagious diseases as hog cholera.

Keep the live stock sheltered and bedded during the rainy times, and thus save feed and fatalities from pneumonias.

Large boxes, barrels, or shelters are provided as nests for geese, or they are allowed to make nests on the floor of the house.

Hens are never so happy as when they are knee-deep in straw or chaff, scratching for kernels of grain. This happiness is what makes them profitable, too.

Have pullets and hens in good flesh and condition for heavy egg production. Make the house clean, warm, well ventilated, dry. Feed a good balanced ration.

First Washout of Season.

The first railroad washout of the season in Northern Michigan came late Thursday afternoon, when flood waters coming out of the woods and swamps undermined a short portion of track on the G. With the campaign to remove unsightly advertising signs from America's roads well under way, attention may well be turned to the character of signs and sign posts marking the roads to show their destination and distance.

The historic "sign post" is of wood, with a board nailed to the side, ending in a rude representation of a pointing hand. The board bears upon its face, usually in weather obliterated letters, the name of the next town.

Such a marker was all right for a trail, or a wagon road, but it is as much out of place on a fine hard road as an ox cart among automobiles. Modern practice dictates that signs and posts should be permanent, slightly, plain as to information conveyed, sturdy and artistic.

For national highways, a beautiful bronze sign post has already been designed by a famous sculptor. Road associations interested in some particular road have distinctive markers, in many cases of a high degree of art and beauty, as well as utility.

The Old Oregon Trail, for instance, which it is proposed to improve from the Missouri to the Columbia, is now in process of being marked with signs of real beauty and significance.

Professor Fairbanks, of the University of Oregon, designed the marker, showing a typical covered wagon, and a sign is particularly appropriate for this trail, which is the route followed by early day pioneers in their exodus from the east.

States to Oregon and Washington in the late forties and early fifties.

It is not necessary to wait for some large association to design or place markers. Every town can help by seeing to it that the sign posts along its entering and leaving roads are plain as to intent, yet handsome and distinctive.

Placing such markers embodies the spirit of welcome to the tourist, which is "good business" for any town, and is most excellent work for local civic organizations to take up and follow through.

THE JAP OVERFLOW

The Japanese immigration problem results from a situation in Japan much like that of England and Italy. There is a vigorous, prolific race, multiplying so rapidly as to overflow its confines and seek economic relief through emigration.

England has a great advantage in sending forth its great emigrant waves while there are vast, fruitful areas in the world unoccupied, or occupied only by a sparse and barbarous population. Italy was a great colonization country in olden days, but came into the modern colonial age rather late. Japan came latest of all, when the "great open spaces" had nearly all been seized and tagged by western nations.

The Japs have no important colonial possession except Formosa. That is a rich island, but for some reason or other the Japanese do not seem to flourish there. Unfortunately they are most attracted to America, where they can come only by "infiltration," and where that process is stubbornly resisted because the two races do not mix.

The United States has a perfect right to bar the Japanese, proportionately or absolutely. It is unfortunate, however, for both countries that there is not some way whereby the Japanese overflow of population could be taken care of without turning this way.

The natural habitat of the Japanese is Asia, and there are not only great commercial opportunities in that continent, but great areas inviting pioneer development. That is especially true of Siberia. It would be a fine thing in many ways if the Japanese race could expend its energies and numbers on that great, undeveloped country, as we have expended ours in the last century on western America.

unqualified support in the election of the candidates of the party when they shall be nominated.

RESOLVED FURTHER, That we recommend to the electorate for their support for nomination and election, candidates whose Republicanism is well known and who pledge themselves to stand by the platform of the party in state, district and national affairs.

RESOLVED FURTHER, That we sincerely mourn the passing of Judge W. F. Mayne, an esteemed public citizen, faithful and active Republican, a conscientious public officer, and that in his demise we suffer a distinct loss.

RESOLVED FURTHER, That we unqualifiedly endorse the candidacy of Senator Wm. J. Pearson to succeed himself and pledge him our unanimous support.

A. J. DUNCANSON,
J. M. HARRIS,
H. C. MEYERS,
E. A. RUEGSEGER.

The nominating committee reports as follows:

Delegates to the State Convention: L. H. White, chairman; R. L. Lewis, Chas. H. Emery, Frank Thompson, L. G. Balch, Dr. Hugh W. Dicken.

Delegates to the District Convention: Wm. J. Pearson, chairman, J. M. Harris, W. J. Gallagher, F. A. Kenyon, Lisle Shanahan, Geo. Weaver.

Also that the delegates to the District Convention act as alternates to the State Convention and that the State delegates act as alternate delegates to the District Convention.

One serious criticism however, remains to be made regarding the convention itself and those who drew up the resolutions we have just read.

According to those who attended, it was an unusual convention. No caucuses were held—at any rate in this city, nor was any permanent or temporary chairman appointed for the convention. This, of course, is due to carelessness somewhere.

In accordance with the usage sanctioned by time, custom and law, each county is supposed to have a county committee with a permanent chairman and secretary, and its membership composed of one delegate from every voting precinct in the county.

The county committee is supposed to see to it that caucuses are regularly called and delegates regularly elected to represent the people.

The procedure followed at the Boyne City convention is the chief fault of the old convention system and those who are talking of abolishing the primary election would be discouraged on seeing the way the old convention system still operates.

No caucuses held. No delegates elected in regular fashion. Truly a "rump" affair.

PICKLE CLUB NOW FORMING

CASH PRIZES OFFERED FOR HIGHEST CASH CROPS

Plan Fostered by Charlevoix Pickle
Co. to Stimulate Interest in the Crop.

The newly organized Charlevoix Pickle & Produce Company is getting up a cash prize pickle club to stimulate interest in the raising of this crop in the Charlevoix district.

Mr. A. J. Stetter, the proprietor and manager of the concern, has furnished us with data on this subject which we are reproducing for the benefit of our readers.

The success of any crop depends to a large extent upon certain fundamental factors, such as—

- 1—Proper preparation of seed bed.
- 2—Right time of planting seed.
- 3—Correct way of planting seed.
- 4—Proper cultivation and care.

These factors are as important in pickles as they are in corn, beans, or in fact any other crop. And pickles are unusually good in their response—the better they are taken care of, the better they will take care of you.

As an extra incentive to you to have one of the better fields, three cash prizes are offered in addition to the regular prizes which you will receive as per agreement.

At the prices paid, and when grown and thinned right, the acre not producing at least $175 worth of pickles is not doing nearly what it should. Many growers make more than this year after year. One three-acre field—thinned out to one stalk in each hill—gave $1,566.19 in 1921, or almost $400 per acre.

Rules.

1. Anyone who signs an agreement becomes a member.
2. You may enroll as a member by securing an agreement as late as June 10th, 1924, providing we still have some acreage open at that time. Our tank capacity will handle only 150 acres at Charlevoix.
3. Boys and girls are as eligible as men and women.
4. Seed for planting will be furnished free, on basis of 1 1/4 pounds per acre.
5. If two members of one family take two agreements, then in order to be considered in this plan, their fields must be separate, and pickles must be delivered under separate names as per agreements.
6. Fields must be subject to inspection during the season by the Charlevoix Pickle and Produce Co. In case of a tie in cash received to September 30th from any two or more fields reported to be the same size, then actual measurement of those fields shall be made by The Charlevoix Pickle and Produce Co. (Continued on Page 8).

FIRE DESTROYS MORE TIMBER THAN IS CUT

Fire has destroyed more timber than the loggers have cut, is the statement of A. K. Chittenden of the Forestry department of Michigan Agricultural College.

"Each year the forest fires in the United States destroyed or damaged enough lumber to build five-room houses for the entire city of San Francisco or Washington," Prof. Chittenden said.

The loss from fire, Prof. Chittenden believes, would not be so disastrous but for the fact that the demand for lumber is far ahead of production. Hardwood is being used four times as fast as it is being produced, he said, and soft woods are being used eight and a half times as fast as they are growing.

"The land covered by forest fires each year is equivalent to a strip 10 miles wide extending from New York City to Denver, Colorado," Prof. Chittenden said. "This same area annually has a timber loss eight times greater than that which took place in France during the World War."

The end of forest fires in Michigan will come only by the exercise of the greatest care by all persons traveling in the timber zones, and actual work of reforestation can begin only when fires are ended, Prof. Chittenden said. Camp fires, cigars, cigarettes, and carelessly dropped matches are the principal sources of forest ruin, he said.

MISS MADDAUGH IS NOW MRS. NOWLAND

Married in Detroit to Former Charlevoix Man.

Mrs. Charles H. Maddaugh of Boyne City, formerly of East Jordan, announces the marriage of her daughter, Florence Irene, to Maurice Ira Nowland, the ceremony taking place on Friday, April 11th, at Detroit. The young couple will be at home to their many friends, after April 15th, at No. 33 Geneva Court Apartments, 403 Geneva avenue, Detroit.

Mrs. Nowland is well known here, having graduated from the County Normal and taught in the Adams Lake district and in the Washington school of this city. Lately she has been teaching at Hamtramck. Mr. Nowland is a former Charlevoix boy, who has been working in the Ford factory at Detroit for a year or so past.

The Courier extends to the newly wedded pair its heartiest congratulations and best wishes for a long and happy future.

SOUND KNELL OF SIMPLE GOITRE

IODIZED TABLE SALT NOW ON THE MARKET

While a Preventative, It Will Not Cure Already Diseased Thyroid Glands.

That simple goitre will become a thing of the past in Michigan when the new iodized table salt comes into general use throughout the state, is the prediction of health authorities. The salt, manufactured especially for Michigan use by all of the salt companies of the state, is already on sale in the cities, and wholesale grocers promise that by May 1 it will be in the hands of all retail dealers.

"The introduction of iodized table salt is one of the most important events in Michigan's public health history," says Dr. R. M. Olin, Commissioner of Health. "Michigan, like Switzerland, is coming to be internationally known for the prevalence of thyroid enlargement. It is one of our most urgent, and yet simplest public health problems, and we believe that the solution has been found in iodized salt."

Simple goitre is generally conceded by health authorities to be a nutritional rather than a medical condition. The enlargement of the thyroid gland is due to a deficiency in the diet of an element—iodine—essential to its normal functioning. Michigan soil, unlike that of most states, lacks iodine, and therefore Michigan water and Michigan grown vegetables show the same deficiency, and a high percentage of thyroid enlargement is the result.

The iodized salt looks exactly like ordinary salt, tastes the same, and costs only a trifle more. It differs in just one important particular, it contains .02 of one percent of sodium iodide, the element that is lacking in Michigan's food and water supply. Health authorities emphasize the fact that the salt is a preventative and will not take the place of medical treatment for the diseased thyroid.

HIS HENRY WON'T CARRY MOONSHINE

Ran Into Ditch, Snorting Indignantly
The While.

James Talbot, who claimed to be a native of Petoskey, engaged in the sale of clothing, was picked out of the ditch on the Boyne City road, with the remains of his dilapidated bus, last Saturday afternoon, and brought to the county jail by Sheriff Novak, to answer to the charges of driving a car while under the influence of liquor and having in his possession a bottle of moonshine and part of a jug of hard cider.

The spot where Mr. Talbot and his rusty steed of 1916 vintage answering to the name of "Henry" were found is just this side of the Ayres Road farm. He threw away the bottle of moonshine as the sheriff drove in view, but it failed to break and stood as mute evidence against him.

At the hearing held Monday afternoon before Justice Cooper, the convivial gentleman was assessed a fine of $50 and costs, which he paid.

JORDAN TEAM GETS TRIMMED

GAME OF SEASON

Cunningham Pitches Steady Game—
Bugs Two Home Runs—Dagwell and Bacot One Each.

The red and white team copped off its second baseball game here Friday afternoon when it cleaned up on East Jordan by a 9-point margin. The local nine seems to be stepping through in fine shape and a marked improvement over last week's half was noted Friday, all of which goes to show that they are on the right road to Northern Michigan baseball supremacy.

The abundance of material which was at hand this spring has been ably coached and managed by Mr. Hamilton. In Cunningham and Dagwell a fine pair of pitchers have been developed and "Doc" Todd is wielding a wicked mitt behind the bat.

In batting the team is also well rounded, as is shown by the four home runs bagged last Friday. So if you see any heavy set stranger around town with big cigars and flat feet, you can make up your mind that it's a Sox scout getting a line on those home run enthusiasts.

East Jordan was crippled by the absence of a consistent pitcher and have not put out their usual brand of a ball team.

LO, THE POOR AUTOMOBILIST

Legislators Burn the Midnight Oil, Framing Rules to Perplex and Harass Him.

There are at the present moment thousands of men, who are us, in the forests of good lumber and oceans of ink, with which they are making sign boards bearing the legend:

No parking here.
Parking here for 5-3-4 minutes only, between the hours of 6 a. m. and 7 p. m.

Safety zone—no parking.
Limit, 4 minutes, and so on, ad infinitum.

There are at least 10,000 legislators burning the midnight oil, trying to think up laws with which to harass the automobilist.

There are millions and millions of cops—excuse me, policemen—whose eagle eyes are ever watchful for the autoist who dares to attempt to break one of the thousands of more or less useful auto laws.

The greatest menace of the day and of all history is the daredevil automobilist! A greater menace is he than the dragons of old; than the pestilences of the middle ages; than the dreadnoughts and poison gases of modern times!—and he must be stifled, choked, kept in line!

But between you and me—have you ever seen a more orderly set than these terrible automobilists? Have you ever seen a more docile lot than these menaces, who quietly and patiently obey the curt commands of the traffic officer? Consider the European driver, who knows no right and no left, who drives as his fancy wills and his convenience dictates. Imagine any American driver steering in that way.

In all your travels, how many machines have passed you that were going at the breakneck speed of 30, 40, 45 miles an hour? You millions of drivers of motor propelled vehicles how many times have you crushed out the lives of careful and painstaking—pedestrians—who look where they are going and go where they are looking? You terrible menaces at the wheel, how often do you step on the gas when passing an intersecting road or when you hit a hidden curve?

Yet laws are being ground out every day to take out every vestige of enjoyment that there may be in motoring. To be within the law, you should drive in second speed out in the country, in low speed when passing a village, and you should get out and push when going through a city. You must blow your little horn at every intersecting road and street to which you may come. You should come to a dead stop at every intersection to see that no vehicles on your right hand desire to pop out (in Massachusetts, at least). And when you get into the city proper, watch out for the parking signs!

You have six minutes to get an ice cream soda; and you drive up to the curb, hop out of the boat and look over the parking signs. Too bad! "No Parking Here." You drive up a little further and go through the same procedure, only to find "No Parking" signs stuck up within a radius of a half mile. Finally, after nearing the outskirts of the city, you find a sign, "Parking for 15 Minutes Only." It will take you

BOYNE CITY MEETING ENDORSES ADMINISTRATION

While a Sort of "Rump" Affair, County's Political Stand is Outlined

The Republican County Convention met at Boyne City on the 23rd day of April, 1924, and formulated an expression of their political stand as follows:

"The Republicans of Charlevoix county assembled in convention this 23rd day of April, 1924, for the purpose of selecting delegates to the District and State Conventions, adopts the following resolutions:

"RESOLVED, That the Republicans of Charlevoix county view with intense satisfaction the resultant prosperity of the country under the last term of Republican administration; and are gratified to note, among other evidences of the efficiency of our national administration, the conversion of an increasing deficit in the administration expenses to one of substantial surplus in the revenues over expenses; that this has been accomplished through a reduction in governmental expenses by the cutting off of useless political employees installed in office by the Democrats during two administrations;

the adoption of the Republicans of a budget system during their administration; the adoption of a workable tariff law and the coordination of the various governmental branches, cutting out duplication and thereby reducing expenses and, in this way, promoting the resultant surplus of revenues over expenses that has not been seen in the administration of the government since 1912.

"RESOLVED FURTHER, That we, as Republicans, recognize the supreme sacrifice in the execution of the great responsibility and the regulation of government affairs by the late President Harding, whose sacrifice consisted in the giving of himself to the duties of his office to such an extent as to cost him his life, and we mourn his loss to his party and country.

"RESOLVED FURTHER, That we recognize in his successor a typical American who uses for his motto, "Service My Aim," and who, in sounding the keynote of the coming campaign for presidency, dedicates himself to the task of restoring to America its lost or forgotten ideals.

"RESOLVED FURTHER, That the country and the Republican party should be congratulated in having such a leader as President Coolidge, who will steer the ship of state through the depths of scandal and calumny, heaped upon both the faithful and the unfaithful of the party, by a critical Democratic minority, assisted by opportunists, who have used the faith of the masses in the Republican party and its traditions to secure for themselves an election or appointment to the congress, and then refused to abide by its principles and to consult with its leaders and to support, in times of stress, its great president.

"RESOLVED FURTHER, That we endorse the administration of the government and the state officers in the administration of the government and state affairs.

"RESOLVED FURTHER, That, with the splendid record of achievement of the party and its leaders before us, we again confidently urge upon the electorate of the state their (Continued on page two) you would be wrecked on the second bounce!

Returning to the handsome traffic officers, (may their tribe increase) have you ever struck one that yells at you, "Hey, there, git a move on; you're blockin' the traffic. Come on, git a-goin'?" And just as you get her rolling decently you reach the next corner, where another of these guardian angels pushes a big hand in your face and yells in tones utterly unbecoming to an officer and a gentleman, "Whoa, there, you. Where's the fire? What's your rush? Think this world was made for you?" And if you believe in "the land of the free and the home of the brave," try to answer him; try to explain the other officer's attitude; try to "talk back." Try and do it! Oh, boy!

In addition to discovering ways and means by which to keep brakes down on the devilish automobilist, the wise legislators of our fair and beautiful land are engaged in another interesting indoor sport. The name of this new pastime is taxes, and the gentleman who discovers the most things to tax on the automobile, its needs and accessories, wins the Indian rubber pen point. The result is that everything in or on or about the machine is subject to taxation. Your motor is taxed in proportion to the number of knobs; your Klixon in proportion to the volume of sound; your gasoline in proportion to the volume of water. One of these fine days they will even tax the squeaks. So much for a body squeak, 10 per cent extra for a squeak in your springs, 20 per cent for a motor rattle, and valium.

In the last few years another persecution has been added to the glad lot of the automobile owner. Insurance. Just because the number of thieves and incendiaries and fellows who drive their machines into the creek has increased, the insurance companies have increased the premiums to almost unbearable dimensions for the 47 varieties of insurance that are necessary for the safe running of the car. Again the innocent suffer for the guilty. Again the motorist is soaked.

And let us not forget the kind hearted tire and battery manufacturers, with their guarantees that are good until they have to make good. They will give you a new tire or battery—oh yes, if you will swear out seven affidavits as to the number of miles you have driven; if you will prove to them just the kind of roads you go over; showing just where and how and whether it rained or not. Then they examine the brakes and the angle of your wheels and test your ability as a chauffeur (which you are not) and finally, if they are perfectly satisfied they will sell you another battery at a cost exceeding the original price of the article. Of course there are honest manufacturers of tires, tubes, batteries, spark plugs, and the hundred and one things that are needed in a motor car, but in the pathetic words of the late Bert Williams, "Somewhere the sun am shinin,—but where—Where?"

When we were young we stuck our curly head into a book, and in imagination followed the hero, riding his trusty steed, in his adventures with dragons and bandit barons and ogres. Now that we are older and have a rusty steed of our own, we in reality face the same old ogres, but nowadays they wear overalls and own garages. And woe to the hero who falls into their fearsome hands.

He is driving along peacefully, with the sun shining brightly overhead and the tank full of gasoline, and the prospect of a long day's outing ahead, when the motor develops one of those squeaks that so grate on the nerves by their intermittent regularity and increasing volume.

He stops at the next garage and meekly explains the noise to the ogre in charge. The ogre nonchalantly raises the hood, taps the mechanism here, taps it there, produces his stethoscope, listens to the vital organs of the poor little motor; and then with a long, long face pronounces the patient subject to cataleptic fits, any one of which may prove fatal if not cured immediately by the specialist in charge. It is also suffering from leakage of the piston rings, cylinder appendicitis, and consumption of the carburetor. A delicate and most serious operation must take place before the car goes

Don't Waste Another Day.

When you are worried by backache, lameness and urinary disorders—

Don't experiment with untried medicine.

Use Doan's Pills.

Here's Charlevoix testimony.

Verify it if you wish.

Mrs. John Cook, 307 Mason St., says: "I have used Doan's Pills for symptoms of kidney disorder and backache and they have always given me splendid results. I am glad to recommend Doan's, for they certainly are a splendid kidney remedy."

OVER EIGHT YEARS LATER, Mrs. Cook said: "I haven't had occasion to use Doan's for some time, as they made a cure for me which has proven lasting."

another yard, also he will not answer for the consequence. "Of course, you don't hafta take my word for it, but y'ast me and—(sigh)—I tol' ye."

Then comes the moment of decision to our hero. To go on and risk it with the wife and nine little children, who will most surely be stranded somewhere in the dead of night with help miles and miles away; or get it over with and operate. The age old problem of the sick. Our hero would risk it—but the nine little children! What of them? So he leaves his treasure at the ogre's castle and in his mercy and trolleys disconsolately back home with the brood.

The next few days are spent in fear and trepidation, and finally at the appointed time our hero returns to get the boat. The ogre welcomes him back, and wiping the sweat from his weary brows, relates how the operation was made in the nick of time and now the patient is as well as new.

Our hero jauntily hops into the seat and starts the engine going. Beautiful! Sings like a bird and hitting on all four cylinders! He turns to the ogre and cheerily calls for his bill. Then, ah then, the ogre shows his true colors. He has our hero in the palm of his hand, and the palpitating heart of the victim almost stops completely as the long list is handed to him.

Spring bolts and ring bolts and stung bolts and bunk bolts. Spark plugs and dark plugs and cut plugs. Gaskets and baskets and caskets. Jack screws, back screws, front screws, enough screws to make him nutty. Enough parts to make a new car and have sufficient left over to furnish out half another one. And at the bottom of the list a little item for "labor" at $1.50 per hour, three-quarters of which must have been spent in thinking up parts to place on the bill.

Our hero timidly attempts to remonstrate. He shows him that he could buy two cars for the amount of the bill. He offers to let the man keep the car off the bill and throw in a cup of coffee, but in vain. Who can argue or plead with an ogre? So our hero mortgages the little bungalow and the nine little children and drives off—with the squeak.

There are over 10,000,000 automobilists in this country, all patiently bending under various restrictions. Every year it becomes harder and harder to maintain and drive a car. Yet there is not one among these millions who has offered a word of protest.

Where is the Moses who will lead us through this wilderness? Where is the leader who will resist these incursions on the natural rights of the motorist? Where will we find the Solomon who will formulate laws that will chastise the guilty, careless, reckless driver, and yet will not assail the liberties of the great majority—the ordinary man who tries to do the right things? Where?

AT THE MOVIES

Cast of "The Purple Highway."

The cast of the Paramount picture, "The Purple Highway," featuring Madge Kennedy, which comes to the Palace Theatre next Tuesday, includes Monte Blue, leading man; Vincent Coleman, Pedro de Cordoba, Dore Davidson, Emily Fitzroy, William H. Tooker, Winifred Harris, John W. Jenkins and Charles Kent. The picture is an adaptation of the stage play, "Dear Me." Henry Kolker was the director, and George Weber and Henry Cronjager did the photography.

The story of a fireman's life is said to be remarkably well described in the William Fox screen version of "Cupid's Fireman," adapted from the story, "Andy McGee's Chorus Girl," by Richard Harding Davis. Charles Jones has the principal role, with Marian Nixon opposite. The picture comes to the Palace Theatre next Wednesday.

Not a Gun is Fired in This Fine Western Play.

A peculiar feature about "The Man Next Door," which will be shown at the Palace Theatre on Saturday next, is that, although written by Emerson Hough, a pioneer in the west and author of stories written around western types and characters, not a shot is fired from beginning to end. Like nearly all of Hough's stories, "The Man Next Door" is western in subject, and while several of his characters go armed, even when they visit the large cities, not a gun is fired, and no one is shot, or even wounded. The leading roles are played by David Torrence, Frank Sheridan, Jimmy Morrison and Alice Calhoun. Victor Schertzinger directed the picture for Vitaphone.

Dear Friend:

The Board of Directors of your Co-operative Marketing association at a special meeting held recently, favored the new "long-time" potato marketing plan.

THE LIGHTEST AIRPLANE
Air gliders have become an old story, though Americans are strangely slow in taking them up. There is something new and suggestive, though, in the adaptation of tiny engines to the glider type, by the Germans who began this gliding business. The latest example of the sort is remarkable.

Two German engineers are credited with a flight of 75 miles in a glider equipped with a motor of only seven-ninths horse power. With that absurdly low power, they not only covered the distance mentioned, but rose to a height of 3,600 feet and remained in the air for over two hours.

The cost of travel in such an equipage would hardly be worth considering. It represents, no doubt, the cheapest travel in the world. Such an example is sure to have a big effect on aviation development, emphasizing as it does the value of light, buoyant plane construction and the use of small, light engines. Such an air car as the one used in this experiment may become the "flier" of the future, though far less expensive than automobile "fliers" are now.

AN OUTDOOR POLICY
There is one policy of the administration at Washington which no political foe or Missourian critic can find fault with. Ever the United States Senate may be assumed to be in harmony with it, through all its parties, blocs and cliques. It is an outdoor recreation policy, for whose formulation the President has appointed a committee consisting of Secretaries Weeks, Work, Wallace and Hoover and Assistant Secretary Roosevelt.

"The physical vigor, moral strength and clean simplicity of mind of the

WHAT BENEFITS ONE WILL SURELY BENEFIT ALL

Attention has been called to the lack of co-operation between our citizens and the Association of Commerce, especially in regard to information concerning cottages and rooms for rent. The association receives almost daily reports from various resort information bureaus covering inquiries for rooms, cottages, hotel accommodations, etc. These are classified and will be sent to persons having accommodations answering the inquiry. If people having these accommodations do not file the same with the secretary of the association, many of these inquiries may be overlooked, and people who might come to Charlevoix and spend the summer will go elsewhere.

If you have rooms to rent, a cottage, or want borders, let the secretary, Charles H. Emrey, know about it. When an inquiry comes to him that covers your needs, he will mail you the name and address. You in turn can write them direct. Just a little co-operation on your part may result in filling your rooms or cottage, and help fill up the town.

And if you should receive an inquiry for something you cannot handle, pass it over to the association. Others may have just what is wanted. Every citizen must work for the benefit of Charlevoix as a whole.

Drop the secretary a card. Tell him what you have.

American people," remarked the President, "can be immeasurably furthered by the properly developed opportunities for life in the open, afforded by our forests, mountains, opportunities for life in the open, is a great character builder. From such life much of the American spirit of freedom springs."

Such life is educational to a generation of city dwellers, at the same time that it is health-giving and inspiring. The country has remarkable facilities for summer life in the open and convenient access to great lake states and parks, and other attractive regions. Outdoor recreation is becoming a passion with the American people. Soon the railroad and steamship lines and every highway in the land will be testifying to that fact.

Yet the public is far from using or realizing all its recreational resources. The federal government is in a position to do a great deal more to make them known and available. On with the recreation policy! The country needs it particularly in a year of intensive politics.

Runaway.
A team of colts belonging to John Strigley, hitched to a wagon and tied in front of the Co-ops on Belvedere avenue, broke from their "moorings" yesterday morning and ran wildly along Belvedere avenue to town and down Bridge street, threatening their way between teams and cars until they reached Clinton street, where they turned to the west and came to an abrupt stop behind an auto truck parked in front of the Northern Creamery station. They were pretty well tired out anyway, and getting tangled up in the truck took the rest of their pep out of them.

Sunday School Hour Changes.
The Congregational Sunday school will meet hereafter at 9:45 a. m. It is the custom most everywhere to have the Sunday school session before church, and after getting the opinion of the parents of the children, also of the adult members of the school, it was found that nearly everyone felt that the earlier hour would be better here. Hence the change.

ISLAND DOCTOR TO BE RETURNED

ISLAND INHABITANTS HAVE LITTLE SICKNESS

State Physician Is to Pass Summer and Next Winter on Beaver Island.

A Lansing dispatch says: The professional adventures of Dr. Will Kenicott, the fictional physician who administered to wheat farmers of the Minnesota hinterland in Sinclair world, and of professional journeys led in actual practice by Dr. R. E. Palmer, the young practitioner whom the Michigan department of health sent to Big Beaver Island early last December.

Dr. Palmer came to Lansing to report his experiences to Dr. R. M. Olin, head of the department of health. He told of operations in which he played the part of both nurse and surgeon, of old lives saved and young lives brought into the world, and of professional journeys made through snow drifts that had raised themselves to such a height it was necessary to go snow shoeing out of doors through a second story window.

Years ago when timber was being cut on Big Beaver, the lumber company kept a doctor there. Of recent years, however, the little colony of 700 farmers and fishermen had gone through the winters unaided in the event of accident and disease. More than once, it was reported here, a man or woman fell ill and died when medical attention would have saved a life. Consequently the state stepped in last fall and appointed Dr. Palmer.

"They are a healthy lot," said Dr. Palmer yesterday. "To look at them and to count those among them who have lived 90 years or more, one would say that they could do well enough without a doctor. And yet, during the past winter I have had a rather serious operation for tubercular peritonitis, have attended a man who had almost severed a foot with an ax, have seen six babies join the little island colony, have gone thru one epidemic, and have made six blood transfusions in the hope of saving one child's life."

"There have been only two deaths during the winter; the child of the blood transfusion did not recover and there was an old man who died of heart failure. The operation was performed on a nun, one of the ten who live at the tiny convent of Holy Cross and teach in the Big Beaver schools. Her life was saved and she is now recovered. I believe she would have died if there had not been a doctor within call."

There came no request for medical aid from Ithaca, the nearby outpost of the House of David, Dr. Palmer said, although occasionally a few of the Israelites crossed the ice to purchase groceries at St. James, the "capital" of the republic of Big Beaver. From time to time, he states, the mails were brought across from the mainland by horse and sleigh.

Dr. Palmer has started back to Big Beaver and will remain there during the summer and next winter.

How About a Chiropractors' Convention in Charlevoix?

Five chiropractors were in town Sunday, calling on their professional brother, Dr. J. A. De Jordy, who is now "star boarder" at the county jail. Dra. Clarence R. Hay of Midland, R. E. Goslow of Mount Pleasant, W. C. Woolger of Bay City, Jay W. Ellison of East Jordan and W. F. Beach of Boyne City (himself out on bail) dropped in to condole with their fellow practitioner who, as a technical violator of the medical registration act, has become a martyr for the good of his profession. Possibly, Dr. Beach had a pardonable curiosity to inspect his colleague's summer quarters. As for the others, if our advertising committee is on the job, we may be able to secure a chiropractors' convention for Charlevoix in the near future. We have a very cool and commodious jail in quiet, restful surroundings, and the board is free.

We are told that Dr. De Jordy keeps the mail carrier on his route quite busy, receiving as high as 87 pieces of mail matter in a single day, mostly letters of condolence and encouragement.

BAPTIST CHURCH

10:30 a. m.—At this time our general director, Rev. John E. Smith, D. D., comes to us and will preach at the morning service. This is Dr. Smith's first visit to this locality and every one should make it a point to be present. We extend a cordial invitation to all to attend this service.

11:45—Sunday school. Lesson theme, "The Assyrian Exile of Israel."

In the evening we will drive over to Petoskey to attend their B. Y. P. U. at 6:30, and listen again to Dr. Smith at 7:30.

Every one plan to go to Petoskey. Those who have cars will please take as many as possible, and those desiring to go who have no way will please get in touch with some one who has a car, or notify us and arrangements will be made.

The B. Y. P. U. will have a social union at the church next Friday evening, May 2, at 7:30. Come, ye young people, and let us have a joyous time together.

The Ladies' Aid will serve a supper at the church on Wednesday, May 7, starting at 5:30 and continuing until all are served.

M. E. CHURCH

The latest battleship to be put into commission in the United States Navy is the super dreadnought "West Virginia." The total cost will be more than $27,000,000. The "West Virginia" is one of the most powerful engines of destruction which the mind of man has ever devised.

The total World Service Budget of the Methodist Episcopal church for 1924 will cost only two-thirds as much as this battleship. This enterprise is a great living force for construction and world building. Will not a church of over 4,000,000 contribute two-thirds of the cost of a battleship in supporting a great going enterprise of world betterment and redemption?

There is a profound significance in comparing the cost of a battleship with the cost of a world-wide program of extending and applying the gospel of Christ, for the world is confronted today with one or the other of these alternatives. The perpetual issue of the world is Christ or Mars. The only hope for a world divided, jealous, self-seeking, lies in Him by whom and in whom all men may be fully joined. The only adequate force to save the world and to bring a real brotherhood is in a genuine Christianity. God may have other words for other worlds, but his word for this world is Christ.

The world-wide work of the church carries in the center the creative energy of the living answer to the world's unspeakable gift. What shall we give to the world—battleships or Fellowship?

10:30—Pastor will preach. Sermon topic, "Christ Yearning for Men."

12 m.—Sunday school. Lesson, "The Assyrian Exile of Israel."

3 p. m.—Junior League. Miss Etta Nichols, Supt. All boys and girls are urged to be present.

6:30 p. m.—Epworth League. Convention reports given by Misses Vera Belding and Marian Meech.

7:30—Gospel singing and preaching.

The Epworth church is to be moved to Brethren. A party of the members of that church with their pastor will wreck the building and ship it by Pere Marquette. The people have been trying to worship in an old store. They feel very grateful to the trustees in charge and the district superintendent for permission for the transfer. The Epworth people have not had regular services in this church for six years. Being within ten minutes' drive of Charlevoix, the handy automobile makes it possible to come to town to church. WASHINGTON LETTER

Washington, April 28.—Opinion here is sharply divided regarding the wisdom of congress in adopting a Japanese exclusion law which is highly offensive to the Japanese people. That exclusion of the Japanese must be accomplished all are agreed, but that that was accomplished as efficiently by the so-called "gentleman's agreement," whereby Japan refused passports to her citizens to the United States, as by an exclusion law offensive to Japanese sensibilities is the contention of those opposed to such a law, including President Coolidge and Secretary Hughes. In fact, they believe that with the co-operation of the Japanese government the exclusion was more effective than it will be when undertaken without that co-operation. Now, they urge, Japan, a badly overcrowded country, will merely wink at the efforts of her people to get into the United States in defiance of the law, and the Canadian, and especially the sparsely settled Mexican boundaries, afford ample opportunities for such smuggling. Moreover, the interests of the United States in the far east are bound to be more or less prejudiced by the constant hostility to Japan. While there is, no doubt, little likelihood of war at this time, there is much satisfaction in military circles over the progress that has been made in establishing an efficient naval base at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, and accumulating there extensive stores of naval fuel oil. The vote for exclusion was so overwhelming that it would be obviously useless for the President to veto the bill, but it is regarded as highly likely he will let it become a law without his signature.

President Coolidge's rebuke of the senate—not for conducting investigations but—for the unfair, biased and partisan manner in which it has been conducting those investigations, has met with merited commendation on all sides. Only bitterly partisan Democrats and a few partisan Democratic newspapers condemn it, and even those are compelled to distort Mr. Coolidge's rebuke before attacking it. In partisan quarters an attempt has been made to make it appear that Mr. Coolidge objected to all investigations, "which is not the case. But generally the press and the public heartily agree with the president that the manner in which some of the investigations have been conducted, notably the oil investigation and that of the attorney general, is a disgrace to the senate.

Regarding Gaston B. Means, Senator Wheeler's chief reliance in his attack on Mr. Daugherty, A. Mitchell Palmer, Democrat, and attorney general under President Wilson, says that Means' testimony is "a lie out of whole cloth." One of Mr. Means' stories Mr. Palmer characterizes as "a tissue of falsehoods" and, criticizing the senate committee, Mr. Palmer says: "In the face of these findings, which must be in the knowledge of the senate committee, for that committee to allow a witness like Means to repeat his unfounded charge, long since disproved, is well calculated to discount the sincerity of the present investigation and to justify the widespread criticism of the senate for becoming a mere distributor of slander and slinger of mud."

The employment of Francis J. Heney as attorney for the senate committee investigating the Bureau of Internal Revenue and his being paid out of the private pocket of Senator Couzens—who, by the way, enjoys according to his own admission an income of $1,000,000 a year—is clearly contrary to law and doubtless will be ended since the president has called attention to that fact. The genesis of Heney's employment is interesting. It develops that the man back of Heney is Gifford Pinchot, governor of Pennsylvania, whose bitterness toward the secretary of the treasury knows no bounds. Pinchot wants to be president. A man of unlimited wealth, he has been able to procure everything else he wanted, and he sought a Pennsylvania delegation instructed for himself. Mr. Mellon, along with Senators Pepper and Reed, defeated Pinchot's wish and, being a vindictive individual, Pinchot determined to get even with Mr. Mellon. He could conceive of no better way than to take advantage of the hostility of Senator Couzens and induce him to employ that "Prince of Muck-rakers," Heney, to harass Mr. Mellon and fill the press with sensational reports about the secretary of the treasury, reports bound to be disproved, but the disproof of which would never overtake the falsehoods. It may sometimes be necessary to incur the anger of a multi-millionaire, but it always means trouble for him who does it.

Representative Winter of Wyoming, one of the best informed men on oil in congress, has delivered an exhaustive speech on the Doheny and Sinclair leases in which he shows that they are of the utmost advantage to the government. "Let the people not be alarmed," says Judge Winter. "There has been no breaking down of government. The guilt of one man, (Fall) if proven, can not effect the stability of this great country."

GO FISHING

Herbert Hoover, turning his mind upon American public life, finds exactly what is wrong with it. There are not enough fishermen in office. He told the Izak Walton League about it the other day, thus:

"A fisherman must be of contemplative mind, for it is often a long time between bites. These interludes produce patience, reserve and calm reflection—for no one can catch fish in excitement, in eagerness or in malice.

"He is by nature possessed of faith, hope and even optimism, or he would not fish."

All these qualities, he argued, make for good government.

This is almost an inspired revelation. The truth of it should appeal instantly to any intelligent mind. The one thing needful is found. What our public representatives at Washington need is to go fishing. And to tell the truth, it wouldn't do the public itself any harm.

92 New Threats Against Service

It may surprise you to know that the present Congress of the United States has already before it for consideration no less than ninety-two bills, each proposing to further restrict Railroad activities.

So wide is the scope of this proposed legislation, and so serious are many of its threats, that the Railroads have been forced to shape their affairs accordingly, as mariners take in sail when storm clouds the horizon.

Michigan's 24 steam railroads are today holding in suspense plans for the expenditure of large sums of money, pending legislative action on these ninety-two bills.

These expenditures, if released, would go into labor and materials—into Prosperity and Better Service.

Is it wise or just to thus threaten and impede the efforts of any honest business?

How would you welcome ninety-two additional threats against your independence of action in the pursuit in which you are yourself engaged?

We invite any thought on this matter which you care to express.

The child was rushed to Petoskey hospital where, Monday forenoon, it was believed she would undoubtedly recover.

MRS. ARMINDA BEAUDOIN DEAD

Remains Brought Here for Interment
From Gloucester.

The remains of Mrs. Arminda Beaudoin were brought to this city last Monday, accompanied by her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Phil Baudain, of Gloucester, Mass., at whose home she died Tuesday, April 24th—a victim of apoplexy—at the age of 79 years.

Mrs. Beaudoin, who was the mother of Bert Beaudoin of this city, Mrs. Phil Baudain of Gloucester, Mrs. Nellie Corlette of Cheboygan and Charles Beaudoin of Detroit, was Arminda Bailey, born April 2, 1845, at Coldwater, Mich. In early childhood she removed with her parents to St. James, Beaver Island, where she met Cyrille Beaudoin, a cooper by profession, to whom she was married at the age of 16 years. She and her husband made their home on the Beavers until 1900, when they moved to Charlevoix, making their home with their son Bert. Mr. Beaudoin, Sr., died some ten years ago in this city, at which time his widow went to live with her daughter in Gloucester, where she remained until her death. Besides her children, Mrs. Beaudoin leaves a sister in Chicago and a brother, Orrin Bailey, who is a resident of Oakland, Calif.

The funeral was held Tuesday from the Beaudoin home on South Bridge street at 2:00 p. m., Rev. C. W. Long officiating. Interment was at Brookside. Relatives from out of town who were present at the funeral were Charles, Jr., and Bert Beaudoin of Detroit, and Dan and Cecil Corlette of Cheboygan, grandchildren of the deceased, and Mr. and Mrs. Baudain of Gloucester.

GLENN DOLBERG WILL SOON WED

Engagement to Miss Pearl Announced in California.

A California paper was handed to us last week containing the announcement of the engagement of Glenn Dolberg, former well known Charlevoix man now in the photography business at Glendale, a suburb of Los Angeles, to Miss Dorothy Pearl of that city.

Friends of the couple, who are popular socially in their home town, were apprised of their approaching marriage at a fashionable dinner party given by the bride's mother, Mrs. John G. Pearl of Glendale, some weeks ago, and they are now receiving congratulations from those who have the pleasure of their acquaintance.

Mr. Dolberg, who left here for the west some time ago, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Dolberg, who are also residents of the Sunset state. He has made good at his chosen profession—photography—in the rapidly growing suburb of Glendale and has evidently won a place of enviable respect for himself in the community of his adoption.

Miss Pearl, a recent graduate of the Glendale high school, is a social favorite in her home town and well known in musical circles, being, like her fiancée, the possessor of considerable talent in this direction.

The wedding will take place some time in July, according to present plans.

GUNDERSON STAR OF THE W. S. N.

One of Four North Michiganders in Baseball Squad

Northwestern Michigan has four men on the baseball squad at Western State Normal—Jack Gunderson of East Jordan, George Nicholson of Manistee, Thomas Cessna of Petoskey, and Paul Pitman of Rapid City. Gunderson is the star of the quartet, holding rank as one of the fastest college pitchers in the state. His latest feat had to do with a 6 to 1 defeat of M. A. C., when he fanned 13 of the Aggies and allowed only two hits. He is likely to be Coach Hyame's choice to face Michigan, Ohio State and Chicago later in the season. He is a .400 hitter.

Nicholson is also a pitcher. Cessna is out for second base, and Pitman is an outfielder.

MOTHERS' DAY COMES ON 11TH

GOVERNOR CALLS CITIZENS TO ITS OBSERVANCE

Visit Your Mother, or Write or Telegraph a Word of Cheer, or Wear a Flower.

The following is the text of the Mothers' Day proclamation issued by Governor Grosbeck of Michigan, the date of this memorial day being May 11, 1924.

Custom has decreed that once each year a day shall be set apart from all others especially for the observance of Mothers' Day. The plan was brought forth so that every person might give more than ordinary attention to Mother, so that we might show to her our deepest appreciation of her sacrifice, devotion, guidance and loving care.

In the rush and swirl of present day affairs and business one is inclined to forget for the moment the determination of Mother that we should have the blessings of life that she did not enjoy, and that to bring about the realization of her ambition it deprives her of the very happiness she sought to bestow upon us. It has been this motherhood ideal that has raised the standard of American citizenship to its present exalted place.

In every home, no matter how elegant or humble, that same mother devotion and sacrifice has always existed and always will. If mother love ruled the world there would be no conflicts, no destruction of human life because of greed, no sorrow because of unrighteous designs.

Every day should be Mothers' Day, with possibly a little greater manifestation upon Mothers' Day of our appreciation because of her sacrifice and devotion.

By virtue of the authority vested in me as Governor of the State of Michigan, I do hereby designate and proclaim Sunday, May 11th, 1924, as Mothers' Day, and I call upon our people, both old and young, to gather in their several places of worship and take part in services appropriate to the day.

And let absent sons and daughters take this occasion to visit the mother in the old home, or, where such a visit is impossible, let them send a message of cheer and greeting.

In accordance with a resolution of the Congress of the United States, I further request the people of Michigan on the day aforesaid to display the United States flag in their homes and in other suitable places, as a fitting expression of their desire to pay homage to American motherhood.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State this nineteenth day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty-four, and of the Commonwealth the eighty-eighth.

ALEX J. GROESBECK,
Governor.

CHARLEVOIX MAY AID POTATO SHOW

County Asked to Join Others in Top of Michigan Event.

Agricultural leaders of northern Michigan have asked 14 counties to join in making the Top o' Michigan potato show the biggest and best and most useful in the state. These counties are asked to support the show with small quotas which will be cared for by appropriations by the boards of supervisors.

A financial report of last fall's show has been mailed to the board of supervisors in each of the counties concerned, together with a letter appealing for continued support.

Assessments for next fall's show are based on the distance of the prospective counties from the place of the show, as well as on their 1923 potato production. Following is a list of the counties invited to participate and the assessment for each: Otsego, $438; Cheboygan, $200; Crawford, $36; Alpena, $156; Presque Isle, $194; Montmorency, $143; Rosecommon, $22; Oscoda, $13; Charlevoix, $195; Antrim, $402; Kalkaska, $206; Ogemaw, $54; Iosco, $44; Emmet, $245. However, a limit of $300 has been placed as the maximum quota for any one county, so that Antrim and Otsego will not be required to pay their full assessments.

Hospital Auxiliary's rummage and baked goods sales, May 9th and 10th, to celebrate National Hospital Day. Members of all organizations are expected to contribute. Others are requested to help. Place announced next week.—Adv. 18-11.

DROWNED BOY'S BODY RECOVERED

Daniel Bonishing's Corpse Found in Crooked Lake.

The body of Daniel Bonishing drowned in Crooked Lake Sunday, October 23, 1923, while he was attempting to rescue Hobart Park, his hunting companion, was found near Cincinnati Point a week ago Tuesday forenoon.

The Indian lad was 22 years old and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Aleck Bonishing of Cross Village. He went to Crooked lake on the day of the drowning in company with Mr. Park, Clarence Steffis of Traverse City, and George Bruce of Detroit, to hunt ducks.

The party shot two ducks which fell in the lake about 60 rods from land. Park and Bonishing secured a small steel boat and attempted to get the birds. The high waves filled the boat with water and it sank. The two men started to swim toward shore, and the Indian reached land safely. However, he noticed that Park was having difficulty in swimming the distance and at once plunged in again to aid his companion. He reached Park, but evidently his strength was not sufficient to bring him ashore, and both sank.

Search for the bodies continued for several days, but was finally given up. Steffis, who witnessed the drowning, attempted to find another boat but did not succeed until too late.

The body of Hobart Park was picked up in the lake a few weeks following the drowning.

REPUBS MUST CLEAN HOUSE

SO SAYS POTTER IN GRAND RAPIDS SPEECH

Utilities Commission Chairman Makes No Apology For His Party's Shortcoming

"The Republican party must clean house," William W. Potter, Chairman of the Michigan Public Utilities Commission, declared in his keynote speech at the Republican state convention in Grand Rapids on May 7th.

The convention was held for the purpose of selecting delegates to the national presidential convention in Cleveland June 10th.

Potter's address covered practically every subject of national and state importance.

"I make no apology for republicans who prostitute public office for private advantage; who sacrifice the rights of the people for the money there is in it," Potter declared in speaking of "official crookedness and incompetence." This incompetence, he continued, was not confined to the Republican party alone, pointing to the waste and extravagance practiced by the Wilson administration before, during and after the World War.

"The conduct of the fiscal affairs of this government," he said, "during the Wilson administration was so marked by mismanagement, deliberate waste and official crookedness that the aggregate of loans and lost exceeded in amount the total national debt. Felt's betrayal of his trust, was carried out under the sanction of a law enacted during the Wilson administration. It was an isolated case of the survival of an established custom which then obtained; and all this in a nation which prides itself of its business honor and intelligence."

Corruption is not a matter of party, Potter declared, continuing: "There is a black sheep in every flock. Every church has its backsliders. Every lodge has its hypocrites, and every nation its undesirable citizens. Every political party in power attracts to it those who would sacrifice political principle for private advantage."

"When predatory oil interests desired legal assistance, by some strange coincidence it was found just leaving the Wilson cabinet. The public may have been foully plundered in the lease of Teapot Dome, but the President has employed eminent legal counsel from both political parties and declared that all public property fraudulently disposed of should be recovered,—that criminals should be punished and that public rights should be protected and defended."

"All this but emphasizes a condition and makes known plain the duty of every citizen to place in public office only those of unimpeachable integrity, that this may continue to be a government of laws and not of men."

"We may lament the rise of radicalism,—we may seek to combat its spread, but the remedy is not in propaganda, but in eradicating the cause, in raising the moral standards of governmental administration, in demonstrating that this government is an agency for the protection of both private and public right and not to be used as an instrumentality through which private interests secure private advantage at public expense."

Under "Republican accomplishments," Potter listed peace instead of war, cooperation rather than dictation, national independence instead of isolation, reduction of the civil service list, reduced national expenses, decreased the national debt, strengthened public credit, bringing of government securities to par, stimulation of industry, absorbing of surplus labor released by peace and re-establishing normalcy in business industry and commerce.

CHEBOYGAN DAILY PLANT DESTROYED

Goes Up in Smoke With Several Other Buildings

The plant of the Cheboygan Daily Tribune was completely destroyed in a fire which burned several business blocks on Main street in Cheboygan at 1 o'clock Thursday morning. The estimated damage is placed at $150,000 with some insurance. The fire started in the rear of the Houck building and spread both north and south to the adjoining structures. The Onaway fire truck was sent for and made the 30 mile run in 45 minutes doing good work in checking the flames. When the fire was brought under control at about 4 o'clock it had burned to within one building of the Cheboygan post-office.

The Houck building on Main street reached nearly to Cheboygan river and was occupied by the owners as a monument works. It was a two story frame structure and burned rapidly. The flames spread south to the Ramsby building occupied by the Cheboygan Tribune. This building was a total loss. The only thing saved was the safe. The Michelin garage, a two story brick veneer building, was badly damaged. Fire burned away the back end and the entire upper part of the building. The cars and accessories in the front part were removed.

To the north the flames spread to the Humphrey building occupied by a barber shop, Johnson's studio, and the Clune's cafe. There was considerable fire damage in the rear of the building and much damage from smoke and water.

The Cheboygan High School Baseball team lost its first game last Friday when the heavy-hitting Central Lake outfit returned from their beating of two weeks ago and nosed out the locals 11 to 10. The defeat lays rather heavy in their stomachs. But there's a remedy. The game was close and evenly contested and Central has, by no means, the edge on us yet as the teams are now even.

CHARLEVOIX NINE WAS NOSED OUT BY ONE RUN

Central Lakers Retrieve Their Defeat of Two Weeks Back—We Play Boyne Friday

The local team is playing good ball this season. It is certainly one of the best representations of the Charlevoix brand of student activity presented to the public this year. Credit is certainly due Mr. Hamilton, who has worked hard with the boys and put that scrap into them which only congenial cooperation can produce.

Next week, this coming Friday, the red and white horse-hiders will clash with Boyne City, a team which has always maintained an invincible record at Baseball. This game will be hotly contested as the boys are out to win.

As to the old fans around town, we can assure them a good game full of feats which rival the National League.

Cunningham is pitching exceptionally fine ball this spring and the entire team is fast falling into veteran form. Bacot, Hallett and Dagwell are pulling them down on bases and the fielding ability of the nine is also growing more consistent.

Charlevoix had the edge on their opponents very conspicuously during the early portion of the contest. However things began to tighten up in the sixth and seventh and the score was tied. Central Lake crept up slowly until at the first of the ninth they led three runs. With a commendable come-back the boys bagged three runs and once more tied things up. Then in the tenth the red and whites failed to come back with the one run which would have matched them up once more and the locals were nosed out by a one point margin. Thus the bacon was lost for the first time this season.

Frank Poole and Rollie Lewis ably umpired the game with Altenburg and Hatch. Central Lake coach, as scorekeeper.

WILL TOUR THE UPPER PENINSULA

CLOVERLAND SPECIAL WILL CARRY PURE BRED STOCK

M. A. C. and Holstein-Friesian Association Join Hands in Educational Work.

"The Cloverland Special," a dairy demonstration train, will next month visit every agricultural district of the upper peninsula.

This train has been made possible largely through the co-operation of all the railroads operating in the upper peninsula. It will be fully equipped for demonstration purposes; types of grade, pure bred and scrub stock will be carried as object lessons. Dairy experts and railroad representatives will accompany the train, which will visit 36 stations, the trip, which is routed from west to east, taking in all the principal points in the north-country agricultural region in the train's circle around the peninsula. It is planned to visit two of the scheduled stops each day of the eighteen-day run, and to sell direct or auction off at least one pure bred sire at each station. The programs in each community will be in charge of local committees.

Thursday of last week Loh Farms received a visit from E. G. Amos, assistant county agent leader connected with the Michigan Agricultural College extension department and James G. Hays, Holstein extension expert, and secretary of the Michigan Holstein-Friesian association.

After a thorough inspection of the herd of 150 head of purebred Holsteins, they picked out ten bulls of good individuality whose breeding also met with their approval, nine of the ten being from tested dams with good records. These bulls will be kept at the farm and further conditioned for "The Cloverland Special."

This brings the total of the yearling bulls sold by the farm during the past few weeks to 20, which is regarded by the management as very encouraging. Shipments have been made to Connecticut, Pennsylvania, and to the upper and lower peninsulas. All purchasers have been well pleased with the animals ordered through correspondence.

One of the best bulls ever bred on the farm has been consigned to the Fifth Co-operative National Sale to be held at Richmond, Virginia, June 5 and 6. His dam is Kolrain Eleanor Pontiac Kornlyke, dam of Kolrain Marion Finnerde, whose son sold at the Cleveland National last year for $3,750, the present high mark for a bull bred and raised at the farm. Eleanor and Marion hold the world's record for a year's milk production, dam and daughter combined. Eleanor has a record of 1143 pounds butter from 26,995 pounds milk made last year, and is completing another year of splendid production. This bull is a good individual and should sell well.

The cheese factory is now buying all milk available and is making cheese daily. A shipment of 3,500 pounds in 20-pound Daisies went out over the Pere Marquette Tuesday.

William A. Shepard, well known East Jordan dairyman, bought a fine Ormsby bull Tuesday. The dam of the bull is strong in Pontiac breeding and has several excellent records.

SIX SHIPS TO CARRY CEMENT

PETOSKEY PORTLAND CO. PREPARE FOR RECORD SEASON.

Shipping to Two Break-water Jobs for Government—Roer's Barge Employed.

Six cargo boats are already listed to call regularly at the wharf of the Petoskey Portland Cement company, for cement during the present navigation season, says the Petoskey Evening News. Two contracts to furnish cement for government break-water jobs, recently, closed, boost the lake shipments considerably for this season.

The ships already listed include the J. B. Johns, of the Petoskey Transportation Co., Sidney O. Neff, and the Pere Marquette No. 6, of the Marinette Transit company; the Islander of the Arnold Transit company; Marcus Roen, owned by Captain Roen of Charlevoix; and the S. M. Stuart of the Traverse City Transportation company.

The J. B. Johns will carry cement to Milwaukee, Detroit and other large ports which have warehouse capacity to handle the 10,000 cargoes of this ship. The ship finished unloading a cargo at Detroit at 9:30 o'clock Monday night, April 28th, and steamed on to Toledo for a cargo of coal. The first trip of the J. B. Johns for this season was to Milwaukee.

The Sidney O. Neff and the Pere Marquette No. 6, of the Marinette Transit company, Marinette, Wis., will be used to carry cement to the government break-water jobs at Milwaukee. These ships are not large but carry enough cement at a trip to fill the warehouse at that port. The government is constructing caissons at Milwaukee for use on other break-water jobs. The Sidney O. Neff was in Petoskey Sunday, April 27th, for 1,600 barrels.

The steamer Islander and other ships of the Arnold Transit company at Mackinac Island will carry cement needed during the summer for various projects on the Island. The ship carried about 250 barrels on her first trip Monday.

The steamer Marcus Roen, of Charlevoix will carry about 700 barrels to a cargo to Glen Haven for use on a state highway bridge two miles inland from that port. The cement is shipped by boat to Glen Haven and trucked to the scene of the building operations. The nearest point by railroad is nine miles from the bridge.

The S. M. Stuart, of the Traverse City Transportation company will carry cement for the Ludington break-water job. About 12,000 barrels will be shipped to that port during the season. The Stuart will carry about 100 barrels to a cargo and will be in operation all season, making her first trip in a few days.

Attention Rebekahs! Members of Charlevoix Rebekah Lodge No. 293 have been invited to have a six o'clock supper with Emmet Rebekah Lodge at Petoskey, Tuesday, May 13th. Those wishing to go will please call Mrs. Shearer or Mrs. Genett. There will be no local lodge meeting on that night.

Charlevoix high school's entry in the Eighth annual Western State Normal interscholastic track meet at Kalamazoo, May 10, has been recorded, listing Charlevoix as one of about fifty schools to compete in what promises to be one of the largest meets ever held in Michigan.

Laurence Taylor, Western Normal track coach, in charge of the meet, has already received 45 entries and several more are expected before Saturday. At least 350 athletes from all corners of Michigan will be in the competition.

With Charlevoix in Class B, the following are now entered: Albion, Allegan, Bangor, Berrien Springs, Cass City, Cassopolis, Coldwater, Colfax, Greenville, Hartford, Ingham City, Ionia, Lowell, Mendon, Niles, Otsego, Paw Paw, Plainville, St. Joseph, Three Rivers, Wayland, Three Oaks, Hart, Traverse City, Cadillac, Harbor Springs, Hamtramck, Wyandotte, St. Clair, Royal Oak, Big Rapids. A number of the larger cities of the state are entered in Class A.

BAKER THROWS HAT IN RING

CHEBOYGAN "BEAR-CAT" IS A REAL CAMPAIGNER.

Declare If Elected He Will Put an End to One Man Administration Board.

Herbert F. Baker, former state senator from the 29th district, and runner up in the last campaign for the Republican nomination for United States senator, has formally entered the race for the Republican gubernatorial nomination. His entry brought the field to four. Others who have already announced themselves are State Senator Charles R. Sligh of Grand Rapids, Lieutenant Governor Thomas Read of Shelby, and James Hamilton of Detroit, head of the Michigan public school defense league.

In putting himself forward as a candidate, Mr. Baker declared he would, if elected, "modify the power of our one-man administrative board, check the tendency toward imperialism and discountenance all attempts to impinge upon the powers of the legislative, executive or judicial branches of the state government." He went on record as favoring a gasoline tax, income tax to substitute for property taxes, development of hydro-electric power by the state, extension of the university and M. A. C. extension courses, a redistribution of the primary school fund, abolition of the state control accounting division, respect for the constitutional bodies, bolstering of the blue sky laws and placing state conservation in the hands of men who are not "peanut politicians."

Presumably regarding the wet and dry question he said: "If we have unpopular laws or constitutional provisions, orderly methods have been provided for their elimination. I will take an oath, without mental reservations to uphold the state and national constitutions and see that the laws are enforced. We shall not permit them to be repealed through the process of nullification."

W. H. WHITE CO. BUYS U. P. TIMBER

Ten Years' Supply is Secured in Chippewa County

W. H. White company, of Boyne City, announces it has closed a deal for a large tract of virgin timber in Chippewa county, northern peninsula of Michigan, and that the logs will be brought to Boyne City mills.

The news was most welcome in Boyne City, where employment will be given to about a hundred men. W. H. White believes other tracts of timber near the big tract just purchased will be secured within a short time.

There are about fifty million feet of timber in the tract purchased this week.

PICKLES ARE A PRACTICAL CROP

SHOULD BE PLANTED IN JUNE IN SANDY LOAM SOIL.

Thinning an Important Factor in Their Growth—Cash Returns
Come Early in Fall.

The correct and practical accomplishment of any objective always necessitates following a correct and practical course. This is true in growing pickles the same as in growing any other crop and when pickles are handled along right lines, they are not a hard crop—in fact are easier than many.

Sandy loam soil is best and if this is available it should be selected. A rich sandy loam with clay-subsoil is ideal, but good crops of pickles may be grown on light sandy soils or on heavy loam soils when proper seed-bed preparation is given. Land that is level is preferred, but if the farm is hilly, then a slope toward the east or south should be chosen. The soil must be well drained, for pickles like any other crop will not thrive on wet sour soils.

Either late Fall plowing or early Spring plowing are best. When plowed in April or early in May, the soil for pickles can be well prepared, by dragging once each week up until planting time in June. This keeps down weeds and grass and pulverizes and settles the surface soil so the moisture will be retained. Two weeks before planting time, the soil may be top-dressed by scattering broadcast from 4 to 6 loads of well-rotted barnyard manure per acre. And to make an even better foundation, 250 pounds of acid phosphate may be added and both of these should then be well worked into the soil. Some growers also add commercial fertilizer. If this is used a 2-10-1 formula is good and 500 pounds per acre may be profitably used, broadcasting it and working it thoroughly into the soil about two weeks before planting time. However, if soil is in good condition and has a good supply of organic matter, it will grow good pickles without the extra use of these materials.

Pickles are planted in June, usually about the 5th or 10th, but some growers delay planting until the 15th or even 20th and have good results. It is best in the majority of cases to plant not earlier than June 1st and not later than June 15th.

The easier and better way to plant seed is to cross-mark the soil with an ordinary corn-marker which usually marks 3 1-2 feet apart. In this way the squares will be 3 1-2 feet each way. Every SECOND mark or row is used one way and EVERY MARK OR CROSS is used the other way. This makes the hills 3 1-2 feet apart in the row, and the rows just 7 feet apart. The way to plant is to draw a hoe through the cross, making a flat level space about 3 inches below the top of the ground and 6 inches square. Scatter 4 or 5 or 6 seeds over this space so they will not be bunched together. Then cover with 1 or 1 1-2 inches of MOIST earth. The space opened with the hoe was 3 inches deep, and the soil covering is 1 or 1 1-2 inches deep so there will be a slight soil depression above the seeds. This is desired to help retain moisture and to aid in more rapid germination of the seeds. Planted this way permits cross-cultivation both ways, using a drag between rows and a cultivator across the field between hills. Care must be used to avoid deep cultivation, for the roots are close to the soil surface and are as delicate and as easily injured by deep cultivation as rootlets of corn.

Thinning is one of the most important factors. If this is done right it makes the crop a practical one on large as well as small farms. The old idea of thick vines and hard work has long been done away with by large farmers in the Central states. Successful farmers on the larger farms have learned that when pickles are rightly thinned they are as easily handled as potatoes and that they do not need extra help to grow this cash crop. Many large farmers now count on 2 or 3 acres of pickles regularly each year—make 12 to 14 pickings through the season and realize a real cash income during August and early September when their other farm crops are still growing.

They give pickles TWO thinnings. First, when the plants have reached the size of 5 or 6 leaves, they CUT OFF the weaker plants, leaving 2 or 3 healthy ones in each hill. And second, when these two or three have developed to a length of 18 to 24 inches, they again CUT OFF the weaker plants, leaving JUST ONE plant in each hill. This one plant may look a little lonesome for the first week, but it will soon develop into a strong, healthy, evenly-balanced vine with many side branches. The more branches the greater the bearing surface, for it is THE ENDS of the branches that bear the good pickles. In thinning, an ordinary house shears or sheep shears is used to clip off the vine near the ground. It is not necessary to pull it away, for it will soon die where it is. The plants SHOULD NEVER BE PULLED OUT WHEN THINNING.

In this way, the one vine develops to be a well-balanced and well rounded plant with numerous branches and sub-branches. It does not grow out long and slender as it is forced to do when vines are thick, but it grows evenly like the sturdy oak that develops into a well balanced tree when it grows unhampered in an open field. The vines do not entangle one with the other, and consequently bees and insects find easier access to the blossom, carrying pollen from one to the other. This is important, for fertilization of the blossoms must take place in order to produce pickles. Picking can be done in 1-4 the time and with only 1-4 as much effort as when vines are thicker. The fruit is easy to see, and vines can be lifted without damage. CLEAN picking is possible and more of the first grade pickles are secured.

Candidates for county offices must file petitions containing not less than one per centum nor more than four per centum of the number of votes cast for their party in the county.

Candidates of new parties for the office of United States Senator, Governor or Lieutenant Governor must file petitions containing names of at least three thousand registered and qualified voters residing within the state.

Candidates of new parties for district, county or city offices must file petitions containing names of at least one hundred registered and qualified voters residing in such district, county or city.

The residence, street number (in cities having street numbers) and date of signing of each elector must be shown on the petition, otherwise such names will not be considered nor counted.

It is unlawful to sign more than one petition for the same office.

No affidavit of party affiliation is required to be filed with nominating petitions.

Candidates for the office of United States Senator, Governor, Lieutenant Governor, and district offices, in districts comprising two or more counties, are required to file their petitions with the secretary of state.

Candidates for county offices or for district offices where the district comprises one county or less must file their petitions with the county clerk of such county. Candidates for city offices including all ward offices are required to file petitions with the city clerk of said city.

To avoid confusion and insure the placing of your name upon the primary ballots, petitions should be filed early. In case petitions are insufficient this will give plenty of time to notify candidates accordingly, that they may file necessary additional petitions.

The spelling of the candidate's name and the initials must be uniform upon all of the petitions filed in his or her behalf.

Petitions may be circulated at any time.

President Coolidge should accept all dogs offered for the White House, as they will all be needed to bark at office seekers.

Questions Asked by Stock Raisers

Feeding Problem Blanks Sent to Department of Agriculture.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The recent work of the United States Department of Agriculture and co-operating states to improve the methods of feeding live stock has stimulated interest in all parts of the country and feeding problem blanks sent to many farmers have been filled out and sent in for replies. A survey made last summer showed that a large percentage of stock raisers and feeders have many puzzling problems and that most of them are searching for better and more economical rations.

Wide Range of Problems.

A few of the early inquiries received as a result of this new service offered to farmers show a wide range of problems from scattered states. A Maryland farmer asked for good rations for brood sows and growing pigs. Although he had been keeping hogs for eight years, his corn was practically the only feed used. The department's reply pointed out the principles of successful swine feeding and called attention to the need for good pastures, mineral mixtures, and a well-balanced grain ration. A Kentucky cattle feeder submitted the rations he had been using for finishing for both the spring and fall markets and received suggestions which should save him money the coming year.

Among Other Problems.

Among the other problems the department has helped to solve are the making of dairy rations where certain feeds commonly used are not available; the addition of more desirable crops in the farm rotation; feeding hogs to be sold for breeding purposes; the saving of grain by use of other roughages; and many more. Requests for assistance have come from Alabama, Colorado, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Missouri, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, South Carolina, Utah, Vermont, West Virginia, and Wisconsin.

Sound Suggestions for Building Cattle Barns

Breeders and feeders of beef cattle will find in a new Farmers' Bulletin, "Beef-Cattle Barns," just published by the United States Department of Agriculture, suggestions of value regarding the right types of barns for various conditions, the location, arrangement, ventilation and construction. Several plans and alternate plans are given for general-purpose barns, feeding barns, sheds and barns for housing breeding herds. Consideration is given to the requirements in severe climates and in regions where less protection is needed from the elements. The bulletin contains 16 drawings showing elevations, floor plans and cross sections. Emphasis is placed on the desirability for economizing as much as possible whenever added cost will increase the overhead with little advantage in convenience, durability or comfort of the animals.

Copies of the bulletin, which is No. 1350, may be obtained by writing to the Department of Agriculture, Washington, as long as the supply lasts.

Meat Scrap for Laying Hens of Big Importance

That rations for laying hens should contain approximately 12 per cent meat scrap for efficient egg production is brought out by tests at the Ohio station. This amount of meat scrap has decreased the cost of feed more than 20 per cent and increased the egg production more than 50 per cent, as compared with a ration containing only 2 per cent of meat scrap. This was true of both the heavy and light breeds of poultry.

A ration in which the grain mixture was made up of three parts corn, one part wheat and the dry mash mixture of two parts, by weight, ground corn, one part bran and two parts meat scrap, has proven satisfactory. The fowls consumed twice as much grain as mash.

Question of Hen House Location Is Important

The question of where to locate the poultry houses and yards is one that should be given careful consideration before one begins the expenditure of perfectly good money. One piece of advice which will apply to all cases alike is this: Never locate the houses and yards on a damp, poorly drained plot of ground, on which shade trees, grass and clover crops do not thrive, unless it presents good opportunities for drainage and improvement.

Other conditions being favorable, locate the houses and yards where they will be convenient to the house and other buildings, so that the care of the poultry may be made a part of the regular chores of the farm.

"Clover and Prosperity" as National Farm Slogan

Clover is often regarded as the farm index. "Clover and prosperity" might well be a national farm slogan. And yet there are countless thousands of farms in the country today on which it is impossible to grow clover.

Two years ago clover could not have been grown on the land at the Maryland experiment field, Leonardtown. Lime and complete fertilizer have produced the finest stand of crimson clover imaginable.

FARM READJUSTMENT
A survey made by the department of agriculture shows "a drift of wheat into livestock, a trend away from beef cattle to dairy, a big increase in poultry, in the production of feed crops, and a general movement toward diversification in localities where diversification has not been common heretofore."

Thus the American farmer is readjusting himself to the new economic situation. And such efforts, though possibly slower and more difficult than the enactment of legislation to help the farming population, are likely to be more effective in the long run. They have the merit of working in harmony with economic law instead of against it, as legislation often does.

As a general thing, when wheat growing ceases to pay, farmers have in their own hands the obvious remedy of raising less wheat and more other foodstuffs. This serves the double purpose of raising the price of wheat, through comparative scarcity, and producing other crops for which there is a better market. And in this way, individuals and sections that can easily substitute other crops are not only helping themselves but helping wheat growers who cannot advantageously raise anything else.

The trend toward dairy cattle, poultry and fruits is especially timely and wise. The demand for these classes of products increases steadily and more rapidly than the population, as the people form more wholesome habits of life.

EVERYBODY OUTDOORS

A great many people probably would like to further President Coolidge's plan for outdoor recreation for everybody by spending the next four months outdoors themselves. But duties of all sorts restrict the vacations of many nature loving citizens. And lack of imagination restricts them still further.

Supposing one can't take a long motor camping trip through any of the northern states or a long holiday in the country, or spend weeks following any of the back to nature trails. That isn't any reason for abandoning the outdoor life altogether. Many a man or woman who can't get far away for long has nothing but personal inertia to prevent garden making, or picnicking in the nearest park, or an afternoon of baseball, with a few friends on the nearest vacant lot.

The pleasantest days for unencumbered outdoor play are at hand. By watching and seizing occasional opportunities here and there, most persons can make better use of them than they do. Whether it is only a daily walk around the block, or a Sunday's hike in the country, or a longer holiday somewhere else, every bit of outdoor life possible should be indulged in from now until next fall. And by that time many wise recreation habits ought to be formed so that winter, snows and added responsibilities won't make indoor slaves of so many of us.

PLANT SOMETHING!

Spring, bringing new life to the world, brings to human beings fresh energy and a new chance. It is a chance to get out of ruts, to stop fossilizing, to start something new, to get into touch again with the vital forces that press and surge all around.

It is time to begin new ventures, as Nature herself does. A time for new business plans, new schemes for self development, new ventures in recreation.

Get into the game! Plant something, literally or figuratively, and tend it and watch it grow.

If there is any space of earth available, plant a garden. The raising of flowers and vegetables and fruit is in itself recompense enough to anyone with a feeling for natural things. Co-operation with Mother Nature pays in the creation, without counting the crops. And it also awakens minds that have not gone altogether dead from artificial living.

Life itself is a garden. The health and inspiration drawn from spring gardening counteract the dulling effect of mechanical city existence, renewing ambition and creative purpose. That little garden plot, flower bed or potato patch or orchard, is full of ideas for growth and progress.

THE BEST EDUCATION

Eugene Randolph Smith, author of "Education Moves Ahead," says:

"The best education for a child is that which trains him to make the best of all his inherent possibilities, both for his own sake and the sake of all those whose lives will be influenced by him; but in such a way that his own life shall, in the living, give him a real satisfaction."

Here is nothing about going to school to obtain high grades or degrees, or fit one for earning his living, or to enable one to leap to fame or financial success ahead of those who lacked the schooling. Development of one's powers and abilities seems to be involved, as well as getting on with fellow men and finding life a satisfying thing, instead of one long, difficult problem. It is an ideal toward which true education has always striven, but it is one that is too little spoken of in this day of demands for practicality in education and everything else.

After all, could any education or training be more practical than one which fulfilled such an ideal?

SENIOR PLAY A SIDE-SPLITTER

"Nothing But the Truth" Even Too Funny for the Cast.

"Nothing But the Truth" a modern three act comedy will be presented by the Senior Class of Charlevoix High School at 8 o'clock on Monday evening, May 12th, at the Palace Theatre. That this play is one of most popular of modern plays is proved by the number of schools and other groups who are producing the play this spring. In a Sunday Grand Rapids paper one director makes the statement that there is so much comedy in the play that he has hard work to keep his cast from laughing while at work.

The play revolves about the question of whether it is possible for a modern business man to tell the absolute truth and retain any friends or do any business. Aired Cooper, playing the part of Robert Bennett maintains that it is possible; while Wesley Smith, playing the part of E. M. Ralston a modern business man, claims it can't be done.

Other members of the cast are: Colin Howe, the daughter of E. M. Ralston and in love with Bob Bennett; Eileen Fairchild, the wife of Ralston; Gordon Todd and J. C. Marshall assume the names of Clarence Van Dusen and Dick Donnelly; Albert Widdifield steps into the limelight as a Bishop; Margaret Fitch plays the role of Ethel Clark, whose parents are the richest people in the summer colony; Margaret Krulik and Anne McCann as Mable and Sable Jackson are somewhat outside the social pale; and Erma Carey plays the part of Mirtha, the maid.

The Seniors have been working hard on the play, sparing neither time nor energy to make it the success of the season. Don't forget the day and date.

STRUGGLES WITH A MANIAC IN PULPIT

Rev. Quinton Walker Subdues Assailant With Great Strength.

Rev. Quinton Walker, former pastor of the local M. E. church, and now in charge of the First Methodist church of Battle Creek, is the hero of a dramatic incident that occurred in his church last Sunday evening, just at the close of the service.

Mr. Walker was leading the singing of the closing hymn, when a man arose from his place among the worshippers, slipped up to the minister in the pulpit, and declaring, "I'll get you," seized Mr. Walker by the throat. The minister grappled with his assailant and forced him into a chair with so powerful a grip that the man lost consciousness and had to be carried out of the church. So quietly did this transpire that even those sitting in the front of the church did not realize that their pastor had been in danger. The man, who proved to be Chris Myers, a West Leroy farmer, who has been a mental patient for several months, had come forward twice during the service to kneel at the altar and Mr. Walker had told him to wait until after the benediction. When he came forward and went into the pulpit, he made a motion as if to shake hands and then tried to throttle the pastor.

Mr. Walker, though suffering from a strained shoulder and several scratches, calmly pronounced the benediction and the majority of the congregation went home ignorant of what had occurred.

Diebel-Genoe.

Mrs. Mason Rose recently gave a bridge party in honor of her sister, Miss Lisette Diebel of Saginaw, who is visiting at her home on Clinton street. Miss Diebel, who was formerly technician at the Toledo Hospital, is engaged to be married to Harry Genoe, Jr., of Hollywood, California, and will leave some time in June for the western city where the ceremony is to take place and which will be their home.

The majority of American clergymen are spreading the doctrine of pacifism which "is likely to eat Considerable agitation has arisen lately in favor of having that state game warden wear distinctive uniforms. This seems to us a proper move. The grave injustice and discrimination against the one game law violator in a hundred who doesn't recognize the warden's when he sees them coming, would thus be done away with.

M. E. CHURCH

This Sunday is Mother's Day. Someone has written:

"If I could concentrate all the fragrance of the world into one flower I would call it a rose. If I could concentrate all the melody of the universe into one composition, I would call it the Messiah. If I could concentrate all the tenderness and sympathy of the world into one endearing term, I would call it mother. No other word in the language is invested with such charm and pathos as this. Grave senators, grim featured soldiers, hard-headed business men and frivolous worldlings melt under its power. The great depths of the soul are broken up at its sound. The very incense of heaven clings to it. There is no face in all the chamber of memory so vivid to the last as the face that hung over us in the cradle, and no voice that lingers with such sweetness as the voice that sang our evening lullaby."

Let us make this day the one when mother's are thought of. If she is far away, write her a letter. If you can, send her a Mother Day flower. Perhaps you can put one on her grave.

10:30, Mother's Day service. The Women's Relief Corps will attend in a body and be seated in reservation. If your mother lives, wear a red flower in token of her memory; if she has deceased, wear a white flower. For those who have not provided for themselves, flowers will be had at the church door. We invite the mothers, old and young. If you have children, bring them. A committee of ladies will take care of your children while the service is being held. Be sure and come. Special sermon by the pastor for mothers. This service is not for mothers only. Everybody not identified with another church is cordially invited to attend.

12 o'clock, Sunday school. The mother can remain for this service. One gets a greater knowledge of the Bible by being a regular attendant of some Sunday school.

3:00 p.m., Junior League. Mrs. Etta Nichols is leader of this meeting. Send the young people in and they will enjoy this service.

Marble.
Marble is a product of marine sediments and volcanic fires. It is laid down on the sea bottom as shell heaps, which gradually turn into chalk. If the strata should be deeply buried in the rocks, the intense heat of the earth causes chemical elements to rearrange themselves so that they crystallize into marble. Various impurities in the chalk give the marble its various hues.

Persistent Bees.
For 20 years a swarm of bees have occupied the back of the school clock at Micholdever, England, and no attempt at removing them has been successful. It is a resident of that town. The swarm had been thought destroyed some years ago and the entrance the bees had made was cemented up, but each year they have returned, and they even bored a new hole through the cement.

Ingenuity.
One of the most exciting occupations is that in which newsboys engage when a coin drops through a grating in the sidewalk. A long stick is found first. Someone provides a end of chewing gum, which is stuck on the end of the stick. Then one of the boys guides the gum to the coin and draws it forth, while the rest of the gang coaches and criticizes.—Exchange.

The doings of the Rah Rnh boys cause considerable llaah Haking among the rest of the population.

AT THE MOVIES

EXCITING CHASE AND FIGHT IN BIG MYSTERY

One of the most exciting roof-top chases and fights ever screened will be seen in "The Leavenworth Case," a Whitman Bennett production, which will be shown at the Palace Theatre on Tuesday and Wednesday. This sequence forms the unexpected in the presentation of this unusual mystery story. "The Leavenworth Case," which is based upon the famous novel of the same name by Anna Katharine Green, is the story of the solution of the baffling murder of Ira Leavenworth, a wealthy old reclusive, who is found shot to death in his sound-proof apartment. Seena Owen and Murtha Mansfield are seen as the nieces of Ira Leavenworth. Winifred Lytell is a romantic and mysterious figure in the plot, while Bradley Barker and Paul Doucet are prominent in the all-star cast. Charles Giblyn directed the production, which is rated as the best mystery story ever screened.

Whitman Bennett's production, "Loyal Lives," which will be at the Palace Theatre on Saturday and Sunday, is hailed everywhere as the most human portrayals ever screened. "Loyal Lives" is the story of an unsung hero. It is the story of devoted, unflinching service. It is a tribute to the acme of loyalty. It is the story of the postman.

"Loyal Lives" portrays the life of a postman in a typical American town. It goes with him on his route, shows his duties, his kindness of heart, and his pictures, too the dangers he confronts. Highly dramatic, "Loyal Lives" teems with the adventure and romance of the United States Mail Service. In it are two tremendous thrills—a daring robbery of a speeding railway mail train and an equally dangerous hold-up of a post office.

Brandon Tyman, America's foremost actor, plays the role of the plodding postman. Mary Carr again appears in her inimitable role of mother. Faire Binney lends enchantment with her beauty as Peggy, adopted daughter. William Collier, Jr., is another member of the all-star cast. He is the juvenile lead.

FARM STOCK

Timely Suggestions on Management of Horses

In years gone by, hay was cheap and it was wastefully used. The same thing is true now on some farms. Hay is worth too much to be used for bedding or wasted in any other way. Another waste is in not cutting hay at the proper stage, or curing it in a proper manner. The results are that it does not give the best returns or is refused when fed.

Where there are many horses to be fed and each driver feeds his own team, there is a considerable loss of both hay and grain. In such cases, there should be only one feeder and each horse fed according to his needs and no feed wasted. Experience proves that more economical results are secured than when each driver feeds his own team.

Other forms of waste are ill-fitting harness, especially collars, causing sore necks and shoulders and swellings. Badly kept feet are often the cause of much discomfort. Horses, to work well, must be free of pain and comfortable.

Abuse and mistreatment result in high feed bills. High checks, especially the overdraw, and bits that pinch, are a constant worry and should not be used on the ordinary horse. When three or more horses are driven abreast, sometimes they are not placed right in the team so as to work most comfortably together, and then again they are reined in such a way as to place some of them at a disadvantage and cause worry. After the driver has learned his horses he should arrange them so that they can work in a free, easy manner and always be comfortable. In using heavy horses at hauling, the size of the load should be increased rather than the number of trips made. Urging them beyond a reasonably rapid walk can be done only at the expense of feed.

The teeth should receive proper attention. Sometimes they are in such condition that the food cannot be well chewed, and consequently is only partially digested. This results in waste of food, incapacity of the horse and low power.

Feed and Exercise Are Essential Sow Factors

What are the most essential factors in the successful management of the brood sow at the time of farrowing?

It is important to feed right. The high price of tankage is keeping farmers from feeding this protein feed to their sows. Corn alone is not sufficient because it is low in protein and mineral content. Experiments at Iowa State college go to show that where one-fourth pound of tankage is fed along with corn, the pigs weighed 0.4 of a pound more at birth and were stronger than the pigs from the cornfed sows. Alfalfa or clover hay are good feeds to furnish protein and bulk. A liberal supply of mineral matter must also be supplied in the form of salt, soft coal, lime or wood ashes.

Exercise is also an important factor. It does the sows good to run all winter in the cornfield or be obliged to go a considerable distance from the sleeping quarters for their feed. The inactive sow is usually constipated and feverish at the time of farrowing, and most of the trouble encountered at this time can be traced to lack of exercise and faulty rations.

Feed and Exercise Are Important to Brood Sow

The brood sow needs a variety in her feed and exercise. In experiments conducted at the North Dakota Agricultural college, under the direction of Professor Shepperd, it was found that sows will readily eat alfalfa hay, and that when this is fed with a mixture of about half barley and half shorts at the rate of two and one-half pounds daily for a 200-pound sow, splendid results have been secured. Equal parts of barley, oats and bran or shorts also make a very good feed.

Exercise is also very important. It was found that the best way to give the grain feed was to sweep the floor clean and scatter the grain feed on it. This results in the sows spending hours on their feet getting their feed.

Wheat Is Apt to Cause Digestive Disturbances

When fed to horses, in large quantities, wheat is apt to develop digestive disturbances and also cause skin eruptions. The best plan to follow in giving the grain to horses is to feed in moderate quantities only. Grind it coarsely and mix with some other bulky feed like bran or chopped hay or straw.

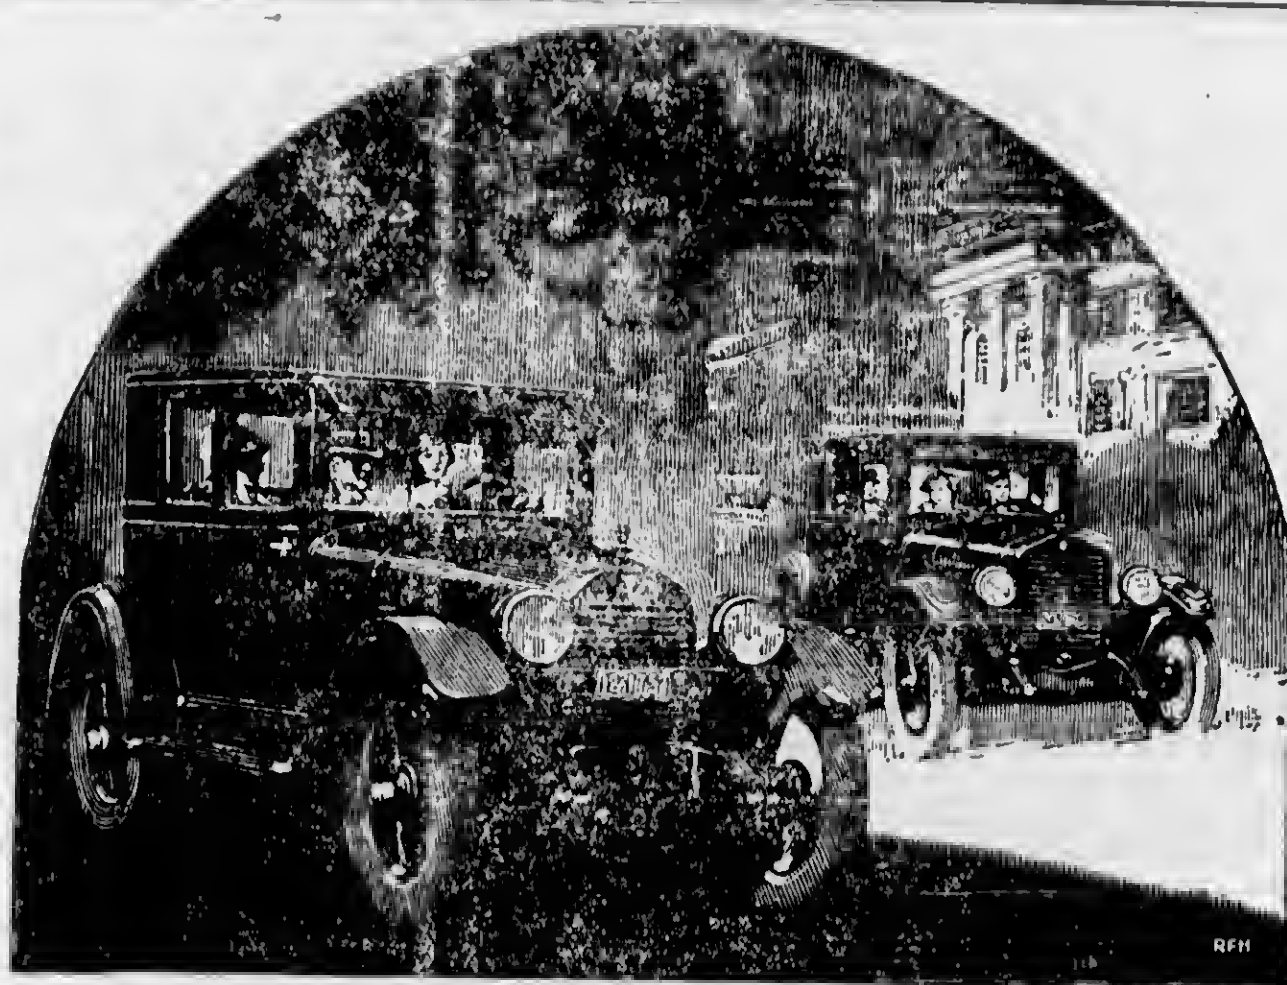

Clean Up Hog House.

See that the lot surrounding the hog house is disinfected and cleaned up. Put in new bedding and window lights if any happen to be broken, also notice that none of the ventilators are closed up.

Feeding Wheat to Hogs.

To feed wheat most economically to hogs it should be coarsely ground or rolled. Grinding adds from 16 per cent to 22 per cent to its feeding value. Soaking before grinding adds some, but the amount is questionable.

Into the Attic

Few youngsters today ever saw a horsehair sofa. They wouldn't know what to do with a fire taper, carpet stretcher or coal oil lamp. They couldn't braid rags into a rug, or wind yarn without tangling. But they know the how and why of typewriters, phonographs, telephones, automobiles; what happens when a push of the button gives light, or a kodak's flash fixes their image on paper.

Their education is as modern as the advertisements they see. They have no more use for the lamp and the chimney of yesterday than you for the wick and tallow of the day before.

Advertisements induce such progress. They urge wide use that means improvement. They help you lift the out-of-date into the attic—rid you of the water buckets and soap kettles of slavery. They bring late improvements within your reach.

Read the advertisements regularly. Keep alert to the new.

Without advertising you would never know a product's worth until you had bought it

French

Mrs. Rose's French Class gave an interesting program before the assembly Monday morning. The program was based on work done in class during the year. All members of the class took some part and included the following numbers:

1. "The Marseillaise" in French sung by the Class, accompanied by Miss Elisea Fairchild.
2. Historical setting of a French story by Celia Howe.
3. The Story, "La Dernière Classe" by Nina Richardson.
4. Personal letters received from high school students in France, read by Vera Belding.
5. "Bereuse de Jocelyn" song in French by Erma Carey.
6. A French story with the English translation—Vera Halverson.
7. A scene in a French Restaurant—"La Nasse"—Arlene Cooper and Wesley Smith.
8. An American Version from the French Play "Le Cœur de Cucu" by Daudet. Characters: St. Peter—Margaret Fitch, Satan, Anne McAnn, Mr. Hamilton, Ina Geaelt.

The numbers were announced in French by Elizabeth Hlzman and Thelma Ramsey interpreted them.

Our University inspector who visited the French Class during a practice expressed himself as very well pleased with the work.

Miss Lizette Deibel of Saginaw, Michigan, sister of Mrs. Rose visited the high school Monday morning and the Central Building. Miss Deibel has held the position of Technician in the Toledo hospital for several years. She will leave soon for Hollywood, Calif., where her wedding will take place on June 17 at the 1st

MAY PROVE FATAL

When Will Charlevoix People Learn the Importance of It?

Backache is only a simple thing at first. But if you find 'tis from the kidneys.

That serious kidney troubles may follow. That dropsy or Bright's disease may be the fatal end.

You will be glad to know the following experienced.

'Tis the statement of a Charlevoix citizen.

Mrs. Elwin Johnson, 803 Bridge St., says: "When I had kidney trouble, my back was stiff and lame and when I did any stooping sharp pains caught me in the small of my back. I had a great deal of headache and my kidneys acted irregularly. Don's Pills were recommended and after using them I was cured in a fine way."

HOLSTEIN BOSSIE ROLLS UP RECORD

Loeb Farms Cow Mentioned by Registry Office.

An excellent production record was made recently in the herd of the Loeb Farms, at Charlevoix, Michigan, by their purebred Holstein cow, Harcourt Shadeland Pontine, according to an official announcement made by the advanced registry office of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

At the age of four years and eight months this cow produced 21,552 pounds milk containing 670.9 pounds butterfat equal to 838.63 pounds butter in one year.

Testing for the advanced registry is one of the two chief agencies for improving the capacity of dairy cows. The other is the cow testing association. The latter aids the farmer-dairyman to size up his herd, cull out the undesirable animals and put his dairy on a paying basis. The former, testing of purebred cows for advanced registry, sorts out the most desirable cows and bulls for the improvement of the breed. Purebred bulls from cows holding advanced registry records, are in demand for the further improvement of dairy herds in cow testing associations.

HAMMOND LANDS TWO ROAD JOBS

Gets Contracts on Bliss-Carp Lake and Pleasantview Pike

Bids for three highway improvement jobs in Emmet county were opened last Monday at the office of the county road commission at Petoskey and contracts let for the three undertakings.

O. D. Hammond, of Charlevoix, who has the job of constructing Center pike, was the successful bidder for three miles of gravel road in Carp Lake township on what is known as the Bliss-Carp Lake pike. Mr. Hammond also secured the contract for two and one-half miles of gravel road to be constructed on what is known as Pleasantview pike. This job is on the road east of Brutus. John Filey was the successful bidder for the one mile of highway in Bliss township. This is a part of the Bliss-Carp Lake pike.

Mr. Hammond is making good progress on his work in Center township and is expected to have Center pike improvement completed within a short time.

RECENT EPIDEMIC OF SMALL BLAZES

Fire Department Kept Busy Since Last of April.

We have had another epidemic of fires recently—none very serious, fortunately, but still fraught with all the possibilities of fire, that best of servants and cruellest of masters.

Taking them in the order in which they occurred:

Monday, April 28th, summer residence converted out of shed on end of Mrs. Josephine Krulik's place on Lewis street. Fire started at about 6 p. m. in defective flue in ironing room, the building being used at present as a laundry. Damage around $150.

Thursday, May 1st, home of Mrs. Earl Dodd on East Lincoln. Slight roof fire, caused by spark from chimney. Damage, replacement of a few shingles.

Saturday, May 3rd, Charlevoix Hotel. Fire started under big range in kitchen, caused by hot fire in range overheating the flooring beneath it. Serious enough so that dinner could not be served at the hotel that day. Damage around $50.

Sunday, May 4th, home of Fred Seymour on Wood street. Roof fire started about 1 p. m. Estimated damage, $25.

The quick work of the department prevented all of these fires from becoming disastrous. The chemical, only, was used in all cases.

RICHARD BABCOCK, PIONEER, IS DEAD

Passed Away Last Friday at Charlevoix Hospital.

Richard Babcock, father of Mrs. John McCann of this city, died last Friday, May 2, 1924, at the Charlevoix hospital, following a four weeks illness. He was 67 years and 6 months of age.

Mr. Babcock was one of Michigan's early pioneer residents, born in Ionia county, November 2, 1856, the son of Hermann and Adella Babcock. He came to Charlevoix county with his parents in 1879 and settled on a homestead grant near Walloon Lake. He was married to Mary E. Gish of Ionia, October 30, 1880, at Petoskey. To this union two children were born—Mrs. John H. McCann of this city and Miss Esther Babcock, formerly of Petoskey, who has been staying with her sister here during the past winter. A brother of the deceased, James Babcock, died at Petoskey on the 4th of last December.

The family moved to Petoskey in 1900 and resided there until the death of Mrs. Babcock, which occurred on March 9, 1922, at which time Mr. Babcock came to Charlevoix to live with his daughter, Mrs. McCann, with whom he stayed until the day of his removal to the hospital. The funeral was held at 2:30 Sunday at the First Presbyterian church in Petoskey, Rev. C. W. Long, assisted by Rev. Harry Allburt, officiating. Interment was made in the Greenwood cemetery at Petoskey.

To the best of organized kitchens there will be an occasional bit of left-over pastry and one is often puzzled as to how to utilize it. Here are a few suggestions:

Tarts are delicious tidbits and may be prepared "on purpose" or with left-over pastry. Roll out very thin and cut with a biscuit cutter into rounds, in even numbers. Take half of the rounds and with a large thin knife make small holes in the circles of pastry—three makes an attractive number. Bake the tarts, spread jelly on the circles and cover with the perforated ones.

If one has less time, roll and cut the pastry into triangles and squares, sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon and bake. These may be served with a hot sauce as dessert if liked.

Pastry shells may be made to use filled with preserves, jams or with sweetened fresh fruit. Roll the pastry and line muffin pans or cover the bottoms, then bake.

Roly Poly.—Roll out a small circle of pastry, making as large a one as the size of the family warrants. In the center place chopped apples and raisins, using three times as much apple as raisins. Roll up, place in a deep baking dish and cover with enough brown sugar to sweeten; add a tablespoonful or two of butter. Pour over boiling hot fruit juice, elder, or boiling water to cover, and bake in a moderate oven for at least an hour. Usually there will be sauce enough to serve; if not, serve with cream and sugar.

Cheese Straws.—Roll the pastry very thin, cover with grated cheese, season with a dash of cayenne; soft cheese may be used but will need much seasoning. Fold up in thirds, folding in the cheese, roll again into a long, narrow sheet, cut into narrow strips and bake in a hot oven until brown.

Small, fancy cakes may be made by baking the pastry cut into circles; put, then together with a filling of cream, or jam or jelly. Cover with whipped cream and serve for a most dainty dessert.

Turkeys Are Particular About Winter Quarters

Turkey raising is a distinct and separate business from that of raising chickens; the nature of the turkey is so different from that of the chicken that it requires different management altogether. The turkey still retains many of its wild habits. Then, of late years, serious diseases have played sad havoc with the business in many parts of the country. Blackhead, particularly, has carried off many thousands, compelling some of the largest growers to quit the business. The farmer who has never had turkeys on his farm is not likely to suffer, provided he starts with perfectly healthy stock.

When diseases can be avoided, the cost of raising a turkey is less than that of raising a chicken, while the former weighs more and sells for more per pound. The fact that turkeys will, from the time they are eight weeks old until winter sets in, obtain the greater part of their living from the bugs, grasshoppers, waste grain and weed seeds picked up in their wanderings over the farm, insures their maintenance throughout the summer at a low cost to the grower.

Breeding stock should always be selected from the flock in the fall, before any have been marketed, at which time the choicest specimens can be picked out. If this has not been done there should be no further delays. Those selected probably would bring a little more money than some of those marketed, but they are also worth more as breeders than the poor ones. Strong, active, healthy birds—those that have never been afflicted with a serious disease—are wanted if the future turkey crops are to prove profitable. The old turkey raiser should separate his breeders from those that are to be marketed before fattening commences, as breeding stock is easily injured by becoming overfat.

Up to their fifth year turkeys are profitable as breeders, though it is a good plan to change gobblers every year, especially if some of the young females are retained for breeding. Hens are not fully matured until two years old and they are at their best during the next two or three years. During the mating season the proper proportion in which to divide the sexes is from six to ten hens with one gobbler.

The breeding stock should receive good care during the winter months. Without proper care and attention, as well as suitable quarters, turkeys will not go through winter in good health, and, consequently, will not be in such good condition for the breeding season, and that means poor success with the young. Young turkeys, bred from healthy stock are hard enough to raise, without the extra handicap of unhealthy parentage.

Turkeys do not thrive in damp, stuffy quarters in winter. A well-lighted open shed or loft, fitted up so as to prevent direct draughts but having good ventilation at all times, makes a good place. Turkeys can stand a good deal of cold, but they cannot stand close, foul-smelling quarters. Fix up some broad perches a couple of feet from the floor; provide troughs for grit and water and, in real cold weather, put some straw or other litter on the floor. Feed corn and other grails regularly and, during severe weather, give an occasional warm mash.

White Rocks and White Orpingtons Are Similar

The characteristics of White Rocks and White Orpingtons are very similar. Sometimes it is quite hard for the inexperienced to make a distinction between the two breeds. The White Rocks should have a yellow beak, while the White Orpingtons have a white or pinkish white beak. Both breeds have reddish-bay eyes and in each breed the comb, face, wattles and earlobes should be a bright red. The shanks and toes of the White Rocks are a bright yellow, while with the White Orpingtons the shanks and toes should be white or pinkish white. You will note, therefore, that the chief characteristic to look for in distinguishing one breed from the other is the color of the beak, also that of the shank and toes.

It is Seldom Desirable to Cross Chicken Strain

It is seldom desirable to cross strains. It can be compared, in a way, to crossing breeds; the first cross may appear to give uniform offspring, but in the second generation many undesirable qualities are liable to appear. If you have reason to believe that some other strain will give you better results, gradually work into the pure strain. Crossing the strain may act you back several years.

Diseases of Fowls.

When a fowl sneezes, waters slightly at the eyes and nostrils, and the face puffs up, this indicates a common cold. When accompanied by a rattling in the throat, the trouble is bronchitis. Difficulty breathing indicates pneumonia. Canker in the mouth means diphtheria.

When Duck Eggs Don't Hatch.

When the eggs from a certain pen of ducks do not hatch well, the trouble often may be corrected by changing the male to another pen or by introducing a new leader.

TRAILING ARBUTUS BECOMING SCARCE

Botanists Are Urging Drastic Conservation Measures.

Local people visiting the woods Sunday brought back early specimens of the trailing arbutus, the spring flower of the north. They report that the clusters are not so full as in former years and that there will be a shortage of the blossoms this season.

The statement of those who have visited the haunts of the wild flower bear out the prediction of botanists and students of nature that, unless drastic and immediate measures are adopted, the trailing arbutus will soon be extinct in this country.

Leading botanists of the United States are advocating state conservation laws for the protection of the fast disappearing trailing arbutus as the only remedy for saving it from extinction.

The dainty pink blossom in its setting of dark foliage and with its unusual fragrance, is so eagerly sought, by wild flower enthusiasts and those exploiting them for

THE SCHOOL DISPUTE IN CERTAIN OF ITS PHASES

Don't Like to Take Sides—But Some Things Call for Pointed Comment

In commenting on the difficulties which have arisen between the Charlevoix school board and the superintendent of schools, culminating in the demonstration staged by the students on last Thursday morning, the mass meeting of students and citizens on Thursday evening and latterly the meeting of the citizens' committee with the school board, we are not prepared to sit in judgment on the relative merits of the claims of either side of the controversy.

There are, however, certain features of the affair, viewed as a whole, that call for special consideration in a general way.

Possibly the most striking point is the way in which the school difficulties were used as an excuse to satisfy a well-known personal enmity through the medium of a newspaper article. This question of Americanism to which our attention has recently been called is more a matter of individual aptitude for assimilating its principles than of the period of exposure to their influence. Some people might be lifelong residents of the United States without ever coming to really understand its basic principles of fair play and gentlemanly and sportsmanlike conduct, which includes avoidance of innuendo and rabid personalities in the discussion of public affairs. And then, you know, there are some grown-ups who, like their children, are never able to keep from sobbing over a severe chastisement. We expect this attitude from the kids, but it is rather amusing when displayed by their elders.

Then, again, we would suggest regarding the charge of Bolshevism which has been passing around so freely since the affair started that it is a little shop-worn. "Bolshevism," as an incriminating term, went over big right after the war, when people's minds were a trifle upset and we were confronted with what appeared at that time like a complete breaking up of established standards of life and conduct. However, with the passing of years, people came to recognize in it a species of propaganda, used by various groups or cliques to stifle and stamp out opposition to their own pet projects.

For a while, if you expressed as your opinion that certain parties seemed to have made too large a profit out of the war, you were a Bolshevik. If you happened to suggest that certain government officials appeared incompetent, you were an ardent disciple of Lenin and Trotsky. It was used again during the prohibition controversy to characterize those who felt that a little less drastic measure than the present amendment might be more effective. It has been used to describe both the opponents and the supporters of the soldier bonus, the gas tax bill, vaccination, primary reform and whatnot. It is an ugly word with an ugly significance and we would prefer not to hear it used—especially, in connection with our children in the schools. "Bolshevism" used to be a big word to frighten the little folk. Now, it simply means when you use it that someone has accidentally or otherwise stepped on your pet corn.

Lastly, whatever may be our attitude towards the action of the students of the high school and grades in staging the demonstration that they did in behalf of a superintendent whom they both loved and respected in good faith, there is a lesson in the incident for us older people.

And we, as school voters and tax payers, shown anywhere near the solidity, earnestness and enthusiasm that was displayed by our children last Thursday morning, whether mistaken or otherwise, we would not now be shrinking from the state-wide advertisement of a regrettable squabble. And we attended the meetings of the school board in force throughout the year, as we turned out on last Thursday evening, much of the difficulty and misunderstanding that has transpired might have been ironed out in amicable fashion and the little rifts in the lute repaired before they had become chasms. When we shall have become sufficiently awakened to tear down from its time honored place upon our walls the popular American motto of the 20th century, "Let George Do it," things will probably move along a lot smoother.

The committee appointed by the citizens at the general meeting on last Thursday evening to confer with the school board regarding Mr. Hamilton's resignation has met twice since the date of their appointment—once with the school board and once in private session. The recommendation which is a result of their deliberations is hereto appended. It will have been read at the second citizens' meeting, which is scheduled for Wednesday evening, May 14th, by the time this paper reaches the hands of the reader. The recommendation or resolution follows:

Charlevoix, Michigan, Wednesday, May 14, 1924. We, the committee appointed by this meeting to interview the Board of Education relative to the resignation of Mr. Charles F. Hamilton, after a very careful survey of the situation with the said board and further talks with Mr. Hamilton, find that there exists such an evident state of friction between them that it is almost impossible for the two to function together in association with our schools.

We feel and recommend that the action of the board should be suspended.

FISH SUPPER WAS ONE-SIDED AFFAIR

Not Much Left But Bones When the Ladies Finished

Sunday, May 4th was a memorable day in the annals of the families of Sam Hamilton and P. J. Morn.

These gentlemen, accompanied by their better halves, journeyed to Carp and Maple rivers, north of Petoskey, where they attended a dance at the game reserve Saturday evening and the next day caught a total of 64 trout.

Forty-eight of these they brought home. They had sixteen of the speckled beauties for supper the night of the fish "fest" and it is reported that Mrs. Morn ate seven and Mrs. Hamilton went her friend one better, getting away with eight. We can't see where Messrs. Hamilton and Morn came in on this deal, but if they were satisfied we are.

LEAGUERS MEET TO PLAN SEASON

CHARLEVOIX ENTERS TEAM AT PETOSKEY MEETING

Commercial Association Is Backing the Nine This Year—A Thousand Bucks Needed

Charlevoix was represented at the meeting of the baseball league team heads held at the Elks' Temple in Petoskey last Friday evening. The Charlevoix Association of Commerce, while not assuming any definite responsibility, are going to stand behind the baseball team this year in a substantial way and help to make it a winning aggregation. Two of the members of the association were present at the league meeting on Friday evening to represent our interests there.

Other cities that have entered teams are East Jordan, Boyne City and Harbor Springs. Several other cities have applied for places and, if they come in before the schedule starts, may be included in the league this year. Pellston representatives were missing from the meeting, but we understand that the fans of that city met last Monday night with the intention of deciding whether or not to enter a team in the league. Petoskey is still on the fence and, like Pellston, must decide within a very few days, as the playing season will soon open in northern Michigan.

The name adopted for the league was the Northern Michigan Resort League. President Vought of the Boyne City team presented a proposed schedule of games for the season. The double umpire system will be used this season. Last season one umpire handled each game.

Most of the games planned are Sunday afternoon events, with contests on the several summer holidays. Each city represented thus far has a good baseball field.

The only thing now standing between Charlevoix and Petoskey and a place in the league is about $1,000, needed to insure payment of a part of the expenses. The gate receipts would care for the remaining expense. Petoskey is planning the sale of 200 season tickets at $5.00 each as a means of raising the necessary "wind." These tickets are to be sold by a committee of the fans. Perhaps some such plan would work well here. If finances are cared for, there will be no trouble in securing a manager and ten or twelve good players. Boyne City, East Jordan and Harbor Springs appear to have their finances well in hand and players signed up.

Fifteen games will be played in all, 5 on the home grounds and 10 away.

MUSIC MEMORY CONTEST AWARDS MADE

Edna Himebaugh Wins the First Prize with Perfect Paper

The music memory contest was held last Wednesday evening at the school house, in spite of much to divert attention, 45 students took part and the result was very gratifying to the committee in charge.

Edna Himebaugh had a perfect paper and won the first prize of $5.00. Next in order, the excellent papers were those of Myrtle O'Neill, Noreen Moran, Valera Ripley and Billy Supernaw. All will have the second prize divided among them.

TO INAUGURATE FINEST SERVICE

PERE MARQUETTE PLANS FINE TRAINS FOR THIS LINE

Instead of One Tourist Train a Day, There Will Be Two Fast Specials

The finest train service ever attempted for the northwestern Michigan summer resort region by the Pere Marquette railroad is to be inaugurated early in June, according to the advance schedule made public here today.

Instead of one through tourist train a day into Charlevoix from points south, as in former seasons, there will be two with two more with through car connections.

One of these through trains will be the Detroit train, bringing in the tourists from the Louisville, Cincinnati, Dayton, Toledo, Detroit, Saginaw regions, and the other a through train from Chicago, bringing the St. Louis, Chicago, and Grand Rapids tourists to Charlevoix.

The first of these trains inaugurated will be the Chicago, Grand Rapids, Petoskey run. There will be three pre-season runs on this train, leaving Chicago on Friday, June 6; Tuesday, June 10; and Friday, June 13. The regular service will start June 16 and will continue to September 21. This train, northbound, will be known as No. 9 and southbound as No. 10. It will carry ten section compartments, one drawing room sleeping car between St. Louis and Petoskey, and several sleeping cars between Chicago and Petoskey. There will be a club car and coaches. This train, northbound, will reach Charlevoix at 6:45 a. m. and leaves south-bound at 7:21 a. m.

The Cincinnati-Detroit train, Nos. 14 and 15, will be inaugurated June 20. This train will run north by way of Saginaw and Baldwin to Petoskey and bring the rush passengers from Ohio and southeastern Michigan. This train reaches Charlevoix at 7:20 a. m. and carries through sleepers from Louisville, Cincinnati, Toledo and Detroit for this city. The train leaves southbound at 6:40 p. m.

In addition to these two fast, special tourist trains which will cover a wide range of territory, there will be two other trains carrying through passengers from the same territory. The first of these trains will reach Charlevoix at 3:20 p. m. and Petoskey at 3:55 p. m., making connections with Cincinnati and Ohio points, Detroit, St. Louis and Chicago trains bringing passengers north. The second train will come in at 8:38 p. m. and bring passengers from the same territories.

The summer schedule for these trains will go into effect June 15. Two other trains, a southbound No. 6 and a southbound No. 8, will leave Charlevoix at 9:06 a. m. and 2:20 p. m., respectively.

Notice to Dog Owners.

Much damage is being done to flower beds and shrubs by dogs running at large on the grounds of the Belvedere Club. If owners do not have sufficient interest in their dogs to keep them at home, measures must be taken to stop this nuisance.

CHEESE FACTORY IS BUYING MILK

Management Needs 6,000 Pounds for Daily Production

The cheese factory at Loeb Farms is now going full blast. Cheese is being made from the milk from Loeb Farms, Orchard Bay Farms and Breezy Point Farms. The milk is brought to the factory every day except Sunday.

W. C. Howe, of the Overlook Fruit and Poultry Farm, on the south arm of Pine Lake, has started a truck route through and around Barnard. The first trip on Monday brought milk from such good dairymen as L. Boss, J. Bottema, L. Shapton, E. W. Olach, Robert Matchett, F. W. Matchett, C. Cork, W. Shanton, W. Burns, Ed. Boss, Hiram Potter, Jr., John Potter and M. Garber.

The whey (the by-product of the cheese) is returned to the farmers for their hogs. Hogs fed on whey and corn fatten nicely for the market.

Loeb Farms will buy all milk available, and urges farmers to deliver their milk to this route. If farmers not on this route will get together and furnish enough milk, transportation of same will be arranged for on request. The vat at the factory has a capacity of 6,000 pounds of milk and the factory needs all it can get.

USE NEW PLAN FOR BROOK TROUT

MILLIONS OF SMALL FISH ARE BEING PLANTED

Thomas Bryant, District Warden, has Charge of Work in This Region. Sportsmen Co-operating.

A new method of distributing brook trout from the hatchery at Oden, Michigan, is being worked out under instruction of the department of conservation by Thomas Bryant, district warden, who is handling the work this season. A large truck each morning hauls 80,000 of the baby trout from the plant, distributing one can in each of the large number of favorable small streams which feed the regular trout streams.

More than two and a quarter million brook trout, fed at the hatchery until they are in the finest of shape for planting, are being distributed this season under Mr. Bryant's direction.

It is believed that a large part of the trout planted this month will survive. The baby fish are planted so far up the feeder streams that the larger fish will not molest them.

The new truck is also equipped as a fire fighting unit and the crew has already put out a number of small forest fires discovered as the men were passing through the slashings and timber regions.

Sportsmen of the region are lending their assistance, both in planting of the carefully raised baby trout and in discovering and extinguishing the small forest fires. The big truck is met at the central distribution points and the sportsmen carry the cans to the many streams, thus saving much valuable time.

Guy Lincoln, superintendent of the Oden hatchery, is reported to have hatched and cared for the finest hatch in history. The old system of distributing the trout fry has been abandoned and the district warden and his deputies are now handling the work in co-operation with the hatchery.—Petoskey Evening News.

BUSY WITH BRIDGE WORK THIS SUMMER

Repairs at Indian River and New Jobs Over Bear and Maple

It is reported here that one of the piers for the big new highway bridge at Indian River has been condemned and will be torn out and reconstructed. It is said the pier was so constructed that it made navigation difficult for ships passing beneath the bridge.

It is believed at Indian River that the work of constructing the big new bridge will require most of the coming summer. New bridges are also to be constructed on Bear River in the south part of Petoskey and across Maple river at Pellston.

"CHANTICLEER" CAN CROW A BIT

SCHOOL PAPER WINS SECOND PLACE IN STATE COMPETITION

Would Have Grabbed Off First, But Muskegon Heights Had Their Own Print Shop

Charlevoix in general and, in particular, the Senior class of '24, C. H. S. and the Charlevoix Courier now have a large and brilliant feather to place in their caps, so to speak.

At a convention of the Michigan State Interscholastic Press Association, held at Ann Arbor on May 8th, 9th and 10th, under the auspices of the University of Michigan Union, at which were present delegates from every high school in the state, the "Chanticleer," official publication of this year's senior class of Charlevoix High, printed by the Courier and edited by Albert Widdfield, received second award in a class competition of high school publications of the state.

The "Chanticleer" got a high mark of "A" in press work, stock and typography, besides receiving exceptional mention for the originality and interest of its contents. Lack of sufficient editorials and the fact that Muskegon Heights H. S., which won first place, printed its organ on its own school press, were the factors that prevented the local paper from standing at the very top of the heap. Saginaw took third place.

Decisions were made by a panel of 24 judges, including the editor of the Detroit Times, a number of leading journalists and several university professors. Charlevoix was the smallest high school represented, but by reason of winning first place in its class, the "Chanticleer" was permitted consideration in the state-wide contest, in which it won second place.

HEADS WATCH DEPT. AT HERPOLSHIMER'S

Mrs. Fred Bellinger Finds a Congenial Occupation

The Herpolshimer News, monthly house-organ of the big Grand Rapids department store for May, 1924, contains a very good likeness of Mrs. Fred Bellinger, former well-known resident of this city and a short description of her work as head of the new clock and watch department of the store.

The article, headed "Knows Her Merchandise," reads as follows:

"Should you ask a question or two about watches or clocks, it will not in the least trouble Mrs. Bellinger to tell you all about them. For Mrs. Bellinger has studied, repaired and sold clocks and watches for several years. Indeed, she can 'clean your clock' (no slang intended, she really does understand cleaning and repairing of clocks and watches). She is quite delighted with our new clock and watch department. Mrs. Bellinger sees to it that not a single one leaves the department until it has been thoroughly tested and regulated."

LOCAL PYTHIANS WIN SECOND PLACE

Northern League Meeting Was Well Attended

Pine Lake Lodge No. 122, Knights of Pythias, represented by some 15 of its members, won second place in the Northern Michigan Pythian League contest held at Traverse City last Wednesday evening. Competing teams were Munitee, Traverse City and Charlevoix, Munitee winning first honors, Charlevoix second and Traverse City third.

Work in the third degree was put on by the contesting teams, several teams who were expected to enter the contest failing to appear at the last minute.

Teams representing Pine Lake Lodge have at different times won first place in this contest, thus being winners of beautiful silver trophies, which were destroyed with other lodge property in the recent bank building fire. The team was also winner of two firsts among individual prizes offered.

AT THE MOVIES

Torrence With Us Again

The greatest character of them all! After his brilliant success in "The Covered Wagon," Ernest Torrence more than deserves this distinction.

On viewing this great epic of American frontier life critics were unanimous in declaring that never before had an actor given so superb a characterization as Jackson to the screen nor was it likely that its equal would be seen for some time to come. But here they were mistaken, for Mr. Torrence is with us again, this time in the Paramount picture of the Harry Leon Wilson novel, "Ruggles of Red Gap," which will be the feature at the Palace Theatre Saturday and Sunday. His is the role of Cousin Egbert, the socially incompetent husband of Mrs. Effie, self-appointed leader of the North End set of Red Gap, under whose watchful eye Egbert finally blossoms out beautifully. She procures for him the services of the valet of an English nobleman, and his transformation starts, and so does the comedy. Better go see it.

Spoiling the Fun.

A clergyman says it is all right for young people to kiss. But the msn. He takes away half the fun of it.—Birmingham News.

Here are the Reasons for the Power, Smoothness and Endurance of Oakland's Six-Cylinder Engine

1. Oakland's new six-cylinder L-head engine is of the most advanced design. Its remarkable performance is the logical result of competent engineering and high grade construction throughout.
2. The large, perfectly-balanced crankshaft runs in big, special, bronze-backed bearings. These patented bearings are positively the best that money can buy.
3. Lubrication is force feed by means of a reliable gear-type oil pump. Main, camshaft, and connecting-rod bearings and timing chain are continually bathed in oil. This positive lubrication adds greatly to quiet operation and long life.
4. Oakland cylinders are honed smooth as glass on special machines. Pistons and rings of the latest design are individually fitted into each cylinder with extreme care and precision. Vibration and wear are practically eliminated by this process.
5. The connecting rods are light and strong. The habilit-lined bearings are permanently bonded to each rod with pure tin—the most approved process and also the most expensive.
6. The camshaft is driven by a silent chain running in a bath of oil. This is conceded the best type of drive and the most accurate. There is a convenient external adjustment.
7. Oakland valves are of special heat-resisting alloy steel. So efficient are they, that valve grinding is necessary only at very rare intervals.
8. The intake manifold is scientifically designed to insure perfect fuel distribution to all cylinders, and therefore smooth, economical operation. There is a handy temperature adjustment for summer and winter.
9. The electrical system maintains Remy standards of excellence. The spark controls are entirely automatic, which means that the engine will deliver the maximum of power under all conditions.
10. The single-plate disc clutch is simple and durable. It is self-adjusting for wear. Its smooth operation makes possible the remarkably easy gear shifting of the True Blue Oakland.

WASHINGTON LETTER

President Coolidge has a well considered and carefully thought-out peace plan. With his approval Senator Lodge has introduced a resolution providing for a world court and the reconvening of the Hague convention. It embodies all the best features in the plans hitherto suggested and eliminates all connection with the League of Nations, which connection has made impossible approval of the court plan now pending. The president also contemplates sounding out the great European powers, as soon as the Dawes plan for the settlement of German reparations is out of the way, with a view to convening another disarmament conference, this one to impose limitations on the construction of aircraft, cruisers, submarines and other subsidiary naval vessels, and probably to deal more specifically with the question of poison gases, etc. And finally, with the Dawes plan accepted the president is prepared to aid, in the way of American financial advice, the composure of Europe's economic difficulties. He is very optimistic regarding the acceptance of the Dawes plan and is convinced that once Europe's economic ills have been cured the market for American agricultural products will come back.

Meanwhile the president is exerting all his influence to induce congress to stop quarreling and get down to business. He especially wants to see some concrete and practicable legislation for the relief of the agricultural situation passed before adjournment. At the president's instance Senators Smoot, Lodge and Pepper have promised that the McNary-Haugen bill shall not be made the next order of business in the senate after the passage of the tax bill. Mr. Coolidge is not committed to the McNary-Haugen bill in its present form. Like many of his friends he is far from certain that as written it would prove practicable, but he is most anxious to see it debated, improved where necessary and rounded out into a really sound and beneficial measure and, to this end, has been inviting a number of the leaders of congress to breakfasts at the White House and urging them to apply their best thought and study to the agricultural problem.

Mutilated until its author would never recognize it, the Mellon plan, or what there is left of it, is being incorporated into a tax bill. The Democrats, with the aid of the insurgents, have outvoted the Republicans at every turn so that there is now grave danger of the president's having to veto the tax-reduction measure. The insurgent-Democratic coalition has reduced the surtaxes from 50 to 40 per cent. Mr. Mellon advocated a reduction to 25 per cent and demonstrated so clearly none could fail to understand that, without at least that reduction, rich men would persist in putting their money into tax-exempt securities instead of into industries where they would have to pay surtaxes on the income and where the money would promote business. If Mr. Mellon was right the surtax should have been reduced as he advised. Certainly his plan should have had a fair trial. But if he was wrong there was no excuse for reducing the surtaxes at all. If the Democrats and insurgents are right in their insistence that the rich pay the surtaxes, why reduce those surtaxes? If Mr. Mellon is right, in saying that the rich don't have to and won't pay surtaxes unless they are reduced to 25 per cent and under, there is no possible excuse for not following his advice. This is the reasoning which, it is believed, will compel the president to veto this mongrel measure.

The president has already vetoed the Bursam pension bill. He is expected daily to veto the bonus bill. And the suspicion is growing in Washington that the game of the Democrats is to send to the White House a series of bills he will have to veto, hoping that, as each measure has some friends, it will result in his making a sufficient number of enemies to result in his defeat next November. Of course that is not the intention of the insurgents voting with the Democrats—except perhaps those who think they have a chance to be elected president on a third party ticket—but many here feel that the sincere insurgents are merely being "played for suckers" by their wily allies, the Democrats.

H. Foster Bain, Director of the Bureau of Mines, at the last hearing of the oil investigation, which senator Walsh is still stringing out, told the committee that there had been little loss of oil by drainage from the Teapot Dome reserve because of the Sinclair lease, that "the Interior Department locked the barn door before the horse was stolen." He also testified that the Doheny leases paid the government 28 per cent royalty in December,—unwelcome testimony to senator Walsh who has been insisting it was only 10 per cent.

Unusual Acts in Line of Duty and Public Service Win Praise
For Ten Others

Heroes of civil life, those who act, without thought of self, for the benefit of others, usually are allowed to go their prosaic way, praises unsung. But four persons, employees of the Michigan Bell Telephone Company, are due to receive recognition for unusual services to humanity during 1923. They have been selected as worthy of the Vail Memorial medal in bronze, given for specific acts of unusual service.

Ten other members of the Michigan Bell Telephone Company force have been named by the award committee for meritorious mention. They will receive letters of commendation from the vice president and general manager of the company, George M. Welch.

Four Awarded Vail Medal

The four employees of the Michigan Bell Telephone Company to receive the medals are: Mrs. Anna J. Halton, operating agent, Niagara, Wis.; Arthur Warriner, exchange repairman, Iron Mountain, Mich.; Mrs. Lullie Cole, night operator, Marshall, Mich.; Winfield S. Deau, repairman, Jackson, Mich.

The ten named for honorable mention are: Miss E. Schram, supervisor, Pontiac; B. A. McMahon, exchange repairman, Pontiac; Don Young, switchboardman, Pontiac; L. R. Simpson, cableman, Petoskey; O. A. Judd, testman, Petoskey; Claude Pickett, repairman, Petoskey; Charles McEachern, repairman, Bay City; Samuel E. Hayes, supervising foreman, cable trouble department, Detroit; A. E. Lewis, transmission inspector, Lansing and Joseph Allen, line installer, Jackson.

The date for presentation of the medals has not been announced.

Shortly after the death of Theodore N. Vail, former president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and known as the "builder of the telephone," Mrs. Vail established the Vail Memorial medal fund to perpetuate the ideals her husband had established of service to the public. Each year a divisional committee selects those who during the year have emulated the ideals of the late Mr. Vail by unusual acts of devotion to duty, regardless of self.

Town Saved From Fire

Mrs. Halton is in charge of the exchange operated by the Michigan Bell Telephone Company at Niagara, Wisconsin. One morning, shortly after four o'clock, a flickering reflection on a metal piece on the switchboard attracted her attention. She discovered it came from a flame spreading up the side of a building across the street.

A high wind was blowing and sending flaming sparks rocketing through the air, endangering the entire town. Mrs. Halton at once realized the danger. Working at highest speed she warned the members of the fire department, notified proprietors and managers of nearby stores and called all other residents she could reach by telephone, asking their aid in fighting the blaze.

While she was giving the alarm, her own home in which the exchange is located caught fire, but she did not stop her work at the switchboard until the entire town had been aroused. Then she started to save her home, using snow to extinguish the flames. In recognition of her efforts Mrs. Halton was made a paid member of the Niagara fire department and was accorded other honors.

Quick Thinking Saves Lives

Quick thinking and equally quick acting enabled Arthur Warriner to save two lives during the year. Sinclair

NO RESPONSIBILITY

There is a liberal representation of medium grade mentality in the congress of the United States, and the general level of intelligence and ability among members of the body seems to be steadily on the down grade. But while this is a bad thing because it naturally results in more or less stupid legislation, it is not the worst factor in the situation which discloses itself in the national capital.

What is more dangerous than mediocrity among senators and representatives is lack of honesty. We do not mean to say that members of congress are bribe takers or are otherwise corrupt in the ordinary meaning of that word. But a large number of them obviously are lacking in a feeling of obligation toward either their constituencies or the country at large. They have no conscientious feeling that they are public servants and under honorable engagement to fulfill pledges or observe mandates. In large measure the members of congress are political adventurers who consider their own interests first and the interest of the public afterwards. And in view of their onths of office and their status as Americans this is not honest—Detroit Free Press.

FLY-FIGHTING TIME

When "swat the fly" first became a nation war cry, people were surprised to find how effective their efforts against the fly nuisance could be. There really were fewer flies about in communities which took swatting us seriously as they have taken Mah-Jongg during the past winter.

Then there seemed to be a relaxation from this worthy work and last summer flies appeared in many a family dining room that had been free of them a year or two before. It is because of that cessation of effort that the call to arms of health officers in various sections of the country today reserves special mention. It is again time to swat the fly. Authorities assure us that a swat in time saves more than nine times nine future swats, that every fly killed at this season means literally hundreds fewer to struggle against later.

Now, too, is the time when we have energy to push this campaign vigorously. In midsummer, when it is an effort even to frighten a fly away with a wave of the hand, few persons have the will to take the deadly swatter up and actually slay every fly that buzzes within earshot.

And along with swatting, it is well to see that the lid of the garbage can still fits properly, that all the screens are in good condition—and in place—and that any other possible precautions against the fly are taken in time.

AMERICA'S WATER POWER

There is going to waste annually in the United States and Canada water power equivalent to the burning of a half billion tons of coal—three-fourths of the amount mined in this country for all purposes.

And this estimate is based on the figures of the United States geological survey for the quantity of water power available without storage.

Without the building of a single dam or reservoir, there is now tumbling down our mountain sides and merrily flowing over the cataracts of our hills and valleys waste power sufficient to turn nearly every wheel of industry, light and heat our homes, operate our locomotives and drive the ocean liners across the seas.

By building huge reservoirs to hold the water during the rainy seasons and at times of melting snow, the late Charles P. Steinmetz estimates that the water power resources of the United States alone could be increased to 300,000,000 horse power. To obtain this amount of energy from fuel would require the burning of 3,000,000,000 tons of coal.

A recent report of the United States geological survey estimates the total water power of the world, without storage and at low water, to be 440,000,000 horse power.

It also states that, if the power could be extracted from every raindrop falling upon this planet as it journeys to the sea, we should have the staggering total of from 5,000,000,000 to 10,000,000,000 horse power.

When we consider that the amount of energy used now the world over for every conceivable power, the immensity of this vast treasure house of transformed sunshine bewilders thought and startles the imagination.

HAYES TOWNSHIP FARMER IS DEAD

John Kopf Succumbs to Pneumonia At Age of 81 Years

Hayes township lost a respected pioneer citizen in the death of John Kopf, who passed away on last Wednesday, May 11th, at the advanced age of 81 years, following a short illness with pneumonia.

Mr. Kopf was born in Germany, January 6, 1843 and came to this country in 1876. After living for a few years at Petoskey, he removed to Charlevoix county in 1882, settling on the present farm near Susan Lake. He was married in Germany and came to this country with five of his children, three others being born in this country. Two of the daughters, Mrs. J. A. Washburn, of Petoskey, and Mrs. W. H. Drehmer, of Charlevoix have since died. Mrs. Kopf, their mother, passed away some 19 years ago. The six surviving children are Mrs. George Frownfelder and Mrs. J. E. Moran of Grand Rapids, John Kopf, of Saginaw and George Kopf of Grand Rapids, Mrs. Anna Martin of Traverse City and Mrs. Andrew Struthers of Hayes township. One brother, George Kopf of Grand Rapids, also survives the deceased. All of the children were present at the funeral with the exception of Mrs. Frownfelder and Mrs. Martin who were deterred from coming by illness.

The funeral was held from the Struthers home in Hayes on Saturday, May 10th, Rev. C. W. Long officiating. The interment was made at Brookside.

KIND SPIRITS HAD BEEN BUSY THERE

Mr. and Mrs. George Brown Found Their House Prepared

Mr. and Mrs. George Brown, who recently returned from Detroit, where they have been spending the winter, experienced a rather delightful surprise when driving up to their home last Wednesday noticed that the storm windows had been taken down, smoke was pouring cheerily out of the chimney and a general air surrounded the place of its having come to life during their long absence to welcome them.

Proceeding on into the house, they found that the lights and water had been turned on, a fire was burning cozily in the stove and flowers and plants had been placed about the different rooms. Even a casual inspection showed that the house had been thoroughly cleaned and a basket of groceries lay awaiting them on the kitchen table.

They had not been in the house long before their mysterious benefactors appeared in the persons of their neighbors and friends who brought with them sundry and diverse eatables with the assistance of which they proceeded to make merry. It is not everyone who can boast neighbors of this kind as Mr. and Mrs. Brown are cheerfully willing to acknowledge.

Stagnant Spots in Ocean.

The Sargasso sea is almost the resting center of the whirl of the ocean currents in the north Atlantic. The seaweed comes from distant shores, where it has been wreathed off by the force of the currents. There are four other great weed-bumpered areas of little motion beside the Sargasso sea.

GRANGE LADIES TO FURNISH ROOM

Will Hold Chicken Pie Supper to Provide Funds

The ladies of Marion Center Grange are among the first to respond to an invitation extended by Charlevoix Hospital directors to completely furnish a room in the recent addition to the hospital.

The ladies have several plans under way to provide the necessary funds, the first of which is a chicken pie supper to be served in the grange hall at Marion Center the evening of Thursday, May 22nd. The supper will be followed by a dancing party.

We might state right here that this grange organization has a wonderful reputation in regards to "cats" provided for occasions of this kind, especially when it comes to fried chicken pie. The cooking is excellent and the quantity you get away with depends entirely on your capacity.

A general invitation to all is extended, especially to Charlevoix residents. Just mark this date on your calendar as "special" and patronize these ladies in this laudable undertaking.

ORDINANCE NO. 100

An ordinance to regulate the use of the public streets, avenues, alleys, and other public places within the city of Charlevoix.

THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ORDINANCES:

Section 1. Definitions.

The words and terms in this ordinance unless the context appears otherwise, shall be construed as follows:

(a) The word "street" shall mean and include all public streets, avenues, boulevards, alleys and other places within the city used for public travel.

(b) The word "vehicle" shall mean and include motor vehicles, bicycles, wagons, carriages, sleighs, auto-trailers and semi-trailers, or other conveyances propelled by power other than man power.

(c) The word "driver" shall mean any person driving, operating or in charge of the motive power of any vehicle, or riding or driving any horse, or other animal.

(d) The word "curb" shall mean the lateral boundary lines of the paved or travelled portion of a street, whether marked by curb stones or not.

Section 2. The driver of every vehicle or horse, except when lawfully passing another vehicle or horse moving in the same direction, shall keep to the right of the middle line of the street, and on any street divided lengthwise by a parkway or other division line, shall keep to the right of such parkway or dividing line.

Section 3. When vehicles approach the intersection of two or more streets, other than through traffic streets, the vehicle approaching on the drivers' right shall have the right of way.

Section 4. Bridge Street north of the south line of Hurlbut Avenue, Antrim Street east of Sheridan Street and such other streets as are designated by the Common Council of the city, and suitably posted as such, shall be through traffic streets.

Section 5. The driver of every vehicle shall bring his vehicle to a full stop before passing any stop sign placed on any street or at any street intersection, and shall bring his vehicle to a rate of speed less than seven miles per hour before passing any check sign so placed.

Section 6. Stop and turn signals.

(a) Before turning to the right or the left to leave a street, or approach a curb, and before turning around or stopping on such street, the driver shall give a timely warning signal to other drivers and to pedestrians, by extending the arm beyond and outside the side of the vehicle, holding the same in such position for a sufficient time to apprise others of his intention to so change his course or to stop, as the case may be. Provided, that in lieu of such signals, warnings may be given by any mechanical device which conveys an intelligible signal or warning. In all such cases the driver to whom such signal is given, as required by law, shall bring and keep his vehicle under such control as to be able to avoid injury to persons or property resulting from any misunderstanding of such signals, and shall in all cases heed any such warning as shall have been given him.

(b) The driver of a vehicle, desiring to turn to the left into another street, or to turn about in a street shall keep to the right of the center of the street intersection and as near to the same, as practicable. In no case shall a vehicle be turned about between street intersections.

(c) No vehicle shall be backed along any street except in moving from a curb, or when necessary to avoid collision or injury to persons or property and before and while backing the driver shall look backward and give timely warning signal. In no case shall a vehicle be backed at a greater rate of speed than is then reasonable and safe.

(d) No vehicle shall be backed upon or across any sidewalk unless and until the driver or owner thereof shall station a competent person at the rear of such vehicle or upon such sidewalk to warn pedestrians, and in all cases the driver shall give timely warning signals before and while crossing.

Section 7. The drivers of all vehicles shall give the right of way on all streets to vehicles of the fire and police departments and ambulances when pursuing the regular course of their duties and shall move his vehicle as far as practicable to one side of the street and come to a check.

Section 8. It shall be unlawful for the driver of any vehicle; (a) to drive such vehicle, or operate the motor thereof, on any street with the cut-out open; (b) to use a spotlight on any street within the business section of the city, or at any time or place when directed by a police or traffic officer not to do so; (c) to leave motor of a vehicle running without a licensed operator in charge thereof; (d) to drive or stand his vehicle within the business section of the city without dimming the lights thereof; (e) to permit smoke, vapor or gases to be given off from the exhaust of a vehicle of a kind or quantity preventable by the use of commonly used appliances and devices; (f) to make or cause to be made by said vehicle or its equipment, any unnecessary noise by means of bells, horns or other devices.

Section 9. Parking.

(a) The driver of every vehicle shall at all times observe and comply with any order or direction of the Street Commissioner of the city or of voice of any police or traffic officer as to parking, stopping, turning or starting his vehicle. He shall also observe and comply with indicated parking signs placed on the streets, as to the manner, direction and place of parking.

(b) No vehicle shall be parked within twenty feet of the intersection of the boundary lines of streets, exclusive of alleys, except to take or discharge passengers or occupants, and shall not remain within such space longer than is necessary for such purpose, and in no case longer than three minutes.

(c) No vehicle shall remain parked on either side of Bridge Street south of Hurlbut Avenue, or on Antrim Street east of Grant Street, a longer time than one hour within any continuous period of four hours, nor shall any vehicle remain parked on said streets a longer period than shall be reasonable and necessary.

(d) Every driver or owner of a vehicle shall at all times observe and comply with any order or direction of the Street Commissioner of the city or any employee of the street department, as to the movement or placing of any vehicle, given for the purpose of repairing or cleaning of streets, and any vehicle so parked as to interfere with such purposes shall be deemed a street obstruction and may be removed from the street by any police or traffic officer or any employee of said street department.

Section 10. The driver of every slow-moving or heavily loaded vehicle shall observe and comply with any order or direction, by hand or voice, of any police or traffic officer as to the direction, movement, parking, stopping or starting of any such vehicle, and the driver of such vehicle shall also observe and comply with any posted street sign indicating restrictions upon the use of any street by such vehicles.

Section 11. The driver and owner of any taxi cab or other motor vehicle engaged in carrying persons or property for hire, shall observe and conform to any rule or regulation adopted by the Common Council of the city as to the movement and parking of cars within the city, or indicated by posted street signs indicating parking stands for such vehicles on the streets of the city.

Section 12. It shall be unlawful for the owner or driver of any saddle horse or horses; (a) to drive any horse upon any street at a greater rate of speed than is reasonable and safe considering the traffic and other uses of the street; (b) to drive or ride any horse with more than one extra horse in lead; (c) to cause such horse to go upon the street while not under direct charge and control of a driver; (d) to disregard or refuse to comply with any order or direction of any police or traffic officer as to the movement, stopping or starting of any such horse while upon any part of Bridge Street within said city.

Section 13. Any person violating any provision of this ordinance, upon conviction thereof in any court of competent jurisdiction shall be punished by a fine not less than Ten Dollars and not exceeding Fifty Dollars and costs of prosecution, or imprisonment in the county or city jail not to exceed three months, or both such fine, costs and imprisonment in the discretion of the court.

Which?—

at the Same Price—the Half-Utility of the Open Car, or the All-Year Comforts and Service of the Coach? It is the One Important Question Before Buyers Today.

Since Closed Car Comforts Cost No More Why Buy An Open Car?

THE issue with motor car buyers this year is closed car comforts at open car cost. The Coach exclusively provides such advantages without forfeit of chassis quality. It is a Hudson-Essex invention. No other type is like it.

More than 140,000 Coaches are in service. Sales exceed 3,000 each week. The Coach is the largest selling 6-cylinder closed car in the world. That proves the success of value.

Coach has proved a staunchness and reliability never before associated with a closed car. In every service it satisfies the pride of ownership.

It is the Closed Car for Everyone

Everyone prefers a closed car. The Coach alone is the quality car within reach of all. It changed the trend from open to closed cars. Now all can enjoy finest chassis quality with all-year utility, comfort, and closed car distinction.

In two and a half years the

The Same Quality in Both Hudson and Essex

Hudson and Essex are creations of the same engineers. They are built under the same patents. There is no difference in quality of material or workmanship.

The price you want to pay will decide you for Hudson or for Essex. The closed car advantages of the Coach and its price surely leave no other consideration.

Into the Attic

Few youngsters today ever saw a horsehair sofa. They wouldn't know what to do with a fire taper, carpet stretcher or coal oil lamp. They couldn't braid rags into a rug, or wind yarn without tangling. But they know the how and why of typewriters, phonographs, telephones, automobiles; what happens when a push of the button gives light, or a kodak's flash fixes their image on paper.

Their education is as modern as the advertisements they see. They have no more use for the lamp and the chimney of yesterday than you for the wick and tallow of the day before.

Advertisements induce such progress. They urge wide use that means improvement. They help you lift the out-of-date into the attic—rid you of the water buckets and soap kettles of slaverydom. They bring late improvements within your reach.

Read the advertisements regularly. Keep alert to the new.

Without advertising you would never know a product's worth until you had bought it

FARM WORK IS BEHIND SCHEDULE BACKWARD SEASON A SET-BACK TO FARMERS

Labor Conditions Better in South
But Remain Unchanged in Northern Counties

Notwithstanding the fact that the season was backward during April and vegetation slow in starting, farm work made fair progress in the southern half of the state according to the farmers reporting to L. Whitney Watkins, Commissioner of Agriculture and Verne H. Church, Agricultural Statistician, U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. In the northern half, the snow remained until late in the month and very little seeding was possible before May 1. More plowing for spring crops was done last fall than usual which greatly aided the advancement of spring seeding.

Winter Wheat: There was very little damage to wheat from winter killing, the only injury reported being in low, flat fields where water and ice destroyed the grain in spots. As a result, the abandonment will be very light and is placed at one per cent for the state as a whole. This leaves 904,000 acres to be harvested. While growth has been rather slow to date, the stand and color are good, and the present condition is 89 per cent of normal, nine per cent better than last year and five per cent above the ten-year average. Hessian fly is reported to have done considerable damage in two or three counties. The present condition is equivalent to a production of 15,287,000 bushels as compared with 16,456,000 bushels last year, the average being considerably less.

Over 3,000,000 acres have been abandoned in the United States, leaving 36,828,000 acres to be harvested. The present condition of 81.8 per cent indicates a crop of 553,013,000 bushels.

Rye: As in the case of wheat, rye is in excellent condition, being 91 per cent of normal, four per cent better than one year ago and one per cent above the ten-year average. The present outlook is for a crop of 5,366,000 bushels as compared with 6,538,000 last year, the reduction also being due to a marked decrease in acreage.

The United States' crop is estimated at 61,739,000 bushels from the planted area of 4,337,000 acres. The average condition is 88.2 per cent.

Hay: The condition of tame hay as reported is 86 per cent which is two per cent better than last year but two per cent below the ten-year average. New seedlings withstood the winter well but were injured in some sections by dry weather last summer.

Meadows have been slow in starting and the weather during May will have much to do with the final yield. Old hay has brought good prices and has been sold more closely than usual, it being estimated that only 11 per cent remained on farms on May 1. The stocks of old hay on farms for the country as a whole is estimated at 12,823,000 tons. Pastures have made but little growth to date and show a condition of 70 per cent as compared with 56 per cent last year and 80 per cent, the ten-year average.

Live Stock: There has been no disease epidemics among live stock and the condition is generally satisfactory. Horses and sheep show the same condition as one year ago, 95 and 94 per cent respectively; cattle with a condition of 95 per cent are two per cent better than last year, and swine with a condition of 95 per cent are one per cent above the condition on May 1 last year. The mortality has been below the average except in the case of lambs which was the same as the average, and was reported as follows per thousand: horses, 12; cattle from disease, 12; cattle from exposure, 3; sheep from disease, 19; sheep from exposure, 3; lambs from disease and exposure, 15; swine from disease, 25. The mortality in this state was lower on every class than for the United States as a whole, and the condition was higher than for the country as a whole except in the case of sheep.

Farm Labor: The supply has materially increased during the last few weeks due to the slowing down of industrial activities in the cities, and is reported as being 73 per cent of normal. The demand has increased but little as the wages asked are too high in proportion to the value of farm products, and most farmers feel that they cannot afford to hire under the existing conditions. They report the demand as 82 per cent of normal, or a ratio of supply to demand of 89 per cent. One year ago the ratio was 85 per cent.

MUSICAL COMEDY A GREAT SUCCESS

"A Visit to Fairyland" Brings Out
Many Parents and Visitors

As large a crowd as has assembled at the high school auditorium in a long time was present Friday evening, May 9, to see the charming operetta, "A Visit to Fairyland," presented by the pupils of the first grade of the central building and of the second grade of the County Normal training room. All who came thoroughly enjoyed the hour thus spent, and pronounced the little musical comedy a great success.

The rostrum with its masses of ferns and bright-colored flowers furnished a most delightful playground for the may brownies, fairies, fireflies, and butterflies, into which the little folks were transformed for the evening.

Solo parts of the operetta were very well rendered by Byrnes Lamphair, Albert McMillan, Genn Graves, and Marion Oliver.

Between acts, piano selections were most admirably played by Angie Scott, Gwendolyn Miller and Lilace Johnson of the training room, fifth grade. Recitations by Ethel Powers and Junior Supernaw, of the third grade, also added to the enjoyment of the evening.

Great credit is due the two teachers, Miss Blanche Kingsnorth, County Normal critic teacher, and Miss Ada Sterus, first grade instructor of the central building, who drilled the children for weeks in preparation for the evening's entertainment.

Local Stock to Travel with "Cloverland Special"

The itinerary of the "Cloverland Special," dairy demonstration train, concerning which an article appeared in our last issue, according to present plans, is as follows.

The units of the train will be assembled at Stephenson in the upper peninsula, on or about June 2nd, and will visit Carney, Hermansville, Norway, Sagola, Iron River, Crystal Falls, Mass, Bark River, Wind, Rock, Trenary, Isabella, Manistiquette, Engadine, Ruyard, Sault Ste. Marie, Brimley, Moran, Newberry, McMillan, Chatham, Skandia, Negaunee, Republic, Houghton, Chassell, Pelkie, Baraga, Covington, Kenton, Bruce's Crossing, Topaz, Ironwood and Wakefield. The train will consist of three baggage cars; one passenger coach; a dining car; sleeping car and flat car, the latter for demonstration and display purposes.

Type stock of breeds prominent in the upper Michigan region will be carried and representatives of these breeders' associations will be on hand to emphasize the outstanding points of each.

Ten pure-bred bulls, purchased at the Loeb Farms by the field agent of the Holstein Friesian Association and E. G. Amos, upper peninsula county agent leader, with the idea in mind that they are to be the foundation stock and heads of future herds in the northern dairy regions, will be included among the thoroughbred cattle carried by the "Cloverland Special."

ROAD WORK SHOWS MARKED PROGRESS

All Holdover Jobs Will Be Rushed to Completion

All construction jobs on trunk line highways which were carried over from 1923 have been started, W. J. Kingscott, supervising engineer of the state highway department, stated recently.

Concrete is being laid between Scottville and Ludington and at Alanson, on M-11. While there are about three miles of concrete yet to lay between Scottville and Ludington the contractors are making good progress and expect to have the use of the road by July 1.

The gaps on M-11 in Charlevoix county probably will be closed with concrete by July 1 so that M-11 will probably be in good shape by that time.

Construction work is going on south of Boyne Falls on M-13 and at present traffic has to be taken over the newly made grade.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

By B. O. Hagerman

The following letter has been mailed to farmers of this vicinity by County Agent Hagerman:

May 12, 1924.
"Dear Sir:—This letter is to announce, to cordially invite, and to urge you to attend a joint meeting of the Charlevoix business men and a few of the leading farmers in that vicinity. This meeting will be held Wednesday evening, May 14, at 7:30 standard time in the court house.

The purpose of this meeting will be to discuss the farming condition as it specially pertains to Charlevoix territory.

Although it is freely admitted that Charlevoix is one of the greatest resort centers in Michigan, nevertheless if not surrounded by a prosperous agriculture, it can never hope to make the marked strides for advancement which it justly deserves. The success of any business man in an agricultural community is affected very materially by the amount of money his farmer patrons have to spend.

Last year Michigan potato-growers alone lost over a million dollars due to improperly graded stuff going on the market. As a result of this there is now being conducted a state-wide campaign for a system of better grading and orderly marketing. Meetings of business men, Rotary Clubs, Kiwanis Clubs and Lion Clubs all over the state are being called so that they may be informed as to the actual conditions.

Mr. H. P. Albaugh, one of the best inspirational talkers in western Michigan, will be at this meeting and will give a short talk which alone will be worth your while.

Remember the time, the date, and the place. Plan to attend so that you can afterwards converse intelligently on this subject with your farmer patrons. If they have more money to spend, it will mean more money to your business.

A light lunch will be served.

The General Conference now in session at Springfield, Mass., has voted unification with the Methodist Church South. This makes methodism the largest protestant denomination in the world.

Mother's Day services were fully successful. The church was crowded. There were floral decorations in profusion. The chorus choir rendered "I'm a Pilgrim" and Frank Pooler's "Mother of Mine" was well given.

Sunday School is coming up. Large splendid attendance.

Children's Day program will be given June 1st, when the children will render "Exultant Praise."

HON. TOM THROWS HIS HAT IN RING

ANNOUNCES HIS CANDIDACY FOR CONGRESS

Broad Gauge and Of the People, Central Lake Legislator Has Endorsed Himself to All

The Hon. Thomas D. Meggison, of Central Lake, has announced himself as a candidate for Congress.

Amidst the Hon. Tom, we want to say that he is a candidate after our own heart. He is man of the people, one of those common, every-day sort of men in whose company his fellow-men delight to be found. There is nothing spectacular about him. In action and in speech he is slow and easy. Yet he has that about him which gives to those who know him a feeling that when Tom (he prefers to be called Tom by his friends) has thought out a question and given his decision on it that that decision is as nearly correct as it can be.

And he is an American from the ground up. No hint of radicalism has ever smeared itself over his good name. No rumour of party disloyalty ever has been able to creep into the record of his long service in the lower house. None is there who is able to say that he forgot a friend or was unmindful of the wants, the needs and the welfare of his district, his state and nation.

He is a calm man, a secure man, a dependable man; loyal to the core and an American every inch. And he is thoroughly good. Can more be said?

Some of the measures in which Mr. Meggison has been chiefly interested in at the legislature are as follows:

A new distribution of primary school money, so that the poorer districts will receive more and the richer less. He introduced this bill and got it through the house, but it failed in the senate.

He did everything within his power to get the gas tax through; so that the tax on general property might be lowered.

He introduced and carried through a land certification bill, to prevent the frauds that have been carried out in planting people on worthless land.

He introduced the Cab bill, which requires railroads to use on their trains suitable cabs for the protection of their engineers and firemen.

These are some of the chief measures. He tried to lower the tax on general property whenever it could be done by such measures as the gas tax.

We know that Tom, if elected, will be just as active and earnest in the service of his constituency as he has been in the past and we heartily endorse his candidacy and recommend him unqualifiedly to the voters of his district.

PEARSON AND HARRIS ARE FAVORITES

Rollie Lewis Is Not a Candidate For Re-election

The following political dope was noted in the columns of one of our exchanges, under the head of "Political Observations, By An Old Timer."

"In the 29th senatorial district, all indications point to the re-nomination of William J. Pearson, of Boyne Falls. During the 1923 session, Pearson was recognized as one of the most forceful members of the upper house, and it is generally conceded that he will be sent back without opposition. Senator Pearson is considered an authority on conservation and forest fire prevention, as well as being exceptionally well up on other matters of state-wide importance.

In Charlevoix county, Judge J. M. Harris is being urged to make the run for representative in the Republican primary. Judge Harris is known as one of the strong legal men of the ante and has always been active in promoting the welfare of northern Michigan. Indications are that his candidacy is being well received, and adding strength daily. Rollie L. Lewis, present member from Charlevoix county is not a candidate for re-election.

HAS A TRIPLE SIGNIFICANCE

HEROES OF THREE WARS HAVE NOW JOINED HANDS

Their Work, Unfinished, Rests Upon Our Shoulders and We Must "Carry On"

Charlevoix organizations are planning this year to celebrate Memorial Day, Friday, May 30th, in fitting style.

Next Sunday morning, a union service will be held at the M. E. church, at which all old soldiers of the Civil War, veterans of the Spanish-American War, members of the American Legion and all ex-service men not affiliated with the Legion are requested to be present. The different organizations will assemble at the I. O. O. F. hall at ten o'clock and march to the church, where they will listen to an address by the Rev. H. R. E. Quant.

On Friday morning, May 30th, the parade will assemble at the Odd Fellows hall at ten o'clock and march to the cemetery, where the following program will take place:

Song—"America."
Prayer—Rev. Eldridge.
Song—Male Quartette.
Gettysburg Address—Stanley Hammond.
Song—"American, the Beautiful"—School Children.
Ritualistic Work—American Legion.

Address—Rev. C. W. Long.
Song—"Just Before the Battle, Mother"—Male Quartette.
Recitation—Georgia Kelderhouse.
Benediction—Rev. H. R. E. Quant.
Memorial Day now carries to the patriotic American heart a triple meaning. The survivors of the war to free the oppressed within our own borders have been joined by those who gave themselves freely to right the wrongs of an alien people and those who fought that the principles of true democracy and Christian civilization should not "perish from the earth."

It is for us who shall stand beside the honored graves of the heroes of three conflicts, waged to maintain justice, liberty and humanity, to determine, in the thought of the immortal Lincoln, that they shall "not have died in vain" and to pledge ourselves to do, each and every one of us, our small but important part to carry on the work that those who sleep beneath our feet were forced to relinquish.

A Hospital Graduate
Miss Norma Sherman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Sherman, of Eveline township, is a member of the graduating class of the Detroit Hospital Training Schools for Nurses, which according to the invitations now out, will hold its seventh annual community commencement on Thursday evening, May 15th, at eight o'clock, in the Arcadia Auditorium, at 3529 Woodward Avenue, Detroit.

Chicago Market opens Saturday May 24th. See display ad. elsewhere in this issue.—Adv. 21-1f.

Memorial Day Proclamation

By the Governor

Our country, the proudest, the most mighty of nations, sovereignty of righteousness, is again called upon to manifest its gratitude to the few remaining members of the Grand Army of the Republic and to pay tribute to the memory of the fallen. Memorial Day was created in order that the deeds of sacrifice and devotion to freedom in the Civil War might forever live. But time has brought a new and vast army of living and fallen heroes for us to honor. In deepest reverence we pay tribute to the few veterans of the Civil War still living. Soon the Grand Commander of all will issue His final order to these proud but faltering comrades of '61 and there will be no living Grand Army veteran to honor. May his memory always be sacred to us. The boys of yesterday who freed from tyranny a suppressed people and who extended righteous American rule to the other side of the world, are too fast passing into another realm. Soon the ranks of Spanish War veterans will be as thin as those of the Civil War. Let America never forget the glorious deeds and sacrifices of these fighting lads of yesterday. With flowers by land and sea, with every human token, let us give honor not only to the veterans of Civil and Spanish wars but to the young men of today who gave freedom to the world through battle on foreign soil. To the living veterans of all our wars, may our homage be in keeping with our gratitude. May our tribute be worthy of a grateful people.

Therefore, I, Alex J. Groesbeck, as Governor of Michigan, proclaim and urge a proper observance of Friday, May 30, 1924, as Memorial Day.

Alex J. Groesbeck, Governor.

Frederick is searching the forest for fairies, to ask them the Fairy Rose. Its fragrance is the only thing that can cure his ill grandmother. He is lost, but the Little Green Man of the trees comes to his assistance. He offers to hide Frederick near the fairy ball-room and himself ask for the Rose, since Frederick, a human being, runs the risk of having a spell cast over him, if seen by the fairies. At sight of the ball, however, Frederick is so entranced that he elaps his hands and is discovered. The Fairy Queen grants him her Rose, but casts over him a spell, which turns out after all to be a happy one—namely, that his heart shall always be young.

Just Imagine Yourself Bidding 1500 On a Pinochle Hand

Ernest Osborne, Chicago barber shop owner sat in a game of auction pinochle recently with three friends. He picked up his cards, looked 'em over and turned white.

"I bid 1,500," he whispered and keeled over.

Revived, he won the bid and picked up the "blind." Then he fainted again.

His hand showed 1,500 trumps—all the clubs in the deck—and an additional count of 300 for double pinochle.

Statisticians started computing mathematical chances for recurrence of such a hand.

"It occurred once a few hundred years ago," said some of the experts.

"One estimate is that there are 12,000,000 hands of pinochle played in the world every night. Figure it out for yourself."

MICHIGAN SPUDS WIN IN EASTERN MARKET

New York Growers Suffer From Our Competition

Michigan potatoes, carefully sorted and shipped under the "Chief Petoskey" trademark, are fast crowding New York potatoes out of Eastern markets, according to an article by L. J. Steele in a New York Farmers' publication.

"Chief Petoskey grade of potatoes has given such general satisfaction in some of the eastern markets," says Mr. Steele, "that it has been difficult to sell any volume of New York potatoes on these markets in competition with Michigan stock."

"Five years ago," continued the New Yorker, "Michigan growers recognized that, if they were to receive a premium for their potatoes, it would be necessary to decide on a high standard of grading and then sell their product in a bag bearing their trade-mark. They selected Chief Petoskey, the sign of quality, as their trade-mark, and under this brand they have maintained a better grade than U. S. No. 1, which is quite generally used by other potato growing states. In Cleveland and Toledo this extra quality brand has practically driven New York potatoes off the markets."

Why Are Chiropractors Being Sent to Jail in Charlevoix County?

Because they have no license;—to secure a license they must take an examination in medical subjects only, given by medical men who are the avowed enemies of Chiropractic.

This examination contains nothing of Chiropractic philosophy or practice, nor do the members of the examining board know anything about Chiropractic,—however they presume to say who are, and who are not competent Chiropractors.

They make no distinction between graduates of standard three-year Chiropractic schools, and graduates of correspondence, fly-by-night, or pseudo-Chiropractic schools.

In ten years the medical board granted only two licenses to Chiropractors. Suddenly, within the last year, the bars were down and more than twenty were licensed, others are urged to take the examination. Some of those recently licensed have as their only qualification to practice, THREE WEEKS attendance at a so-called Chiropractic school.

Is It Their Plan To License A Horde Of Incompetents,

That Chiropractic May Be Discredited In Michigan?

For ten years Chiropractors in Michigan have fought to obtain a Chiropractic law and examining board. For ten years they have been defeated by the powerful medical politicians. In writing of the defeat of the Chiropractic bill by the medical men in 1921, F. C. Warnhuis M. D., Secretary of the State Medical Board says: "A telegram was sent each of the secretaries of the county societies...urging them to bring every influence and force to bear on their senators from their counties.... The result was that 2100 telegrams poured into Lansing Monday morning and were delivered to the Senate." In the same letter, referring to a conference between Drs. McLean and J. B. Kennedy of Detroit and Governor Groesbeck, Dr. Warnhuis states that "when the Governor proposed that the Chiropractic bill be brought before the Senate for reconsideration, he was told by Messrs. Kennedy and McLean that if he did so there were 4000 PHYSICIANS IN MICHIGAN READY TO MAKE SUCH AN ATTEMPT A MOST COSTLY ONE TO ANY ONE PARTICIPATING IN IT." In other words these 4000 medical doctors THREATENED the Senate of Michigan if it dared to pass a Chiropractic bill.

Why it's True Blue

THE Oakland Six is true blue because it was designed with one very definite purpose in mind—to make it the finest light six in its class. Take Oakland closed cars for example. Here are real automobiles. They are true blue because their distinctive Fisher-built bodies are real closed car bodies—with no makeshifts nor compromises entering into their construction or appointments.

Oakland's Six-Cylinder Smoothness Means Greater Closed-Car Comfort

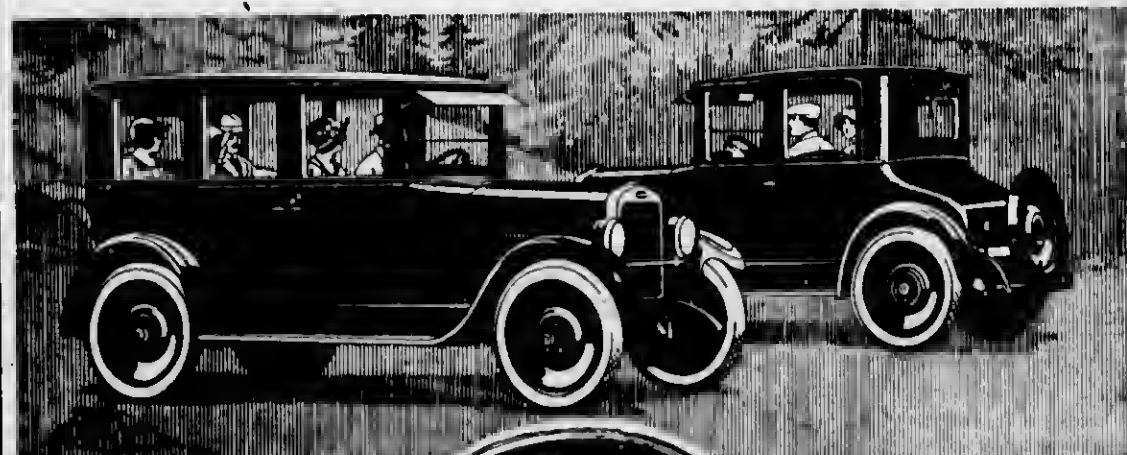

The Oakland engine is true blue because in it the natural advantages of a "Six" have been developed to a remarkable degree. There is freedom from annoying vibration, which is essential to complete closed-car satisfaction; there is extreme flexibility which makes gear changing rarely necessary; there is a surprising ability to respond to unusual demands quickly and without fuss—all of which qualities you will surely seek in selecting your next closed-car.

Then there are four-wheel brakes (you certainly should not buy a car without this proved essential); exclusive centralized controls on the steering wheel; a special body finish which retains its luster indefinitely, and a dozen other features.

Isn't it true that the problem of choosing the right car is merely a matter of getting the most and the best for your money? Examine the True Blue Oakland Six. Drive it yourself. We welcome frank comparisons.

Sealed in its Purity Package

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

By B. O. Hagerman

It is again time to make plans for treating your seed potatoes for the control of scab and black scurf. Don't misconstrue this propaganda as a campaign for more potatoes. Some people like to think that we have through better methods increased the production of potatoes until they are almost worthless.

If you prefer a 75 per cent stand, which would mean a three-acre crop on a four-acre field, don't consider these following instructions seriously. However, if you would rather grow a three-acre crop on a three-acre field, the following instructions for treating your seed will aid you very materially.

Directions

Seed potatoes should be graded. Mechanically injured and partially rotted tubers should be removed. They should be treated while they are dormant and before they are cut. The potatoes should soak for thirty minutes in a solution of corrosive sublimate (bichloride of mercury) four ounces of crystals to thirty gallons of water. Dissolve four ounces of crystals in two quarts or so of hot water, then add it to the thirty gallons of cold water.

Treat your potatoes in wooden vessels. By using two or more barrels a large quantity of potatoes can be treated in a day. Where 100 bushels or more of potatoes are to be treated, the work can be done more conveniently if a wooden trough or tank that will hold 8 or 12 potato crates is used.

The corrosive sublimate solution loses strength with use. If the potatoes are placed in the solution loose and are comparatively free from dirt, add one ounce of corrosive sublimate dissolved in one quart of hot water after each second batch. If the potatoes are dirty and are treated in bags, add one ounce of corrosive sublimate for each 30 gallons of water after each batch is treated. One pound of corrosive sublimate will treat thirty to forty bushels of potatoes.

After the potatoes have been taken out of the solution they should be spread in a cool, shady place and allowed to dry thoroughly.

Corrosive sublimate is a deadly internal poison. Do not pour this solution where livestock or poultry can get at it, and do not use treated potatoes for eating purposes.

We can sell you a good used Ford Sedan, Coupe or Touring car, with starters, at a very low price. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 10tf.

AT THE MOVIES

"To the Last Man"

Not a motion picture based on a story, but a photodrama which actually breathes the spirit of the original tale and personality of the author, is Paramount's new picture, "To the Last Man," a Zane Grey production coming to the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday. Mr. Grey spent several summers winning the confidence of the inhabitants of the Tonto Basin, Arizona, from whom he learned the story of the famous Pleasant Valley war, a feud of the late eighties which was fought out literally to the "last man."

Gaston Isabel, leader of the cattlemen and Lee Jorth, leader of the sheepmen, are old enemies. Both have come to the Tonto Basin from Texas with their sympathizers. Knowing that a fight is coming, Gaston Isabel sends for his son, Jean who is a trapper in Oregon. Meeting Ellen, Jorth's daughter, on his way to the valley, Jean falls in love with her.

This is the first of Mr. Grey's novels to be made into a picture under his new contract with Paramount. Mr. Grey was present when the picture was being taken. As a result of his assistance, the photo drama breathes the love of the out-of-doors. It is the story of the lives of primitive men with primitive hates and a love of fighting. Lois Wilson, Richard Dix, Frank Campeau, Robert Edson and Noah Beery are the principal players.

"Salomy Jane," Picture of the Golden West, Triumphs

Paramount's picturization of Bret Harte's famous story, "Salome Jane," will come to the Palace Theatre Saturday and Sunday. Jacqueline Logan, George Fawcett, and Maurice Flynn, the featured players, contributed much by their artistry to make the presentation the success it proved to be.

It seems like carrying coals to New.

ONE WEAK SPOT

Many Charlevoix People Have a Weak Part and Too Often It's The Back

Many people have a weak spot. Too often it's a bad back. Twinges follow every sudden twist. Dull aching keeps up, day and night.

Backache is often from weak kidneys. In such cases a kidney medicine is needed.

Doan's Pills are for weak kidneys. For backache and urinary ills. Charlevoix people recommend the remedy.

Mrs. Frank Smith, 307 May St., Charlevoix, says: "My kidneys were weak and irregular and there was a dull ache in my back. Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me and I got a few boxes at Hines & Co.'s Drug Store, and they cured me completely."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Smith had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

castle to tell the story of "Salomy Jane's Kiss," upon which the picture is based. Salomy Jane is a delightful mountain character as portrayed by Jacqueline Logan. When the stage, driven by Yuba Bill, a part excellently personated by Mr. Fawcett, is robbed and the stranger (Maurice Flynn) is arrested for the crime, the action becomes tense and spirited.

There are night-rides galore, and many beautiful spots in the redwood forests of the Santa Cruz mountains are pictured with restful effect. From the standpoint of artistic photography alone, the picture is well worth seeing, for many of the shots of mountain scenery are majestic and lovely. But the story—it's as full of thrill as an egg is of meat. It deals with life in Red Dog, a California mining town in the days of gold, but unlike most Western thrillers, its treatment is far from being trite and commonplace. The supporting cast is far above the average in excellence. To miss this entertaining picture is to miss an hour of the most delightful entertainment.

The friends and neighbors of Peter Nasson helped him celebrate his birthday last Friday evening and all had a nice time.

Excellent Mixtures to Maintain Breeding Ewe

After the ewes are bred, don't neglect them so far as feeding is concerned. Give them the right kind of feed and proper care. A pregnant ewe needs no grain during the first four months after breeding if she is in good condition at that time. On the other hand it will not do to winter her on straw and timothy hay or corn stover. What she needs is clover or alfalfa hay or at least clover and timothy, with the former predominating in the mixture. Silage, if of good quality, also makes a good feed for bred ewes. An average of two pounds of corn stover and two pounds of clover or alfalfa hay per day will maintain a ewe in excellent condition, but for two or three weeks before lambing it is advisable to add about half a pound of grain per day, a mixture of equal parts of oats and corn being suitable for that purpose.

Breeders Can Exchange Rams to Good Advantage

There are a number of sheep breeders who are always in the market for new rams. It sometimes happens that breeders can exchange rams to good advantage when neither could use the one they own any longer. The best possible place to select a ram is at the home of the breeder where the ram is to be seen in his everyday form. Even at the home of the breeder the purchaser needs both eyes open.

Success in Building Up Profitable Swine Herd

Success in building the swine herd is only reached through turning out a class of animals that possess individual merit which differentiates them from the great masses of animals of the breed to which they belong, and then it is that the mortgage has faded away, the new house built and the bank account grown as a protection against that when we shall retire from the breeding ring to a more quiet private life.

Listen To My Call

Bring in that lame and interfering horse to Jim Graham's shoeing shop and have its shoes fixed right. I have studied and specialized many years on these things and have discovered that 60 per cent of all lameness is caused by the coffin joint not being in line with the level of the foot, as in cases of interfering, side bones, ring bones, twisted cartilage and many other defects. The coffin joint is the whole thing in the foot. When the coffin joint is not level, not a bone stands straight in the whole leg. Now, no unshod horse wears his foot level any more than a man wears his shoe level and every unshod foot, shod or not shod, has a twist in every joint in the leg and none but the most critical expert can pick up a horse's foot and locate the joint, to know how to dress the foot. In fact, only about one horseshoer in five hundred is actually fit to shoe all horses. I am here for this purpose and if you need me I am at your service. J. W. Graham, Charlevoix.—Adv. 21-11-pd.

Scrub Live Stock Is Drag on Pocketbook

There Are Still Many Farmers Who Use Scrub Sires.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)

The desire of practical live stock owners as well as agricultural workers to take an active part in spreading the message of "Better Sires—Better Stock" is evident from frequent letters received by the United States Department of Agriculture.

"I am in the cattle business," a Montana stockman writes, "and use pure bred sires, but there are still a good many people using scrub bulls in this part of the country. I would gladly work in conjunction with someone in getting the people interested and show them the great results from using pure bred sires, and for all time do away with the scrub animal which is such a drag on the pocketbook."

This live stock owner asked how better sires work is conducted in other places and was given that information. A Nebraska farmer who also desired to participate in the work reported that he was disposing of his last grade bull.

The manager of a large live stock farm in Indiana recently notified the department that he had sold his scrub lion, which is to be replaced by a pure bred, and henceforth all his live stock breeding operations will be on a strictly pure bred sire basis. Eastern states are similarly active.

Universal Panaceas Are Likely to Be Worthless

No "stock food" can be made which will cure all the ills that animals are heir to any more than an unfailing panacea for human ills can be put up in bottles and sold for so much per box.

The specialist in live stock sanitation at the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca points out that the use of these stock foods is not discouraged so much because there is necessarily anything harmful in them, as because they are likely to be quite worthless.

These "stock foods," he declares, are of much less value than is the food that the farmer raises himself for his stock. It is significant, he says, that almost invariably the directions accompanying these remedies and foods say that careful attention to sanitation and feeding conditions must be observed during treatment.

Most stock goods and tonics upon analysis are found to contain a large percentage of common salt; a laxative such as epsom salts, glauber salts, or the like; sulphur; charcoal or other form of carbon; sulphate of iron as a tonic vermifuge; and usually a filler by way of mill-feeds, oilmeal, screenings, grass seeds, pennut shells, sand or tankage. Usually a very small quantity of a mild drug like gentian, fenugreek, ginger or pepper, is found, also.

Big Value of Genetics to the Animal Breeder

"The chief value of genetics to the animal breeder lies in the elimination of false ideas and myths concerning breeding facts and results," declares R. A. Brink of the genetics department at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture.

"In the plant-breeding field, it is possible to apply genetical knowledge more extensively than in the breeding of the higher types of animals because of the ease and economy with which plants may be grown."

"The fur-bearing animal breeder can very profitably use a knowledge of genetics in securing crosses which result in the best colors, markings and length of hair. In all cases, genetics promotes clearer thinking on the part of the breeder," Brink declares.

General Farm Notes

Make the farm buildings as ratproof as possible.

Plan the places where the manure will be applied this winter.

Provide a box stall and special feed and care for every cow at freshening time.

If crimson clover is to be grown on land for the first time the seed should be inoculated.

The county agent's hardest task is serving the man who "don't want nobody to tell him nothin'."

Make plans for remodeling your dairy barn so as to make it an efficient, healthful stable at least expense.

Loyalty to a co-operative association is a real test of the farmer's character and of his pride in the farming business.

Increase the grain fed to each cow slightly and watch record sheets to see if there is a profitable increase in milk flow.

Study fertilizer needs for next year and the prices and analyses of fertilizer materials. You can save money by doing this.

"Phone No. 25 about your Pickle Agreement anytime before June 20th. But, better to secure it EARLY."—Adv. 21-11.

eight; with grade Jersey at 48.7, George Rubingh, ninth, with grade Durham at 45.8 lbs. and also tenth with grade Holstein at 45.4 lbs. of butterfat.

Other high men are D. H. Brat, H. A. Thomas, Henry Vanderslik, Robert Watson and John Hennep.

In high herd average, George Drenth takes first place—his eight Holsteins producing 41.16 lbs. of fat, 1,203 lbs. of milk at 3.42 per cent test and $8.40 net profit per cow; Robert Watson next, with 9 Guernseys, making 37.40 lbs. of butterfat, 841 lbs. of milk at a 4.45 per cent test and 7.83 net profit.

Third comes John Hennep, with 8 cows producing 36.46 lbs. of fat, 939 lbs. of milk at a test of 3.88 per cent and $7.53 net profit. The following members are next: Henry Vanderslik, Tony Shooks, John Torng, Ernest Loehne, Louis Oosterbaan, George Rubingh, Peter Wieland, F. H. Hemstreet and Herman Heeres.

For the month of April, it cost $0.311 to produce a pound of butterfat. The selling price, at present, is 35c or 36c, so it can readily be seen that the dairymen are not getting rich out of cows. It would take unlimited quantities of butterfat at 4c profit per pound to make as much money out of it as the average city man would lead us to believe.

For every dollar expended for feed, the farmer got $1.45 back. It cost $1.17 to produce 100 lbs. of milk during the month.

FARM LIVE STOCK

Apple By-Products Good for Wintering Animals

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)

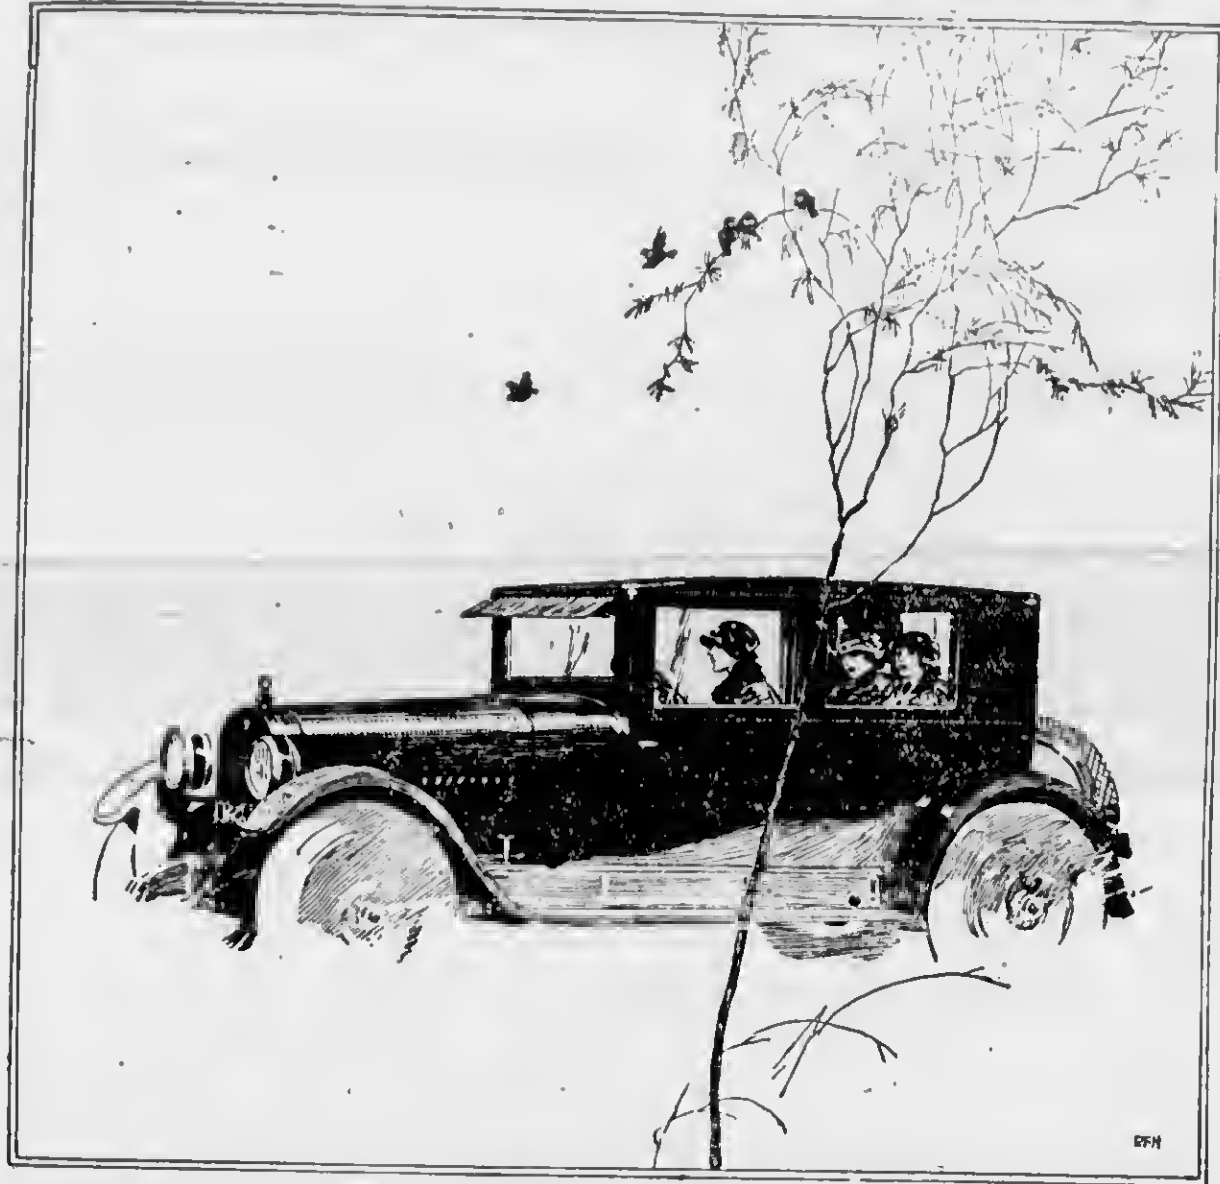

Thousands of tons of apple pomace are going to waste annually which might profitably be turned into food for wintering cattle, says the United States Department of Agriculture. This loss is attributed either to lack of facilities for preserving the pomace or to indifference on the part of stock raisers.

Studies to determine the food value and best methods of utilizing this by-product from commercial cider and vinegar mills have been made and are discussed in Department Bulletin No. 1190, "Apple By-Products as Stock Food," just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. When the moist apple pomace can be used in the fresh condition or be ensiled it yields a succulent cattle food comparable with corn silage, of special value in the winter feeding of stock. The quantity that can be utilized in this way, however, is limited because of the relatively high cost of transportation for material having such a high water content. Its most profitable utilization depends upon its preservation by dehydration and producing it as a commercial food.

In feeding trials with dairy cows, dried apple pomace proved to be a palatable feed and appeared to be equal pound for pound of dry matter, to good corn silage as succulent food. The material was fed wet and replaced the corn silage in a ration including grain and hay. The material, which had been ground to a meal, was prepared by adding to it three times its weight of water several hours before it was fed.

A copy of this bulletin may be secured from the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., as long as the supply lasts.

Into the Attic

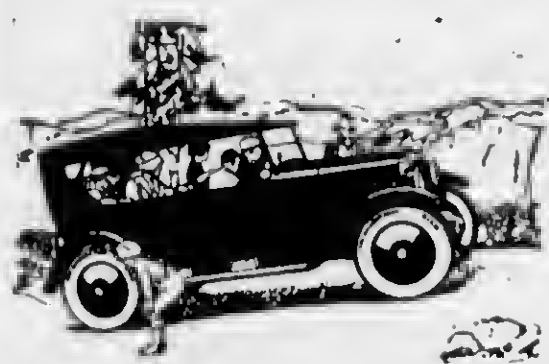

Few youngsters today ever saw a horsehair sofa. They wouldn't know what to do with a fire taper, carpet stretcher or coal oil lamp. They couldn't braid rags into a rug, or wind yarn without tangling. But they know the how and why of typewriters, phonographs, telephones, automobiles; what happens when a push of the button gives light, or a kodak's flash fixes their image on paper.

Their education is as modern as the advertisements they see. They have no more use for the lamp and the chimney of yesterday than you for the wick and tallow of the day before.

Advertisements induce such progress. They urge wide use that means improvement. They help you lift the out-of-date into the attic—rid you of the water buckets and soap kettles of slavery. They bring late improvements within your reach.

Read the advertisements regularly. Keep alert to the new.

LOCALS GIVE BOYNE HANDSOME DRUBBING

Score Stood 11 to 2 In Favor of the Red and White

In the fourth game of the baseball season, Hamilton's crack horsehiders cleaned up on Boyne City by a twelve point margin.

With captain Cunningham on the mound, the locals had a great advantage over Boyne in batteries. Although both teams were held down to a low score until the sixth inning, Charlevoix then broke loose and netted nine scores in a period of twenty minutes. Up until the sixth, the score stood 2 and 2, but at the close of the ninth, the locals had tacked on twelve more runs to Boyne's none.

Cunningham struck out 11 players on the Boyne side and the best that Poquette could do for Boyne was six of Hamilton's rough and ready.

There was a neat double play in the eighth. Vought of Boyne flied to McCann of Charlevoix. McCann pegged to Bacot, who caught Manglos off first base.

McCann scored two 2-base hits and Cunningham one. C. H. S. made three errors to Boyne's four.

The team plays Mancelona on our home grounds this afternoon at three o'clock.

CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

The Song of the Builders

ON every hand is heard the rattle of the builder's hammer and the rasp of his saw. Overnight, it seems, buildings rise-- new streets appear.

And the thousands of new homes and great buildings increase the problems of the public service companies.

This Company attempts to foresee the great growth of service demand and extends its plant into new districts as rapidly as possible, in an effort to most efficiently serve the people of Michigan.

However, sudden unforeseen population and industrial growth frequently make it impossible to furnish utility service at all points immediately upon demand. Hundreds of new telephones are wanted. The Telephone Company's problem is the same as that of the water, sewer, gas, electric, street, and school services.

But Telephone Plant expansion is breaking all records. Thousands of new instruments are being installed, miles of new circuits are being built and additional exchange facilities are being provided, to meet the call for service.

Everything possible is being done to provide service for all who desire it.

ASPIRATIONS OF CLASS OF 1924

WHAT THE SENIORS INTEND DOING NEXT

Many Already Laying Their Plans for Their Life Work or Fur- ther Education

Upon the close approach of commencement at the schools and the drawing near the time when the class of '24, C. H. S. is to make its debut from the educational shell and appear full-fledged before a critical, though admiring world, it will, perhaps, be of interest to learn what the members of the class intend to pursue as his or her next step along the highway of knowledge.

So far as their intentions have been communicated to the superintendent of schools, in more or less definite fashion, their prospects are as follows:

Airel Burr Cooper, valedictorian of the class, is trying to get a rural school to teach next fall. If successful in his quest, he will attend summer school this coming season. Failing in this, he intends going to Chicago to work for a year before resuming his studies.

Eileen Fairchild will attend county normal here next fall. She is interested in a musical career.

Margaret Fitch will probably attend M. A. C. next fall, taking a home economics course.

Florence Holland will probably attend County Normal next year, as will also Celia Howe.

Glenn Ingalls will stay out of school a year and then intends to take up an architectural engineering course at one of the colleges.

Margaret Krulik, salutatorian of the class, will probably attend M. A. C. next year.

J. C. Marshall's plans are not definite as yet.

Anne McCann is intending to take up the profession of registered nurse.

Musa Richardson will probably attend the County Normal next year.

Wesley Smith will probably stay out of school for a year, after which he intends to take an engineering course at some Middle Western college.

Charles Swartout intends to make electrical engineering his profession and will probably go to work this summer with an uncle at Cheboygan who is in this line.

Gordon Todd is going to Grand Rapids to work this summer with his brother-in-law, who is superintendent of one of the plants in that city. He will probably enter Junior College in Grand Rapids this fall.

NO CALL FOR ONE-HORSE CUTTER
AT PRESENT TIME

They held an auction down near Ellsworth the other day and among the articles offered for sale was an old-fashioned one-horse cutter that brought the big sum of thirty-five cents, notwithstanding it was in a good state of repair and nicely upholstered in genuine red plush.

How the old days have gone by the board. The time was when the swains of the country districts counted it a long-to-be-remembered occasion when the old man let 'em have the horse and cutter to a courtin' go. We remember one time we started out with a rig like that and the only one we had the nerve to ask to share our joy was the village school-ma'am. On that particular occasion we don't know whether it was the influence of the moonbeams on the glistening snow, or what it was, but so help us John Rogers, if we didn't ask that Jane to become our blushing bride and she was forty if she was a day, while we were still simple-minded sixteen.

So with the passing of the cutter an old-fashioned institution has gone the way of all things. They served their day and generation well and many is the romance they saw begun in the good old days, when all a fellow needed was a dollar bill to be a regular village spendthrift.

ROBYN MERRIAM IS AN HONOR STUDENT

Numbered Among Highest Ten Per Cent of U. of M. Grads

Robyn Dewey Merriam of this city, who graduates from the college of engineering at the U. of M. on the 16th of next June, is numbered among the two hundred students of the university who have attained at least a B average and hold rank in the highest ten per cent of the senior classes in the various schools and colleges of the university at the close of the 1924 school year.

Mr. Merriam was one of the two hundred students present at the exercises of the First Annual Honors Convocation, held at the university on Tuesday, May 13th, 1924, which is the first of its kind for the University of Michigan and was instituted for the purpose of paying homage to students excelling in scholarship only, or those with the highest grades for the three and a half years' work completed at the close of the last semester.

Mr. Merriam has secured a position for the coming season as assistant bridge engineer for the Wayne county road commission, at a salary of $175 per month.

FIND BLACK GOLD AROUND MANISTEE

PETROLEUM STRUCK AT 1,100 FOOT LEVEL

Maybe Lakeside Town Will Become A Second Teapot Dome— Are Drilling Deep

One of our exchanges carries the following United Press item, relative to the discovery of oil near Manistee, which has recently fired the imaginations and stirred the blood of residents along the adjacent lake shore.

"Eagerly Manistee watches a hole in the mud at Eastlake, for signs of 'black gold'.

Hoping that oil will be found in large quantities, interest is centered in the oil test well of the Michigan Oil-development company. At the 1,100 foot level bighgrade petroleum was struck, but it was not in sufficient quantities. The giant drills were sent downward still farther in search of a real gusher.

Should further tests prove successful, additional wells will be sunk and Manistee may become the center of a new oil field, rivaling that of the great southwest, where cities sprang up over night in the wake of each new successful project.

"It's oil! It's a gusher!" the novice cried a few days ago when, at the 1,100 foot level the tremendous gas pressure shot 30 feet into the air a column of oily-smurgy water.

In the rush that followed the first test, scores of curious spectators took sample bottles of the heavy, black fluid, and some of the more enthusiastic fed it to their automobiles.

But the pressure, loosened, spent its force quickly. The test was not successful. The drills were again set in motion and boring is now being continued through the heavy oil sand in search of greater quantities of petroleum.

The attempt to bring in oil here is the first to be made in the state of Michigan. If it is successful, hooftimes will be revived in Manistee and may rival the great prosperity that swept this district during the day of the 'big timber'."

HAS HIGH COW AND HIGH HERD

FRANK A. W. BEHLING FIRST ON TESTER'S REPORT

Five Herds Did Not Pay for Feed in April Account of Dry Cows and Low Prices

Danish Guanabacoa De Kol Korn-dyke, P. E. Holstein, owned by Frank A. W. Behling, of Boyne City, leads the list of high producers for the Charlevoix County Cow Testing Association for the month of April, her total production of butterfat being 67.37 lbs. of fat and 1,773 lbs. of milk.

The high producing herd is also owned by Frank A. W. Behling, as his herd of seven pure bred Holsteins averaged 47.5 lbs. of butterfat on three times a day milking.

The second high herd goes to Art Shepard's cows, with an average of 42 lbs. of butterfat for the 30-day period.

The average production of the 272 cows in the association is 25.3 lbs. of butterfat and 613 lbs. of milk.

Five herds of cows did not pay for their feed this month. Their failure to do so is due to the number of dry cows in their herds and lower prices of butterfat.

Four cows were sold as unprofitable cows this month.

The following table gives the names and records of the cows in the association that have produced more than 53 lbs. of butterfat during the period of 30 days ending April 30, 1924.

The first, third, fifth and sixth cows on the list reading from top to bottom are three-time milkers.

WELL-KNOWN BUSINESS MAN DEAD AT FORTY-NINE

Ill Several Years and Forced to Retire from Active Work—Suffered Much

The community was saddened to learn last week of the death of an old friend and neighbor, Lawrence J. McCann, who passed away at his home at 102 East Huribut avenue last Wednesday evening at the close of an illness of several years duration. Gangrene of the liver was pronounced as the cause of death.

The deceased, who was nearly 49 years of age at the time of his death, had made a valiant fight against the insidious malady that baffled the doctors and resisted all efforts to cure. About a month ago, Mr. McCann's condition became so serious that he was unable to attend to his bakery business and he was forced to take to his bed to which his gradually growing helplessness confined him until the end.

DEATH HALTED HER VISIT TO MICHIGAN

Aunt of Mrs. J. W. Holmes Stricken in Canadian Home

Mrs. J. W. Holmes, of the Matchett Lake district, received a telegram a week ago last Monday, announcing the death of her aunt, Miss Sarah C. Morningstar, who passed away Easter Sunday, April 20th, at her home in Stevensville, Ontario.

Miss Morningstar was planning to come to Charlevoix to make her home with her niece, Mrs. Holmes, when she suffered a stroke which was followed by pneumonia. The deceased spent almost a year in Charlevoix a few years ago and is known to many in this vicinity.

She was born on July 6, 1842, in Bertie, Welland county, Ontario and her death came at the close of a long and useful life, spent in helpfulness and sympathy for others. She followed the calling of a governess for many years and was a faithful member of the Mennonite faith. Besides her niece, Mrs. Holmes, she leaves an elder sister, Mrs. Isaac Kniff, a younger brother, Isaac Morningstar, and a number of nieces and nephews and grand and great-grand nieces and nephews.

FIVE AMENDMENTS AT FALL ELECTION

PAROCHIAL SCHOOL ISSUE THE MOST IMPORTANT

Voters Will Pass on Five Proposed Amendments Besides Settling State and National Issues

Voters of Michigan will have a chance to pass on five proposed amendments to the state constitution when they go to the polls in November in addition to settling state and national issues, according to word received here.

With the filing of more than 50,000 signatures to the income tax amendment backers of this proposal are assured that it will be submitted. This year it will take 58,367 signatures to submit on amendment and the income taxers say they will have more than the required number in the next few days.

The parochial school issue has been ordered on the ballot by the supreme court. Wayne county will come forward with two amendments on apportionments and the wets will submit the question of light wines and beer.

Representative John B. Corliss, of Detroit, says he has more than half the required number of signatures to submit his apportionment amendment and Representative Charles Culver, also of Detroit, who is sponsoring the second, says his petitions are in circulation and about 15,000 signatures already have been secured.

The beer and wine amendment petitions are also in circulation. The form of the amendment was approved some time ago by the secretary of state.

This year is an unusually favorable one for constitutional amendments. The vote for governor in 1922 was a little more than 500,000 and as signers numbering 10 per cent of the total vote for governor at the preceding election are necessary, the number this year is just about half what it was two years ago. This being presidential year, indications are that upward of 1,500,000 votes will be cast in the November election, which will require 150,000 signers for submission of amendments two years hence.

Women Enlist in National War Against Germ-carrying Flies; Provide Millions of "Swatters"

Every fly swatted at this season of the year probably would have been the founder of a dynasty if allowed to live out its allotted time. The genius of Phylodora, the Napoleon who will lead his armies to destroy the deadly germs that pollute clean and wholesome food, is crawling about the upper wall of your kitchen today, a harmless, easily destroyed youth.

Swat him! With one stroke you will wipe out pages and pages of history and the millions of his offspring will be nothing but the might-have-beens of fiction.

Swat every fly whether he seems to show promise of a great career or not. That takes strange twists and the puny little fellow they gave up for dead, as a baby may develop into a Gladstone. Caesar was anemic in his youth—probably, and Scipio, as a child, had to hold on tight to the railings when the wind blew.

Swat the fly irrespective of son-mentality. If you swat at him and by some seemingly providential intervention a swinging door you miss him, you may honor one that Fate has decreed he should be spared. Like a whimsical Napoleon who will lead his armies to destroy the deadly germs that pollute clean and wholesome food, is crawling about the upper wall of your kitchen today, a harmless, easily destroyed youth.

Swat one, swat all. A million and a half fly swatters are being distributed just now throughout the country by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company as a part of the health campaign of their welfare division. Definite realization of the disease danger from flies is evidenced in this annual distribution. A thorough-going fly-swapping campaign during this season of the year is fostered by private and public health agencies. It has many times the value now that it would have later.

Swat the flies! Swat them now.

DAIRY

Improve Palatability of Roughage for Dairy Cows

The farmer who has much low-grade and unpalatable roughage which he must feed may find in molasses a means of greatly improving the ration for his live stock. It has been found when roughage is moistened with diluted molasses animals greedily consume it.

Ordinarily cane molasses contains about 65 per cent sugar, 32 per cent protein, 6.1 per cent mineral matter and 25.7 per cent water. Being low in protein, it should be used in place of corn or similar feeds. It seems to have practically the same feeding value pound for pound as corn, where it replaces a part of the corn in the ration. In spite of the fact that it contains more water.

This is probably because cane molasses has characteristics lacking in corn. It is even more palatable and more digestible than corn. In addition, it is slightly laxative and is frequently used as an appetizer and conditioner. Like linseed oil meal, it has the power of putting the sleek, glossy coats upon animals which are a sure indication of good health and vigor.

Cane molasses can be fed to all classes of farm live stock except young calves. With them it causes scouring. Its best use, however, is for animals adapted to eating roughage, especially cattle and horses.

For these animals, the molasses may be diluted in proportion of one part by weight of molasses to three parts of water and then sprinkled over the roughage or silage. Corn fodder should, however, be chopped first. Feeders avoid the chief difficulty in using molasses by feeding it in this manner. When given undiluted, the thick, sticky nature of the molasses causes practical difficulties.

No benefit will be obtained from feeding molasses to cattle or horses unless fresh molasses from one plant to one quart, or from one and one-half pounds to three pounds a day. A large amount can be fed, but usually not more than five or six pounds should be given; otherwise it loses its superiority over corn as a feed.

Dairy Cows Need Water in Sufficient Quantity

The failure to supply cows with plenty of water is responsible for many a poor milk yield. Milk is largely water, regardless of all the pleasures that have centered about the dairyman's pump. A cow must have water in sufficient quantity to produce milk just as a steam engine must have water with which to make steam. It is short-sighted dairy economy which skimps on one of the least expensive of the many essentials that contribute to the making of milk through processes that center in the bovine anatomy. A western dairyman, whose pump got out of order, was unable to supply drinking water in the stanchion cups in the stable for about a week.

Milk production from his herd fell off 3,700 pounds, representing a loss of over $100. Another dairyman, whose equipment did not include stanchion cups, tried the experiment of giving his cows an extra drink of water while they were in the barn. In five days his cows were making six cans of milk daily instead of five. The extra labor was well spent and showed a handsome profit.

High producing cows in particular need a great deal of water. Experiments have shown that for each 100 pounds of milk produced some cows will consume from twice to almost three times this weight of water.

Filling Silo in Winter Is Profitable Practice

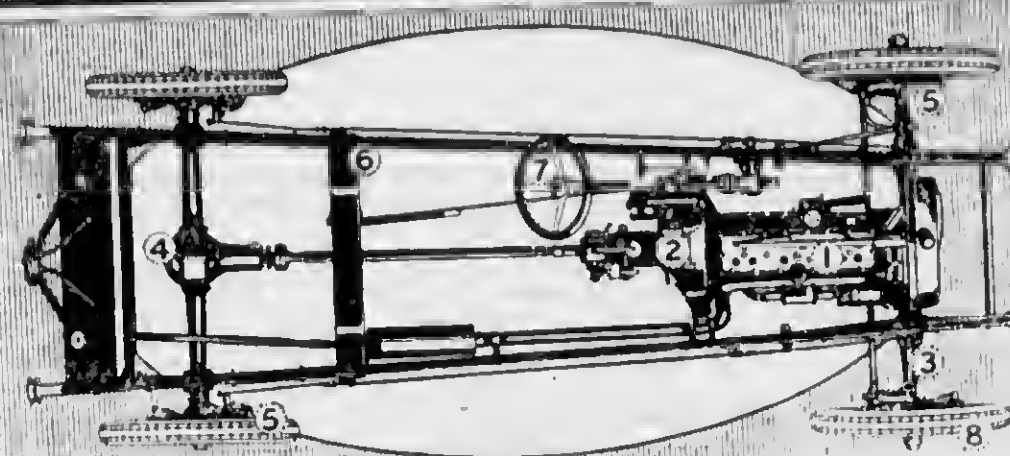

The best way to get full value out of corn fodder and at the same time utilize to the fullest extent the capacity of a small silo is to refill with cut corn fodder during winter as often as the silo is empty. The dairy department of the Iowa State college has found that while this kind of silage is not as good feed as real silage it is so much better than common corn fodder that the expense and trouble of filling is paid for many times.

Run the dry cornstalks through the silage cutter, blow it into the silo along with a ton of water for each ton of the cut fodder, and pack it some. A fermentation and softening of hinds and stalk occurs, and when the feed comes out it is eaten almost as completely as ordinary silage, otherwise stock will not eat half the dry stalks, and the manure full of long stalks is hard to handle. Be sure to use plenty of water. Remember that the fodder is dry and the stalks lack the juice that goes into the silo when corn is cut green.

To Secure Maximum Milk Production Give Water

To secure the maximum milk production, cows must have plenty of fresh water and salt, according to A. C. Ragdale, of the Missouri College of Agriculture. Cows in milk require ten to twelve gallons of water daily, while high producing cows will drink even more. When cows are receiving succulent feeds, they will naturally drink less water than those on dry feed exclusively.

Why Oakland's Chassis is more advanced

1. Oakland's new L-head engine is a masterpiece of light-six engineering. It incorporates the very latest developments in motor design.
2. The transmission is a unit with the engine. Gears of the finest alloy steel and liberal ball bearings, insure quiet and long life. Gear shifting is actually a pleasure.
3. The rugged, drop forged, "I" beam front axle was purposely designed for this car. Its correct construction insures easy steering and safe driving.
4. Oakland's semi-floating rear axle is the latest word in axle design. Its nickel steel gears, Livatt and New Departure Bearings and spiral bevel gear drive make it silent and efficient.
5. Oakland's four-wheel brakes are built into the chassis. Many months of service by tens of thousands of owners prove conclusively that this construction is most necessary and desirable.

6. Oakland's frame is of pressed steel, 5-32 of an inch thick and is rigidly braced with five cross members. In comparing frames, do not neglect the fact that the thickness of the steel is very important.

7. The steering gear is unequalled for easy and convenient driving. Alignment controls, as well as horn button and lighting controls, are mounted on the steering wheel, an exclusive feature.

8. Durable disc steel wheels—five of them—are standard equipment on all models. On most cars you can find for them.

Long, easy-riding springs; Harrison radiator with heavily nicked shell; completely enclosed universal joints and tubular drive shaft are other important features.

Examine the Oakland Six yourself. You will then understand why the True Blue Oakland is being chosen by so many who have decided to get the most and the best for their money this year.

Horse's Ears Adds Much Expression to Her Face

The ear of the horse adds more expression to his face than any other feature. Objectively it indicates his state of mind. Curiosity, fear, anger, impatience—how clearly a horse shows these by the attitude of his ears; and how much more plainly these emotions are shown by some horses than by others. An experienced horseman watches his horse's ears continually, because they invariably signal him when the horse is about to change his gait. If you know your horse, you will see that he has a perfectly understood code of ear signals which you may watch to advantage in critical places. You will understand by the positions and movements of the ears what is on the horse's mind. Horses surely do think.

The size of the ear, its quality, texture and its setting are all very important. Long and well-shaped ears denote intelligence. Many people admire small and pointed ears, carried close together at the tips. They generally indicate nervous dispositions, however. The long, broad ear, characteristic of the Hambletonian line, denotes a gentle, kindly disposition. A medium ear, not too small and not too large, carried well and used actively, is the one which gives keenly and character to the head.

SOCIAL WELFARE AND CHARITY

Modern social welfare work is undoubtedly a few steps ahead of the old-fashioned charity which ignored causes. But on the other hand, modern methods sometimes seem to lean too far toward an unsympathetic, routine treatment of human ills.

All of this has come in for a great deal of discussion recently because of New York's bobbed-hair bandit, now serving a ten-year prison term for her latest offenses against the laws. It was found that during her lifetime she had come in contact with a number of different social agencies and that her parents had had such contacts before she was born. Yet none of the welfare groups who supposedly should have set this girl on a self-respecting, constructive path succeeded in doing so, and the state must now support her and pay for its mistakes while she pays for hers.

A worker who was "up against" stark want wrote to a newspaper as follows:

"The writer walked the streets looking for work, and when that could not be found, looking for shelter, and could find none in all of the great chrities of the city. Endless advice, dozens of fool questions, talks of the terrible consequences of being out of work, etc., but no offer of food, lodging or carfare.

"I could have starved in the streets or dropped from exhaustion if it had not been for a deaconess whose mind was so simple that she actually gave help before she asked where your parents were born, if you drank, why you were out of work and all the other bright questions that a person seeking help has to answer."

Somewhere between the blind charity of earlier days and the over-organized social work of the present there must be a variety that combines human understanding with efficiency and intelligence. Red tape is hard to wind up, but perhaps some of it could be cut through more directly than it is.

SUMMER INTELLIGENCE TESTS

At a recent national executive session of the Campfire Girl's organization, new honors for members were decided on. These must be won by passing certain tests. Any interested individual might try them on himself.

"Build three kinds of fires—tepee, cross and trappers."

"Build two fires in the open for cooking and one for warmth."

"Fry an egg on a hot stone or in hot ashes after wrapping it in wet paper."

"Make a map."

These are not the new tests, but every girl who wants to try for the new "Gypsy" honor must have passed these tests in order to be eligible for the next ones, which are:

"Build and be responsible for the evening council fire."

"Organize a trail or hidden treasure hike."

"Erect a tent or shelter of material found in the woods."

"Do all the camp cooking for four or more persons for one day."

And the most interesting thing about these tests is that scores of girls in many parts of the United States will pass them successfully this summer at some happy camp or other.

"What's the use of teaching a girl that stuff?" inquires some one who has forgotten the lure of the woods.

In the first place, it's great fun, of a healthful and constructive sort. Also it teaches not only useful campcraft, but self-reliance and ingenuity. It furnishes a happy outlet for a lot of energy that might too easily be misdirected. It does not unfit a girl for the parties of the present day, but it does give her a broader foundation for happiness and peace than the conventional parties alone could offer.

TEN FAMOUS AMERICANS

The busts of 10 Americans were unveiled the other day in the Temple of Fame in New York. They represent another group of departed Americans whom typical living Americans consider deserving of such honor. Their selection ought to be a pretty good index to American ideals. It shows what kind of people we think of most highly.

Who, then, were these chosen ten? John Adams, Phillips Brooks, Samuel L. Clemens, Peter Cooper, James Buchanan Eads, Joseph Henry, Andrew Jackson, Thomas Jefferson, William T. C. Morton and Alice Freeman Palmer.

What do these names mean to you? That, perhaps, is a test of you rather than of those who bore the names.

Most of them are household words among intelligent Americans. Possibly Thomas Jefferson is better known, and highly regarded by a larger number of persons, than any other. John Adams is a great name in American history. Several others speak for themselves. Three or four may need explanation. Eads was a great engineer—and it is time that great engineers were recognized along with statesmen. Henry was the inventor of the electro-magnet. Morton perfected the use of anesthetics in surgery. Mrs. Palmer was a pioneer of feminine education, and head of Wellesley College.

Worthy people, all! Have we their like today?

The Peerless Jubilee Concert Co. will appear in the Palace Theatre, June 6th, at 8:00 p. m. This company is now in the state and word has been received direct from Grand Rapids, saying that the program of popular, comic and classic songs is A-No. 1. You will not want to miss it. The book is an extremely attractive affair, bound in heavy blue leatherette cover paper, bearing the words, "Chanticleer" at the top and "C. H. S. 1924" in the lower right hand corner, in gold lettering, and is tied with a yellow silk cord.

It contains sixty pages of well-written and edited reading matter and a large number of excellent cuts, including those of original drawings by members of the class. The merchants have liberally assisted in filling the advertising pages.

STRUCK HIS VICTIM DOWN FROM BEHIND

Marauder Attacks Horace Newson In His Home In Daytime

Last Monday afternoon, right after the dinner hour, Horace Newson, who runs a general store at Burgess, was sitting in his dining room at his desk going over some papers, when he heard a rapping on the door directly behind him, leading from the dining room into the kitchen in the rear of the store building, which was closed.

Without bothering to turn around to see who might enter, Newson called out in his usual bluff fashion, "Well, come on in—don't stand there and knock all the paint off the door." As the door softly opened and he heard the footsteps of his visitor in the room, Newson turned his head, only to receive a violent blow in the eye from the stranger's fist. The first blow was quickly followed by a second to the other optic. Stunned and blinded by the wanton attack, Mr. Newson slipped helplessly to the floor, only seeing enough of his assailant to remember that he was wearing a light colored rain coat.

The man, leaving his victim in a semi-conscious condition on the floor, rapidly went through the desk. He found two pocket books, containing a total of $235.00 which he quickly rifled of their contents and escaped, leaving the wallets behind. A number of old silver dollars, which Mr. Newson cherished for their value as keepsakes, he left untouched in the back of the desk.

As soon as he could collect his numbed senses, Mr. Newson arose and tried to go out to the barn to see if his son, Bernie, was there, but got only half way and sank to the ground unconscious, where he was shortly afterwards discovered by a neighbor who notified the police.

No clue was left by the marauder and the sheriff has but little to work on but the case will be thoroughly probed.

"A limited acreage still open. Secure your picket agreement before June 10th. Phone 25, or write."—Adv. 22-t1.

MISSING FISHERMEN TURN UP AT STRAITS

Charles Cross and Party Not Lost As Feared

Members of the crew of the gasoline fishing tug Oceanica, of Charlevoix, for whose safety keen anxiety has been expressed in fishing circles in this port, Harbor Springs, Cross Village and Petoskey since they left Cross Village during a gale last Sunday, were reported safe last Friday at Mackinaw City. The four men, Charles Cross and his son, Frank White and an unknown fisherman, left Cross Village on Sunday afternoon, May 18th for Little Traverse Bay during a heavy blow. When they failed to arrive at Harbor Springs, search was started but no word came from them until Friday. They had been fishing the northern waters, the storm having forced them to change their plans.

MELLENBAMP TO SUCCEED B. O. HAGERMAN

Latter is Now Industrial Agent For Pennsy. Lines

Burton C. Mellenbamp, of Manacelona, will succeed B. O. Hagerman as agricultural agent of Charlevoix county, farm bureau officials announced Monday. Hagerman went to work Monday as agricultural and industrial agent of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Mellenbamp was born and raised on a farm near Grass Lake, Jackson county, and was graduated from the Michigan Agricultural college in 1922. He has been a tester in the Antrim County Cow Testing association for two years. While doing this work he has been making a study of pot culture in Antrim county. Farm bureau officials believe Mellenbamp is properly trained to put across the dairy, alfalfa, seed potato and marketing program undertaken by Mr. Hagerman.

For fine shoe repair work try John Smith at Campbell Boot Shop.—Adv. 22-t1.

Benefit Supper

The chicken-pie supper at the Marion Center grange hall on last Thursday evening for the benefit of the Charlevoix Hospital was a gratifying success. A large crowd was in attendance and the receipts amounted to over $100. A rummage and a baked goods sale are scheduled for an early date, which will be announced later.

Tom Mix Outdared Himself in Latest, "North of Hudson Bay"

An abundance of excitement is offered at the Palace Theatre this week, where Tom Mix shoots through "North of Hudson Bay," a William Fox production, like a meteor. The first thing that strikes one's attention about this production is the total absence of drugged in "thrills." This, we think, is the reason that the excitement offered is doubly effective.

The picture concerns the adventures of Michael Dane, played by Tom Mix, who is made a dupe of the passions of more worldly men. He runs from one misfortune to another, from the murder of his brother, his conviction for aiding the murderer unknowingly, to the hardships he endures on the Journey of Death.

At no portion of this film does the action slow up—it's what is known as a speed picture—but it's a speed picture plus sense. In matters of speed and daring this production sees Tom Mix surpass all his former efforts.

From every point of view this is an unusual film. Tom Mix is surrounded by a cast of great ability. Kathleen Key, Eugene Palette, Will Walling, Frank Campeau, Fred Kohler and Frank Leich interpret the principal characters.

"The Silent Partner" Well Cast

Leatrice Joy, Owen Moore and Robert Edson are the featured players in "The Silent Partner," a Paramount feature coming to the Palace Theatre next Tuesday and Wednesday. Miss Joy was seen recently in "You Can't Fool Your Wife," and preceding that in "Jiva Head." Owen Moore appears in this picture in a more or less serious role. Hitherto Mr. Moore specialized in light comedy parts. Robert Edson is not a newcomer to Paramount audiences, having appeared some time ago in "The Call of the North." He is a veteran actor and portrays a heavy role in "The Silent Partner."

POULTRY

Ipecac Most Successful Remedy for Blackhead

Ipecac is the remedy being used most successfully for blackhead, though if the disease is far advanced there is little or nothing that can be done for it.

To use Ipecac as a cure, put ten drops of the fluid extract of Ipecac in the mouth of the sick bird three times a day for three days, then once a day for the same time.

As a preventive use a teaspoonful of the powdered Ipecac on enough wet mash for 20 birds. Feed twice a week, commencing when the poults are two weeks old and continue until three months old, then give once every ten days.

The amount need not be given all in one feed, but spread among the feeds for the day.

In addition to the Ipecac, give all the litters that they will drink.

Stek turkeys are always preyed upon by lice and mites and special cure should be taken to keep the young and old birds free from these pests.

Isolate sick turkeys since the disease is carried through the droppings.

Green food in the form of carrot tops, onion tops or lettuce should comprise at least one-half of the ration.

The brood coops and house should be kept clean, and grit and charcoal must be where they can get it. Old plaster is especially liked by turkeys and they seem to thrive on it.

Both chickens and turkeys thrive better if they are kept apart.

Winter Is Poor Time to Cull the Poultry Flock

Sixty hens laid 14 eggs in ten days before culling and, after culling, the 34 hens left laid 133 eggs in ten days. This report came from a Lincoln county (Colorado) farm.

This isn't the whole story, however. The culling was done in January. We believe that had the 29 culs been kept they also would have started laying at least by the last of February and would have probably more than paid for their keep until the following June or July.

As a general rule a complete culling should not be made in the winter or spring, because even the culs will pay for their keep from January until July. It is sometimes necessary to cull in the winter to make more room for pullets when the flock must be confined. That was undoubtedly the case in Lincoln county, and probably part of the increase in egg production was due to the fact that the hens left had more room and more food.

Another difficulty in winter culling is that it is very hard to tell which are the pullets when the whole flock is housed together. Many pullets that have happened to be a little out of condition at the time of the culling have been sold when they certainly should have been left in the flock.—P. C. Jamison, Extension Poultry Specialist, Colorado Agricultural College.

Use Bands to Mark Best Laying Fowls in Flock

According to N. E. Chapman, poultry specialist with the agricultural extension division of the Minnesota State university, the first of February is a good time to band the best pullets—the birds that have the early-laying and high-production marks.

"These are the birds," says Mr. Chapman, "to breed for next year. The successful poultryman employs every means possible to determine the highest producers of his flock, that he may put them in the breeding pen. Bands made of celluloid can be secured from poultry supply firms.

"A pullet that has a white beak on February 1 has made a fair record in egg-production and deserves a blue band on her right leg. Such fowls will generally have long keels, loose 'sida bones' on the keel, wide hack and a spread of three fingers between the pelvic or lay-bones, and a hand depth from these to the end of the breast-bone or keel."

POULTRY NOTES

The necessity of cooling hatching eggs is a disputed point.

When the ducks are hatched, make them comfortable, but do not feed for 36 to 48 hours.

A bird with closely worn toenails is considered a better layer than one with long nails.

A pullet is a female bird less than a year old, while a cockerel is a male bird less than a year old.

Hens that show the least broodiness are better layers than those that are broody a large part of the time.

A fowl must carry a little fat in order to be in a laying condition. A poor or lean hen can never be a laying hen.

Diseases of Poultry, farmers' bulletin 1337, may be had by writing the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington.

Hens that molt late and quickly are the best layers. By this is meant that hens molting during the latter part of September, October and November are better layers than those molting earlier.

For all the news, read the Courier.

The KITCHEN CABINET

One of the advantages of living long in the world is that one steadily acquires an increasingly interesting point of view. Even in middle life one begins to see for one's self the evolution of things. One gets a glimpse of the procession of events, the march of the generations.—Cornelia A. P. Comer.

SEASONABLE DISHES

These dishes are served and enjoyed any time of the year, but are especially favored during the winter months:

Chili Con Carne.—Take one-half pound of fresh lean and fat pork, one and one-half pounds of round steak, three good-sized onions, two cans of kidney beans, one chili pepper, two quarts of tomato, salt, pepper, and chili powder—two or three tablespoonsful.

Chop or grind the meat—it is much nicer chopped—brown the meat with the chopped onions, then add all the other ingredients except the beans, which will be added just long enough to heat thoroughly. Cook slowly for three hours, stirring often. Remove the chili pepper after the dish is well seasoned with it, or it may be too hot.

Sweet Potatoes, Southern Style.—Boil or steam three medium-sized sweet potatoes. Pare, slice and place in rows of overlapping slices in a shallow baking dish. Add to one-half cupful of water one cupful of brown sugar and two tablespoonsful of butter, mixed with one-half teaspoonful of cinnamon. Cook these for ten minutes until syrupy. Add one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt and pour over the sliced potatoes in the baking dish. Bake covered 15 minutes, then bake five minutes until lightly browned. Serve from the baking dish.

Chicken Souffle.—Make a sauce of two cupfuls of scalded milk, one-third of a cupful each of butter and flour, one teaspoonful of salt. Melt the butter, add the flour and when well-blended the milk and the seasonings, adding a dash of cayenne. Remove from the fire, add two cupfuls of finely-chopped cooked chicken, the yolks of three eggs well beaten, then fold in the stiffly-beaten whites of three eggs and a tablespoonful of minced parsley. With one-half cupful of soft bread crumbs. Turn into a buttered baking dish and bake thirty-five minutes in a slow oven. Serve with mushroom sauce.

Michigan and Her Railroads

Since 1920, when the Government returned Railroad operation to private enterprise, service in Michigan has become yearly more dependable—more nearly adequate.

That Service is today the best Michigan has ever enjoyed:

As a result there has come into being between the State's 24 steam Railroads and the public they serve, a spirit of pride and mutual good will.

Geographical isolation has made railroad service a local more than a national problem in both Peninsulas of Michigan. Within the enveloping barriers established by our Great Lakes, Michigan and her Railroads can prosper only by prospering together. State and carriers become thus members of a close community of interest.

Michigan Railroads realize this fact and make it fundamental in all details of management and operation.

The public can also recognize this situation by neighborly co-operation and by insisting that the roads be repaid by receiving, in national and state supervision, the same square deal.

We invite from you any suggestion of more ways in which we can consistently better our service.

SOCIAL WELFARE AND CHARITY

Modern social welfare work is undoubtedly a few steps ahead of the old-fashioned charity which ignored causes. But on the other hand, modern methods sometimes seem to lean too far toward an unsympathetic, routine treatment of human ills.

All of this has come in for a great deal of discussion recently because of New York's habited-hair bandit, now serving a ten-year prison term for her latest offenses against the laws. It was found that during her lifetime she had come in contact with a number of different social agencies and that her parents had had such contacts before she was born. Yet none of the welfare groups who supposedly should have set this girl on a self-respecting, constructive path succeeded in doing so, and the state must now support her and pay for its mistakes while she pays for hers.

A worker who was "up against" stark want wrote to a newspaper as follows:

"The writer walked the streets looking for work, and when that could not be found, looking for shelter, and could find none in all of the great charities of the city. Endless advice, dozens of fool questions, talks of the terrible consequences of being out of work, etc., but no offer of food, lodging or carfare.

"I could have starved in the streets or dropped from exhaustion if it had not been for a denconess whose mind was so simple that she actually gave help before she asked where your parents were born, if you drank, why you were out of work and all the other bright questions that a person seeking help has to answer."

Somewhere between the blind charity of earlier days and the over-organized social work of the present there must be a variety that combines human understanding with efficiency and intelligence. Red tape is hard to wind up, but perhaps some of it could be cut through more directly than it is.

SUMMER INTELLIGENCE TESTS

At a recent national executive session of the Campfire Girl's organization, new honors for members were decided on. These must be won by passing certain tests. Any interested individual might try them on himself.

"Build three kinds of fires—teepee, cross and trappers."

"Build two fires in the open for cooking and one for warmth."

"Fry an egg on a hot stone or in hot ashes after wrapping it in wet paper."

"Make a map."

These are not the new tests, but every girl who wants to try for the new "Gypsy" honor must have passed these tests in order to be eligible for the next ones, which are:

"Build and be responsible for the evening council fire."

"Organize a trail or hidden treasure hike."

"Erect a tent or shelter of material found in the woods."

"Do all the camp cooking for four or more persons for one day."

And the most interesting thing about these tests is that scores of girls in many parts of the United States will pass them successfully this summer at some happy camp or other.

"What's the use of teaching a girl that stuff?" inquires some one who has forgotten the lure of the woods.

In the first place, it's great fun, of a healthful and constructive sort. Also it teaches not only useful campcraft, but self-reliance and ingenuity. It furnishes a happy outlet for a lot of energy that might too easily be misdirected. It does not unfit a girl for the parties of the present day, but it does give her a broader foundation for happiness and peace than the conventional parties alone could offer.

TEN FAMOUS AMERICANS

The busts of 10 Americans were unveiled the other day in the Temple of Fame in New York. They represent another group of departed Americans whom typical living Americans consider deserving of such honor. Their selection ought to be a pretty good index to American ideals. It shows what kind of people we think of most highly.

Who, then, were these chosen ten? John Adams, Phillips Brooks, Samuel L. Clemens, Peter Cooper, James Buchanan Eads, Joseph Henry, Andrew Jackson, Thomas Jefferson, William T. C. Morton and Alice Freeman Palmer.

What do these names mean to you? That, perhaps, is a test of you rather than of those who bore the names.

Most of them are household words among intelligent Americans. Possibly Thomas Jefferson is better known, and highly regarded by a larger number of persons, than any other. John Adams is a great name in American history. Several others speak for themselves. Three or four may need explanation. Eads was a great engineer—and it is time that great engineers were recognized along with statesmen. Henry was the inventor of the electro-magnet. Morton perfected the use of anesthetics in surgery. Mrs. Palmer was a pioneer of feminine education, and head of Wellesley College.

Worthy people, all! Have we their like today?

The Peerless Jubilee Concert Co. will appear in the Palace Theatre, June 6th, at 8:00 p. m. The book is an extremely attractive affair, bound in heavy blue leatherette cover paper, bearing the words, "Chanticleer," at the top and "C. H. S. 1924" in the lower right hand corner, in gold lettering, and is tied with a yellow silk cord.

It contains sixty pages of well-written and edited reading matter and a large number of excellent cuts, including those of original drawings by members of the class. The merchants have liberally assisted in filling the advertising pages.

STRUCK HIS VICTIM DOWN FROM BEHIND

Marauder Attacks Horace Newson In His Home In Daytime

Last Monday afternoon, right after the dinner hour, Horace Newson, who runs a general store at Burgess, was sitting in his dining room at his desk going over some papers, when he heard a rapping on the door directly behind him, leading from the dining room into the kitchen in the rear of the store building, which was closed.

Without bothering to turn around to see who might enter, Newson called out in his usual bluff fashion, "Well, come on in—don't stand there and knock all the paint off the door." As the door softly opened and he heard the footsteps of his visitor in the room, Newson turned his head, only to receive a violent blow in the eye from the stranger's fist. The first blow was quickly followed by a second to the other optic. Stunned and blinded by the wanton attack, Mr. Newson slipped helplessly to the floor, only seeing enough of his assailant to remember that he was wearing a light colored rain coat.

The man, leaving his victim in a semi-conscious condition on the floor, rapidly went through the desk. He found two pocket books, containing a total of $235.00 which he quickly rifled of their contents and escaped, leaving the wallets behind. A number of old silver dollars, which Mr. Newson cherished for their value as keepsakes, he left untouched in the back of the desk.

As soon as he could collect his numbed senses, Mr. Newson arose and tried to go out to the barn to see if his son, Bernie, was there, but got only half way and sank to the ground unconscious, where he was shortly afterwards discovered by a neighbor who notified the police.

No clue was left by the marauder and the sheriff has but little to work on but the case will be thoroughly probed.

MISSING FISHERMEN TURN UP AT STRAITS

Charles Cross and Party Not Lost As Feared

Members of the crew of the gasoline fishing tug Oceania, of Charlevoix, for whose safety keen anxiety has been expressed in fishing circles in this port, Harbor Springs, Cross Village and Petoskey since they left Cross Village during a gale last Sunday, were reported safe last Friday at Mackinaw City. The four men, Charles Cross and his son, Frank White and an unknown fisherman, left Cross Village on Sunday afternoon, May 18th for Little Traverse Bay during a heavy blow. When they failed to arrive at Harbor Springs, search was started but no word came from them until Friday. They had been fishing the northern waters, the storm having forced them to change their plans.

MELLENCAMP TO SUCCEED B. O. HAGERMAN

Latter is Now Industrial Agent For Pennsy. Lines

Burton C. Mellenkamp, of Manicelonn, will succeed B. O. Hagerman as agricultural agent of Charlevoix county, farm bureau officials announced Monday. Hagerman went to work Monday as agricultural and industrial agent of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Mellenkamp was born and raised on a farm near Grass Lake, Jackson county, and was graduated from the Michigan Agricultural college in 1922. He has been a tester in the Antrim County Cow Testing association for two years. While doing this work he has been making a study of potato culture in Antrim county. Farm bureau officials believe Mellenkamp is properly trained to put across the dairy, alfalfa, seed potato and marketing program undertaken by Mr. Hagerman.

Benefit Supper

The chicken-pie supper at the Marion Center grange hall on last Thursday evening for the benefit of the Charlevoix Hospital was a gratifying success. A large crowd was in attendance and the receipts amounted to over $100. A rummage and a baked goods sale are scheduled for an early date, which will be announced later.

COUNTY BANK VAULT HAS FOUR-TON DOOR

Work On the New Building is Progressing Rapidly

A four-ton vault door has just been installed in the new building of the Charlevoix County Bank. Four inches of solid steel will protect the valuables in the new vault. The door is of the latest type in vault door construction with two separate combinations controlling the massive bolts which lock the door. With the addition of this door, the new bank now has a vault that the banks in any of our cities could be proud of. It is large, roomy, well-lighted, fire-proof and protected by an alarm system which will not permit the vault to be entered by floor, ceiling, any side, or the vault door, after a set hour, without ringing an alarm sufficient to arouse the dead.

Work on the interior is progressing rapidly. It is expected that the plastering will be completed by the end of this week and the decoration started. The bank officials inform us that they expect to have the grand opening about the first of July.

Fountain City Hotel now open for business.—Adv. 22-tf nd.

Michigan Girl's Essay in Safety Competition

Best essayist of more than 10,000 elementary school pupils, Theodora Poole, thirteen-year-old school girl of Pontiac, Michigan, now residing at Lansing, Michigan, is announced as winner of the second national safety essay contest conducted under the auspices of the highway education board.

As a reward she receives a gold watch and a trip to Washington with all expenses paid, awards offered at the beginning of the contest for the essay winning first national honors. Her prizes are the gifts of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

Miss Poole's essay is as follows: In a game each person has his part to play. Let us think of the task of making a nation safe as a game in which each has his place to fill and his hit to do.

One might suppose we children have very little to do with the safety of our nation, but we are the coming generation and in our time shall uphold better and safer highways.

As in a game, there are rules to follow. These things we must do: Always observe traffic before crossing a street.

When walking on a road keep to the left to meet oncoming vehicles. Learn automobile signals to know what a motorist means to do.

When alighting from a street car stand until sure of a safe way to the curb.

Help those in need. Keep close to the curb when riding a bicycle, and give correct signals when turning.

Thus we shall spread our safety interest and information.

Now come the things we must not do, rules just as important if we are to play the safety game.

Don't hurry! Most accidents are caused by the desire to save a few seconds.

Never play in the streets nor dash before moving vehicles.

Never jay-walk.

Never steal rides.

Never make a blind dash across a thoroughfare.

Never stand in the street while waiting for a car—you are safer on the curb. One cannot always stand on his rights.

A child's part in this safety game is to keep from being "tagged" by an automobile. In the many automobile accidents in which the driver is blameless, a pitifully large number of children are victims.

Then there are always drivers who consider that responsibility ceases with the leaving of the horn. Since we stand less firmly than a telephone pole we had better be out of their way.

Our code is a code of honor. No body can make us play fair. Our schools foster athletics to encourage clean effort. More important than ordinary athletics is the game in which we save the sorrow of accidents and loss of life. If I could feel that by joining this safety team I had saved one little child, I would consider my effort better spent than if I had won highest honors in athletics.

These things children can do. It is because of the splendid foresight of our elders that we are having these things laid before us while we are of an age when it is easy to learn. Much time, money, and thought are being spent to teach us safer ways. And if we become men and women who think safety and not safety we shall have a nation of happier and safer people.

"Always Be Careful!"

To Prevent Automobile Accidents by Low Walls

The Long Island railroad is building an approach to one of its grade crossings that, it hopes, will prevent automobile accidents. As the motorist approaches the crossing, low cement walls force him to bear gradually to the right, then in order to get over the railway to make a sharp turn first to the left, then to the right again. As five miles an hour is as fast as the turns can be made, drivers will have time to look for oncoming trains. The cost of the low walls is trivial.

Accidents Prevented by Keeping Highways Open

To prevent accidents by keeping the roads open for two-way traffic, parking of vehicles of all descriptions is prohibited on all state highways in Pennsylvania. Motorists are not permitted to stop at the foot of a hill, crest of a hill, or any portion of a curve. A fine of $10 to $25 is provided for each violation of the rule.

Sample Road is Narrow. A sample mile of paved road 18 feet wide is to be constructed in Minnehaha county. This is not wide enough for the traffic under present conditions. A 20-foot roadway is safer for all concerned.

Work for Auto Makers. All the automobile makers who are reducing the price of their cars ought to get together and figure out a way to reduce the cost of widening the roads.

Care of Mare and Colt Needed in Fall Months

It is an old saying that animals going to winter quarters in good condition are half wintered. It is particularly true of brood mares and colts. The bleak winds and cold rains of the fall months, together with the chilly nights, take more out of animals than months of feeding will restore. This is particularly true of brood mares that are low in condition and of the young colts. They should be stabled every night from now on, and should be fed a small feed before being turned out in the morning to fill up with cold or frozen grass, which is very liable to chill and even stop the work of digestion. It never pays to let mares and colts stand around shivering during the cold autumn nights and then attempt to make up by extra feed during the winter. Protect the mares and keep the colts growing, if results are wanted.

SCHOOL CLOSES A SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Graduation Exercises Held at M. E. Church Friday Evening

The school here closed one of its most successful years on Friday of last week, picnics and auto trips for the smaller pupils finishing the year.

The graduating exercises of the class of 1924 were held at the M. E. church on Friday evening and proved an enjoyable occasion, the exercises being among the best ever staged here. The church was prettily decorated for the occasion and the graduates, Kenneth Peables, Bruce McElroy and the Misses Sarah Klooster and Evelyn Ruis, showed by the way in which they handled their parts of the program that they had worked hard and been ably coached.

The music, furnished by Mrs. D. W. Sore and Miss Cornelia Elzinga, was a delightful part of the evening's program and was accorded the praise of the audience which filled the church to its doors.

The speaker of the evening, Prof. Robertson, of the faculty of the Central State Normal, gave one of the best talks ever heard here.

Four of the five teachers on the staff during the past year have been engaged for the coming year, the board having failed to persuade Miss Monk, the principal during the past year, to remain for another year. Her place will be taken by Foster L. Burch, of Detroit, a young man who comes highly recommended both as to character and teaching ability. Ernest Erickson will again hold the reins as superintendent, while the Misses Pearl and Emily Johnstone and Cornelia Elzinga will preside over the same rooms as during the past year. Mr. Erickson left on Monday of this week for his home at Saugatuck, but will attend Central State Normal this summer. The Misses Johnstone will spend the summer at Grand Rapids, while Miss Elzinga will remain at her home here.

We have another Ford touring car we are going to sell this week. It has starter, etc. Come in and see it. Corner Garage, L. O. Isaman.—Adv. 22-12.

Last Wednesday we had a few flakes of snow.

Mr. Stott was plowing for Albert Elzinga, Wednesday.

The Ellsworth school children were at the lake Thursday.

Mr. Brooks, Mr. Stoll and Alfred Brooks are doing carpenter work at Charlevoix.

Albert Elzinga and son, Henry, were visitors at the Stott home Monday evening.

Mr. Stott took a load of logs to the mill at Bay View Friday and brought back a load of lumber.

There was a bee at the cemetery Saturday. There was not many there, but they fixed up the place for the fence.

Our school closed last Monday with a picnic. The teacher, Miss Bruce, received a book from the pupils and the pupils each received an Ever-sharp pencil.

How are your tires? We have a large stock, including "Balloons." Come in and look them over. Corner Garage, L. O. Isaman. Adv. 22-12.

LITTLE THOMAS GIRL IS DEAD

Pansy, Aged Six, Passed Away At Hospital

Pansy Marie Thomas, little daughter of Russell and Carrie Thomas, of East Jordan, was born January 5, 1918, and passed from this life at Charlevoix Hospital, Monday, May 26, at 7:30 p. m.

Pansy was an unusually bright, attractive little girl, a favorite with all who knew her; an apt pupil in school, having completed her first year's work the day she was taken sick. She participated in all school and Sunday school entertainments in a very delightful manner, was the joy of her home and the pride of the neighborhood. Her last sickness was full of intense suffering, borne with the utmost patience.

Sunday, a few short hours before her going away, she said, "I feel all right. Let's go home." And Monday morning early she said, "mamma, if you go home, you'll take me, won't you?" A little later, "mamma, which way shall I go?" to which the mother replied, "go with the angels, darling." She then rested peacefully until ten minutes before her death, she kissed her loved ones, "goodbye." Surely she is at home, for "Of such is the kingdom of heaven."

Besides the bereaved parents, three brothers, Harold, Gabriel and Sherman, and a host of relatives and friends are left to mourn their loss.

Funeral services were held at the home Wednesday at noon, and the beautiful little body, covered with flowers, was laid to rest in the Belaire cemetery to wait until her loved ones meet in the heavenly home. —Contributed.

Dazey's old-time stage melodrama, "The Suburban." LITTLE FOLKS TAKE PART IN PLAYLETS

School Children Stage Operettas at High School

An interesting event in connection with the public schools last week was the presentation of the operetta, "The Enchanted Forest," at the high school auditorium, Thursday evening, May 22, by the pupils of the North-side Washington school, under the direction of their two teachers, Miss Olive Richardson and Miss Ellen Cook. All the children in the program entered most heartily into the spirit of the Mother-Goose rhymes and the fairy tales depicted in the operetta, thus affording the grown-ups present a most refreshing opportunity to become young once more, as they watched the magic of fairyland performed before their eyes.

An equally interesting evening was spent by those who were present at the same auditorium Monday evening, May 26, when the fifth grade pupils of the central building gave "The Fairy Rose," an operetta dedicated to their grandmothers. Miss Blanche Kingsnorth, County Normal critic, trained the children for this entertainment.

FIRE DESTROYS EDWARD KLOOSTER FARM HOUSE

Most of Furniture Saved—Loss Partially Insured

The farm home of Edward Klooster, one mile northwest of Ellsworth, caught fire at an early hour last Monday morning and burned to the ground.

The blaze started in the shingles of the roof and though the alarm was turned in as soon as it was discovered the strong wind prevailing at the time rendered all efforts to save the structure fruitless. Nearly all the furniture on the first floor was rescued, as well as some from the second floor. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

Mr. Klooster will start to rebuild at once and he and his family are at present located on the E. H. Buss property east of the Klooster farm.

Nurses Carry Health Education Into Thousands of Workers' Homes; Aid Babes and Young Mothers

In the young mother the tiny new baby is like a piece of bric-a-brac. She is afraid to handle it for fear she might break it. The first bath is such a fearsome ordeal that it has become customary for the nurse who administers the pre-natal care to come and give the little stranger his first good washing.

Education of this sort is part of the work of a visiting nurse. The aid given sufferers of any sort must always be a demonstration as well, so that members of the family may continue the care.

The nursing service of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company reaches 3,958 towns and cities in every state in the union and every province in Canada. In the two winter months of this year nurses made 424,986 calls at 109,395 separate homes. The nurses in more remote sections lend the life of the circuit rider travelling in their flivvers over almost impassable roads and often going on horseback or on foot through wild country to reach their destination. It requires dogged determination and physical strength to be enlisted in the service and sometimes on the outskirts of large cities the nurse will spend precious hours tramping through the mud to find a shack which is on no street and has no number.

The account is endless of the sickness and suffering caused by the ignorance of people of the poorest class and especially foreigners. One woman with five children had neglected an infected finger. The nurse summoned by the agent struggled through fields of mud only to find that the woman was sure it was nothing serious. The nurse insisted that a doctor be summoned, but the woman did not want to spend the money, less and the baby escaped.

When the doctor finally came he lanced it at once and declared that it was only just in time to prevent the loss of the hand if not the woman's life.

Most of the women are eager to learn so that they may give their children the best possible treatment. One young mother, with four small youngsters, the oldest of which was four years, was especially clean and careful, but measles invaded the home. The three oldest children had it, but the nurse said the baby needn't get it if the mother would take proper precautions. This woman's day was not so full but that she could find time to follow instructions to the letter; changing her apron every time she tended the baby, keeping him isolated in a separate room, boiling everything, omitting no smallest detail. Eternal vigilance was the price of success and the baby escaped.

ECHOES OF THE YEARS GONE BY

ANCIENT BATTLE-SITE GIVES UP ITS BONES

High School Seniors Witnessed Strange Exhumation on the Beavers Last Week

The members of the graduating class of C. H. S., on their recent visit to the Beavers, witnessed an event that was remarkable for its significance in revealing mysteries connected with the early lives of the settlers who peopled the north in the earliest days of which we have any authentic record. Albert Widdfield, one of the members of the class, has written an interesting account of the episode as well as that of an Indian ceremonial which he attended at Cross Village on Memorial Day. Mr. Widdfield's double narrative follows:

"The memory of those by-gone days of Mormon supremacy on Beaver Island, of savage Indian conflicts and long forgotten battles was recently restored to the old timers when the uncanny remains of a score of slain humans were dug from beneath the store of old Dominic Gallagher.

The skulls and skeletons were in a perfect state of preservation. In one of the skulls the teeth still lodged in the gaping jaws, with the position of the dead men as they lay prostrate plainly discernable. One old timer who stood near the excavation said, "Dig over that way six feet and you'll find a wagon-load of them bones," but as yet no one has rifled the ancient site further.

Old Dominic Gallagher tells us that his store stands on one of the bloodiest battlefields of this region. The skulls and skeletons, he says, are the remains of the bodies of massacred Indians who waged a ferocious battle on that spot.

In his estimation of time he believes it was before King Strang led his religion-blinded subjects across the blue expanse of Lake Michigan. There were, he says, two tribes of red-men on the islands. One tribe was encamped near this place, or where the city of St. James now stands. The other Indians, jealous of their rival's superior hunting ground, slipped across in canoes from the other islands and fell upon the encamped tribe in the night. Then, amid the weird war-whoops of the attacking tribesmen and the scream and screech of the scalped, the score of humans were massacred whose bones were unearthed last week.

If those old warped skeletons could only speak they could tell us many stories of the intrigue of the Benvers, of battles and wars which we know nothing about nor ever will, wars of which we can only dream or paint an imaginary picture when some old timer with a reckless spade bumps into the grinning skull of a dead man.

There are other theories as to the origin of these remains. Some believe old Dominic's store stands upon a Mormon burial ground, or that it was during Strang's deadly battle with the Mainlanders that these men were killed. The position is logical, being directly up from the harbor beach in just such a place as the famous battle must have ensued.

But whatever may be the history and genealogy of the gaping skulls, or whoever the slain men may have been it was a long, long time ago when the intrigue took place. These moldy skeletons are the keys to one of the many little lost epochs in the history of the romantic old Beavers."

"Cross Village was recently the scene of the recognition of the birthday of one of Michigan's oldest Catholic Sisters. It was nearly a century ago that her work among the Indians of the Thumb region took place but today, while the big automobiles dash past in a cloud of dust, her little tottered cross stands in saintly solitude beside the quaint chapel-tomb of Father Wienep.

Beneath the road, in a little clump of trees with an aged, twisted orchard before it, the little square structure has withstood the storm and strife of nearly a century. Even from the village, the white crucifix can be seen rising above the trees in saintly commemoration of the work of the first Missioner who braved the dangers of what was, in his day, the rough and barren north-county.

The little white chapel, built by the hands of the Missioner, is about eight feet square. Beneath it is the tomb which he himself prepared for his body before his passing. The bricks that seal his body in that eternal resting place were imported from France, as in those days only the log dwelling housed the sparse settlers of the north. Two hinged doors which make up the floor of the odd little chapel lift forth and disclose the rough bricks of the Missioner's tomb.

Inside it is anciently arranged. The roof is in a dome shape, with stars and a moon painted on a field of blue to represent the sky, while a quaint burnt design covers the walls and woodwork. Candles for respected ceremony are placed before the altar and framed inscriptions in the ancient Missioner's own handwriting are arranged about the shelves. Everything bespeaks age and a saintly and reverend atmosphere seems to cling about the final resting place of the "father of the north."

Several tottered crosses with strange inscriptions stand in the fenced enclosure outside, some of them dating back into bygone centuries when the flaming cross of the village below beckoned the sailors safely into the harbor.

The birthday of one of the long dead, and greatly revered sisters took place last Sunday at this oldest of historic landmarks. Nothing has been disturbed in the minutest detail since the aged Father left his earthly existence and was placed, amid the mourning of hundreds of Indians and French, into his self-prepared tomb."

FOUR LIQUOR CASES CLOSED

CONVICTION SECURED IN ALL BUT ONE CASE

Jury Frees Morris in Spite of Strong Evidence of Guilt—Soundly Scored by Court

Liquor and pro confesso cases have consumed most of the time in the circuit court since last week's issue of the Courier was published.

In the most noteworthy of these cases, that of the People vs. Joe Morris, charged with having liquor in his possession, the jury brought in a verdict of not guilty, notwithstanding the fact that liquor was found in the car in which he was riding—on the seat, in fact, where he was sitting and that he had admitted to the justice of the peace before whom he was brought and three other officials that he had had liquor in his possession and in spite of the testimony of these witnesses to that effect. The jury was severely censured by the judge for what he termed a serious mistake in bringing in the verdict that they did. This case was finished on Tuesday, May 27th.

The case of the People vs. Frank Gloski, charged with the transportation of liquor, which closed on Tuesday, resulted in a conviction and sentence will be passed on Thursday morning.

The case of the People vs. Elmer Tift, charged with selling liquor, which was closed on last Thursday, resulted in a conviction and sentence will be passed tomorrow. This was a case of selling to two high school boys.

The case of the People vs. Milton G. Wilke, charged with keeping a place for selling liquor, was tried Tuesday, June 3rd, and the defendant found guilty. He will be sentenced on Thursday morning. This is the notorious Oklahoma Indian (Continued on Page 8)

A LITTLE SPITE WORK GOING ON

SOMEBODY'S STEERING 'EM OFF M-11

Letter of Elk Rapids Chamber of Commerce Reveals Colored Gent In Woodpile

Something that looks a little bit like spite work on the part of certain parties or, perhaps we might say, an organization that failed to get quite the recognition they thought they should in this county some time ago, has recently been brought to the attention of the local chamber of commerce.

This matter is covered by a letter from the Elk Rapids Chamber of Commerce, under date of May 21, 1924 and addressed to the secretary, Chamber of Commerce, Charlevoix, Mich., reading as follows:

"Dear Sir: In conversation with early tourists who are returning from the north, we learn that there is, apparently, a united effort to steer north-bound traffic from M-11 to M-13.

These tourists tell us that, on the up trip, they are constantly warned to avoid M-11 on account of an impassable detour south of Charlevoix.

So far as we are able to learn, the detour is not impassable, but in very good condition.

This rumor has been so persistent that we are led to believe that a wrong impression has gone out and no doubt some united effort should be made to correct it.

Very sincerely yours, Charles B. Carver, President, Elk Rapids Chamber of Commerce."

The fact of the matter is that the detour in question, which extends from Sprick's corners, over the old Emmet and Grand Traverse State road to Charlevoix, is in better condition than most of the trunk lines. It is mostly tarvia macadam and very smooth and, notwithstanding that a couple of hills are included in this nine-mile stretch, presents no difficulties to the motorist.

M-11 will be open to traffic, south of Charlevoix, by July 1st. In the meantime, there is no reason whatever why anyone should hesitate for a moment to follow the detour signs from Sprick's corners into Charlevoix. It is every bit as good as the road from Charlevoix to Petoskey and there are eight miles of A-1 concrete on the last lap of the detour.

As it looks to us, the warnings to tourists mentioned in the letter of the Elk Rapids Chamber, which we reproduce above, are a bare-faced piece of propaganda on the part of those who should be big enough and broad enough and have enough regard for the welfare of the whole region to pocket their petty grievance and play the man. When the truth is known, their underground pussy-footing is likely to re-act on them like a boomerang.

Infant Dies Frank J. Chvatil, four day old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Chvatil, of Charlevoix township, died on May 30th last from the effects of broncho-pneumonia. Interment was made June 1st in the cemetery at Brookside.

Ready, Boys

NAVAL RESERVE PAYS US VISIT

TWO CHASERS LAY IN, HERE OVER NIGHT

Wisconsin Unit of Ninth Naval District on Way to Maneuvers at Thunder Bay

The Wisconsin Naval Reserve boys are with us once more. Two of their business-like gray "chasers" pulled out of here Tuesday noon, after a flying over-the-night visit, headed for Thunder Bay, where the entire Great Lakes fleet will assemble for maneuvers.

The U. S. S. C. 412, Lt. Com. E. A. Litehenstein, commanding and the U. S. S. C. 432, under the supervision of Lt. Com. James McGillan, left Milwaukee two days ago, each with her full complement of four officers and 22 men, on their first two weeks' cruise of the season. After the maneuvers at Thunder Bay are over, the fleet will proceed to Cleveland, where the reservists will take part in the parade at the Republican National Convention, returning to Milwaukee on the 15th of June.

The organization represented is the Wisconsin unit of the U. S. Naval Reserve of the 9th Naval District and is not to be confused with the naval militia, which is a state organization, liable for strike duty and to be called out in time of purely local disturbances. The men of the Naval Reserve are not liable for such duty, but are under the supervision of the United States federal government and can only be mustered out in case of national emergency.

The boys sure have a good time on their cruises. They get a $90 clothing allowance to start with and travel pay to and from their homes to the point of embarkation and receive naval wages during the period for which they are mustered. Only men between the ages of 18 and 35 may join. While on their cruise, they go through regular naval maneuvers similar to those performed by the battleships of the navy, and are subjected to an intensive training discipline calculated to bring out their best qualities.

The sub-chasers are roomy, comfortable vessels, capable of making fourteen to fifteen knots per hour, and are powered by three gasoline engines—starboard, port and auxiliary. According to Ensign L. P. O'Brien, who very kindly furnished us with the details of the cruise, they carry a couple of cooks who are "hand-liners" in their professions and make sure that the boys don't suffer gastronomically, at least.

This is the first trip for many of the reservists and many have expressed themselves as delighted with the hospitality and kindness shown to them during their short visit in this city. They are quite welcome, we are sure, and we are glad to have them drop into this port at any time.

Ha Ha! The common council of Mancelona recently passed an ordinance to arrest and fine or imprison any person caught playing pool or billiards within the city limits. Suppose next they will ring a bell at eight o'clock and chase all the people off the streets and make 'em put their lights out and go to bed!

NORMAL CLASS LISTENS TO FINE TALK

Hear Dr. Pittman of State's Rural Education Department

Thursday evening, May 28th, the fourteen members of the Charlevoix County Normal class of 1924 held their final meeting as a class, at the Methodist church, where they listened to an unusually fine address by Dr. M. S. Pittman, head of the rural education department of the Michigan State Normal school.

The emphasis that Dr. Pittman laid, throughout his address, on the whole-hearted service that the public has a right to expect and does look for, in a teacher of either rural, town, or city school, was especially appropriate at this time when the graduates are about to enter their field of life-work, where they hope to be able to fulfill Dr. Pittman's and their other friends' expectations for them along the line of the moulding of young characters into worthwhile citizens.

Friends and relatives of the graduates wish to express gratitude to Dr. Pittman for his inspiring words at this commencement time, as well as to Miss Helen Mayer, county normal principal, for securing the speaker of the evening, and for her splendid interest in all the students with whom she has worked this year. Many regret deeply that Miss Mayer will not return to Charlevoix next year to continue such constructive work as she has accomplished this year.

Predict Lots of Bass

While trout fishermen are beginning the high water in the streams and weather too cold for successful fishing, bass fishermen are going ahead repairing tackle and boats and making ready for the season's opening June 16. Bass fishing in northern waters is believed about to set a new record. Fishermen predict 1924 will be the best season in the last twenty years for bass. Pike fishing is just now opening up and these fine fish are coming up the streams to the smaller lakes near Charlevoix.

FROM CAUSE TO FEARFUL EFFECT

FRANKS MURDER RESULT OF WARPED REASONING

Leopold and Loeb Were Typical Product of Modern Godless Philosophies

The strange murder of Robert Franks, son of a millionaire, by Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb, college men brilliant in scholarship and themselves scions of wealthy families, is the consuming topic of conversation in the Middle West this week. It is of especial interest here because the family of one of the accused has taken up their abode among us and have honestly won the right to be called friend and neighbor by the citizens of this community. For them, we have nothing but the deepest of sympathy.

As to the crime itself, the mind halts paralyzed at its cold and calculating depravity. We are inclined to think that the fact of its commission is less significant than the causes that contributed to it. Any act so utterly unmoral as the murder of Robert Franks for scientific reasons or the satisfaction of morbid curiosity, or, if you please, the securing of a paltry ransom by those who stood little in need of it, must have for its basis or origin a sadly warped and twisted mentality, either physically crippled, or else forced out of its normal channels through a vicious system of education. We are inclined to believe that a combination of these factors was responsible.

The boys have confessed their guilt. The crime, they admitted, was plotted more than nine months ago and all the details were carefully planned to avoid detection.

"We had been reading of kidnapping adventures and demands for ransom," Leopold told authorities in explaining the crime. "We had all the money we needed, of course, but thought it would be a ripping good adventure to kidnap some youngster and try to get some money for it."

"At first we didn't plan the murder, but we decided it would be playing safe to put our victim out of the way."

"We bought all the equipment we needed and then our next task was to select the victim. We wanted to get some boy whose father had plenty of money. We decided to look around the Harvard school, where all the students were wealthy. We selected Robert as our victim."

Leopold then recited the details of the kidnapping and the slaying of the youth, showing the remarkable plans they had laid.

"We rented an automobile and went to the Harvard school just as the boys were coming out. We called Robert and invited him to take a ride. That part was easy."

"We got him in the car; we hit him over the head with a chisel we had prepared. It was wrapped in tape so it wouldn't make a sharp cut in the boy's skull."

"Our next move was to choke our victim. We stuffed rags in his mouth and then gave him some ether which I stole from the chemistry laboratory at college."

"We drove out south to the city limits and carried the boy into a thicket. Here we undressed him, choked him to death and then threw hydrochloric acid on his face. We did this in an attempt to disguise him so badly that if the body was found it could not be identified."

"We buried the shoes and burned the clothes. I think you can find the shoes now if you look."

Leopold admitted it was he who wrote the famous "ransom letter" demanding $10,000 of Jacob Franks, the victim's father.

"We thought that was a right smart piece of work," Leopold told police, "but apparently it helped to lead to our downfall."

Thus the ease stands. What the fate of the culprits may be rests with the courts. We sincerely trust, however, and all true Americans with the best interests of their beloved land (Continued on Page 8)

POULTRY FACTS

Right Feeding Vital to Get Eggs During Winter

The poultryman who wants to keep his pullets laying during the winter must give careful attention to feeding, say the chicken men at the State Agricultural college at Cornell.

The birds, they say, must be fat, as this gives them strength and endurance. Three-fourths of the food they eat should be hard grain. Mash is not as important during the latter part of their development as when they are ready to lay. If milk is fed, little mash is necessary. They should have plenty of green food at all times.

When the first eggs are found on the range at least one-third or one-half of the best-developed birds should be placed in their winter quarters, whether it be September 1 or November 1.

Good judgment must then be exercised in feeding the pullets after they are mature and are in their winter houses. Usually eight quarts of hard grain a day is fed to 100 birds.

One-third or one-fourth of this amount should be fed in the morning and the balance at night. When about half the birds are laying well they may require as much as twelve quarts a day.

Sometimes, however, eight quarts is too much and it is necessary to cut down on this amount until the birds can easily clean it up. Mash should always be kept before them in hoppers or feeders.

Pullets at Cornell have been found to lay best when fed three parts of hard grain to two parts of mash by weight. It is necessary to feed green food in some form, such as sprouted oats, or beets or cabbage. A small amount of milk is a valuable addition to the ration and helps to keep the birds in good condition. The birds should never be starved, but on the other hand they should be hungry at feeding time.

The secret of long and continuous laying with a pure bred flock is to keep the birds always reasonably fat, the college concludes.

Chicken Mineral Mixture

Superior for Laying Hens

A mixture of salt, lime and bone-meal added to soybean meal or other vegetable protein nearly doubled its value in the feed for laying hens or growing chicks. In recent tests at the Ohio experiment station.

Those minerals though making up only 4 per cent of the mash and costing less than 4 cents a year per hen, proved as necessary as any other part of the feed.

Grains and seeds are deficient in protein and minerals. These are supplied by the addition of meat scrap, skim milk or other animal supplement to the feed of grain and mash. Soybean meal, peanut meal, cottonseed meal, and the like supply protein but are deficient in minerals.

When the mineral mixture was added to soybean meal at the rate of 4 pounds per hundred its value was doubled, making it almost equal to meat scrap or milk for egg production and growth.

The station mineral mixture is made up of 60 parts of bone-meal, 20 of limestone, and 20 of common salt.

Feeding Good Balanced

Ration to Secure Eggs

Feed the chickens a good balanced ration. Feed scratch grain in the litter, mash in hoppers (available all the time). Green succulences are necessary for egg production and hatchable eggs during breeding season. Have fresh water always available: oyster shell, charcoal and grit in hoppers. Provide milk in some form either as a beverage in addition to regular mash or to take place of part of protein element; it contains vitamins which are essential for laying hens.

The above in brief is the advice of poultry authorities on care of laying stock. Some formulas for mashes for egg production are suggested below:

1 part wheat bran	1 part ground oats
1 part wheat middlings	1 part cornmeal
1 part oornmeal	1 part meat scrap
1 part bran	1 part middlings
3 parts cornmeal	1 part meat scrap

Adult Geese Should Be

Fed for Eggs Very Early

Adult geese should be fed for eggs about February 1, or so that the goslings will be hatched by the time there is good grass pasture. Feed a mash in the morning of equal parts by weight of corn meal, bran and middlings, or low-grade flour, with 10 per cent of beef scrap, and give whole or cracked corn at night.

Corn for Fattening Geese

Cracked corn is good for fattening geese but should be fed sparingly to breeders. Goslings should have only fresh young grass for the first day or two; after that three small feeds daily of mash or scalded cracked corn with plenty of green stuff. After six weeks goslings being fattened for market may have cornmeal, one part and bran one part.

Old Hens Seldom Lay

Hens more than thirty months old seldom lay.

DUPLEX BUILDING LIKE RESIDENCE

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1327 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only include two-cent stamp for reply.

This is not a residence converted to duplex use, but was designed to serve the residential requirements of two families. It was designed to be built in a rather thickly populated suburban section where certain restrictions operated to prevent the erection of what would obviously appear from the outside as a typical flat building. The casual passer-by would assume it to be a rather commodious residence of good design, for the two entrance doors are so placed as to give the effect of one wide door.

There are two entrance vestibules; as one crosses the threshold, the interior of each half of the house becomes strictly private, and with no connection with the other. Observe that the side entrances help carry this feeling of privacy still farther, for one enters the stairway hall, set mid-

If we go in the front door and pass through the vestibule there we find ourselves in the living room. This is of good size, 15 feet by 13 feet, and has a long French window opening out to the front porch and side windows. A wide door connects with the dining room, 15 feet by 13 feet in size, and a small passage divides it from the kitchen. The kitchen is 15 feet by 11 feet, and has ample shelving accommodations, with a pantry and a rear porch which can be screened or glassed in as desired.

Upstairs there are three bedrooms, a bathroom and a sleeping porch. A long narrow hall runs by the inner to many prospective house owners as a good design to consider. You could live in this as an owner, make one heating unit serve both halves of the house, do the necessary janitor work yourself, like tending the furnace in winter and the lawn in summer, and in a few years have a tidy nest egg toward the building of a regular house where you and your family would be the only occupants.

TOBACCO SMOKE IS TESTED

Scientists Make Experiments to Discover Amount of Nicotine in Pipes, Cigars and Cigarettes.

Nicotine has always been regarded as the poisonous element in the consumption of tobacco by smoking, and in order to determine the amount of this poison developed in the different methods of consuming tobacco some interesting experiments were conducted recently by some scientists abroad.

Long glass tubes, in one end of which the cigar, cigarette and pipe are inserted, the other end being connected with an exhaust pump, are used in the test. The nicotine is absorbed in filter paper. These tests showed conclusively that cigarette smoke contained the least amount of nicotine. For example, Virginia cigarettes, containing 1.40 per cent nicotine, gave a smoke containing only 0.12 per cent nicotine. Turkish cigarettes, containing 1.35 per cent nicotine, gave a smoke with only 0.51 per cent nicotine.

Egyptian cigarettes, with only 1.74 per cent of the nicotine, yielded a smoke with just 0.21 per cent of nicotine. A Havana cigar, containing only 0.64 per cent nicotine, yielded a smoke with 0.20 per cent of the alkaloid. Tobacco, smoked in the pipe, containing 2.85 per cent of nicotine, yields a smoke containing 2.20 per cent of nicotine. Porto Rico shag tobacco, containing 0.33 per cent nicotine, gives a smoke containing 0.25 per cent of nicotine in the pipe.

IMPROVED ROADS

Putting Cracks in Roads to Prevent Other Cracks

Putting in a crack to prevent cracking sounds contradictory, but that is exactly what is being done by highway engineers on some of the modern concrete road projects. Such an innovation is only one of the many new ideas developed in this type of highway construction during the last few years.

The idea of building a crack into the road at the time of construction has been tried and found satisfactory in a number of instances. The "crack" consists of a traffic center line down the middle of the road, as shown in the illustration. In addition, there are dividing lines running crosswise of the road about every fifty feet. So the road becomes a series of concrete slabs 50 feet long and half as wide as the road. The center line is continuous. By using this method highway engineers in the state of Maine secured excellent results, as cracking has been practically eliminated.

Experiments on the manner of preventing cracking were carried out in spite of the fact that cracks ordinarily do no actual damage to the road. Engineers state that the effect of the cracks is largely psychological, in that the average motorist associates cracking with disintegration. However, this has proved to be erroneous, as the crack merely necessitates a small amount of maintenance, and no actual damage is done to the road itself.

Another interesting experiment which has been tried out by Maine highway engineers produced some valuable information in regard to drainage of concrete roads. On some of the projects the concrete slabs had been placed on a heavy rock foundation, the theory being that such a foundation gave substantiality and provided drainage. Study of the results convinced the engineers that this was not the fact and that instead of providing drainage the rock base furnished a place for water to settle and freeze. A decision was reached to eliminate the rock foundations and provide drainage at the side of the road to take water away from the roadbed. The results soon proved the advisability of this procedure.

Express Roads for Autos Above Railroad Tracks

From Europe comes this interesting suggestion for future highways: Express roads for automobiles built above the railroad tracks.

It does not sound so ridiculous when one has thought it over a little while, says the Evansville Courier. Suppose roads could be built for motor vehicles as long, straight and level as railroad tracks, with no sharp curves and no interference from other kinds of traffic, and few crossroads even of the same sort. How that would facilitate long-distance motoring! Automobile tourists could travel safely as fast as the railroad trains, with none of the usual petty annoyances they now meet with, and added thrill and pleasure from being up in the air.

There are practical difficulties, to be sure. The railroad owners would have to consent to the use of their property for that purpose, and be properly compensated. Construction would be expensive. Bridges and tunnels and deep cuts would offer difficult engineering problems. Yet the thing might be done. And some kind of express roads will have to be provided before many years.

An unusual business opportunity is open. We are now prepared to allot the franchise for sales representation of the good Maxwell, and the Chrysler Six, in this territory.

The man, or men, we select, may or may not now be in the motor car business.

Both of these cars occupy a strong and special position in the public mind.

The good Maxwell is the fastest growing car in its class. Its economical, care-free service is as good for the dealer as it is for the owner.

The Chrysler Six success is already assured by advance orders. It sets standards entirely new—it is, in a very literal sense, a revolutionary motor car in performance, in economy, in value.

Given such cars, plus capital and bank credit, plus merchandising ability—and the result is a profitable, money-making business.

FIRST IN MURDER RATE
America bids fair to lead the world—in its murder rate. We have long been well ahead of England, Wales, Scotland and a few other northwestern European countries. Recent statistics show that the American with his gun is a more prolific murderer than the Italian with his old fashioned stiletto.

According to authorities on the subject this country's murder rate stood at 9 per cent, 100,000, of population in 1922. Last year it advanced to 10.2, and this year it is showing the good American tendency toward ever larger output. Citizens here murder each other three times as fast as they do in Italy and from 12 to 25 times as fast as they do in England. About 10,000 individuals a year are sacrificed to hold up this record.

But deliberate murder is not our only means of getting rid of fellow-citizens. Another very successful device is the on-rushing motor car. Industrial accidents and fires swell the total of violent deaths. Three-fourths of all these catastrophes, it is estimated, could be prevented by observance of law and a reasonable degree of carefulness.

The Virginian's comment that a man needs to have a lot of temper, but he should never lose any of it, has a hidden lesson for the modern "go-getters" and "pep" inspired. Speed and force and energy are all valuable, but they are most valuable when under proper control. Power directed and wisely used accomplishes vastly more than power left to run wild. The murders and preventable accidents of every sort that occur throughout this broad land are probably signs of mental and physical energy uncontrolled and misdirected. They present a problem which can be only partially solved by enforcement of laws. Education and training for self-control and proper self-expression are also necessary.

SUMMER PLAY PLACES

It is not so very long a time since the long summer vacation meant empty school yards for three months of the year. That is still the state of affairs in some cities. But in other, and wiser communities, a better system prevails. School yards are kept open the year around, are fitted with playground apparatus and provided with a play supervisor or athletic instructor, and turned over to the school children for play places.

Baltimore is taking this step for the first time this summer. The police commissioner is responsible for the action. He says:

"The important element in the situation is that we must get the children off the streets and out of the way of automobiles. They will be killed if they have no playground other than the street in which to play."

The plan is to throw open 38 school yards. Twenty-five other school yards cannot be opened because so far no play supervisors can be provided.

School grounds alone are not enough, however. At best, they are crowded and usually lacking in grass and shade trees. An intelligent community will provide parks, swimming pools and even sand piles for little folks. Holding the reckless motorist to strict account is only half of a city's job in protecting its children. Providing enough attractive places where they play in safety and happiness is of even more importance.

UNWISE IMMIGRATION

A discordant note, and yet an agreeable one, in the general chorus of protest against the new American immigration law, is struck by the organ of the Pan-American Federation of America, published in Boston.

The open door in America and the lure of American industrial jobs have been by no means an unmixed blessing, says this publication. They have been a positive danger for some countries, because they have drained those countries of labor needed at home to develop their native lands.

"As an example, we have Albania. Three per cent of the whole population of Albania are now working in the United States, when it is well known that Albania has room and potential work for a population five times larger than the present population. The closing of America by restriction is apparently a misfortune but perhaps, if we go deeper into the question, it is after all a blessing in disguise."

This utterance is respectfully commended to various other foreign nationalities who are neglecting the upbuilding of their homelands while spending their energies on a strange land. America's sudden lapse into inhospitality might be a blessing to them, too.

RED CROSS LIFE SAVERS

One of the finest domestic activities of the American Red Cross is its development nowadays of a national life-saving corps among private citizens. Wherever swimming is taught nowadays the Red Cross instruction is given and followed by rigid tests. When the tests are successfully passed, the qualified applicant receives membership in the national life saving corps and one more swimmer is added to the growing list of those who know how to rescue persons from drowning.

In a great many cities where there are public swimming pools and where high school pupils are taught swimming, this life-saving work is developing rapidly. Ambitious youngsters love to learn to swim and dive and they are eager to be able to pass the life-saving tests. The national corps already numbers more than 45,000 members and will have many more when the summer camping season is over.

Here is a fine, constructive piece of work. Drownings at bathing beaches and summer camps have been all too frequent in the past. With love of outdoor life growing up in this country, it is essential that more people understand not only how to protect themselves but how to help others. Every additional Boy Scout and Camp Fire Girl who learn early how to swim and dive and how to rescue others in the water is help to make the rivers and swimming holes and lakes safer for everybody.

CORRELL CANDIDATE FOR PROBATE JUDGE

Stands for Rigid Economy and Strict Attention to Duty

Probate Judge Servetus A. Correll again announces himself as a candidate for the office of Judge of Probate of Charlevoix county subject to the will of the Republican voters at the September primary.

In looking up Judge Correll's record in office, we find that the affairs of the office have been given his personal attention and all work shows a careful system of accounting, nothing lacking, which proves him a tireless worker for those who have placed him in power.

He stands for economy and strict attention to duty. The fact that he has held the office for a long term is no argument against his re-election, but on the other hand only proves his ability for future service, as by actual work he has become familiar with the many intricate matters arising from time to time.

Mr. Correll has proven himself honest in office, is painstaking, careful and obliging to the limit and a man who has given his time and talent to the taxpayers should not be brushed lightly aside. He has plenty of energy in store to successfully conduct another term and we predict that when the votes are counted after primary day, his name will be in the lead.

I am a candidate for Judge of Probate, on the Republican ticket, at the Primary election on September 9th, 1924. Your support will be appreciated. Servetus A. Correll.—Adv. 23-43.

The Charlevoix Abstract & Engineering Company of this city has been awarded a $200,000 contract for the construction of a seven mile stretch of concrete road on M-11 at Pentwater, Oceana county, which is to be completed this summer. It is a relocation job and will not interfere in any way with M-11 traffic.

C. L. He will take an active part in the supervision of the work on present and future contracts that are handled by the company.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Twenty-seven Democrats and 2 Farmer-Laborites combined with 30 Republicans to defeat President Coolidge and passed the bonus bill over his veto—by two votes. LaFollette, Couzens, Watson and McCormick were absent and unpaired, as were four Democrats. What the veteran will get out of the bonus is problematical. If after 60 days training he served 50 days or less he will get in cash $1 a day for each day at home and $1.25 for each day overseas. If he served longer he will get an insurance policy payable in twenty years, at the same rate, with a maximum of $500 for home service and $625 for overseas service. The estimated average value of the policies, at the end of 20 years, is $962. After 2 years the veteran can borrow 90 per cent—not of the total value of his policy—but of its then value as paid up insurance. There is grave fear that money lenders will devise some scheme for loaning money, at usurious rates, on these policies, so that most veterans will get very little out of the bonus. It will require an army of clerks to administer the bonus, estimated at 4,000 to 10,000. It will cost the taxpayers $10,000,000 a year to administer the law, or at least $200,000,000 in the twenty years. The total cost of the bonus itself will be from 2300 to 3000 million dollars. This means that there can be no real reduction of the national debt and no permanent reduction of taxes. As the national election comes in November, there may be tax reduction now, but it will have to be made up in increased taxes later.

Senate and House conferences have agreed on the tax reduction bill, but it remains to be seen whether President Coolidge will approve or veto it. It is a complete repudiation of the Mellon plan, on which the president has insisted. The "publicity" feature, which Mr. Coolidge said would compel him to veto it, though modified, is still in dangerous form. It provides that a committee of congress can call for and make public any income tax returns which it regards as germane to its work; also that when any appeal for a reduction of more than $10,000 in taxes is made the hearing shall be public. The opportunities these provisions will afford to businessmen and corporations to get the inside facts regarding their competitors' business, and especially afford the big corporations to gain information with which to ruin their smaller competitors are regarded as a grave menace to the business of the country and as likely to be used to the disastrous injury of consumers.

Tables published by the Democrats in support of their rejection of the Mellon plan show the huge taxes (40 per cent on incomes of $1,000,000 or more) which the very rich would have to pay. But they carefully conceal the fact that experience has shown that the very rich pay no such taxes because they put their money into tax-free securities, avoiding practically all tax. According to the Democratic leader, Simmons, the man with an income of $1,000,000 a year would pay a tax of $550,000 under the present law and $129,000 under the new, Democratic-insurgent, law. Why the taxes of a man with that income should be reduced at all Senator Simmons does not explain. Secretary Mellon has shown that the man with that income will pay almost no taxes, because of the tax-exempt securities available, but that if congress would reduce his taxes to 25, instead of 40 per cent, he would pay taxes because the change of making more money from tax-exempt securities, even after paying the 25 per cent income tax, would induce him to put his money into business, thus giving more people employment, adding to the general prosperity and reducing the cost of living for everybody.

Crown Prince McAdoo continues to pick up delegates to the increasing anxiety of the Democratic leaders. As the New York World, leading Democratic paper, says, the Democrats can hope to win only on the plea that they will put an end to graft in Washington, and McAdoo, with his Doheny reminders, his collection of big fees from the Republic Iron & Steel Co., for inducing the treasury to reduce its taxes, etc., cannot win on such a platform. E. L. Doheny won first blood in the legal fight the government is making against him. The supreme court of the District of Columbia decided that government counsel could not compel his son to testify before the grand jury and that his refusal to testify did not constitute an admission of guilt on his part; that it is a violation of a man's constitutional right to try to make him incriminate himself even when he's innocent.

AT THE MOVIES
"Enemies of Woman" Coming to Palace Theatre Next Sat. and Sun.
To Patrons:
Only once in the course of years are we privileged to bring to our friends a photodramatic creation of such magnificence and dramatic power as "Enemies of Woman," the brilliant picturization of Vicente Blasco Ibanez's famous novel.

More than a million dollars was spent in bringing to the screen the thrilling narrative of Europe's gilded society life with the magnificent palatial settings. Its unparalleled luxury and its great cast of prominent players. Lionel Barrymore, as a pleasure-loving prince of Russia, and Alvin Rubens as the most famed siren of the continent are featured, among a host of screen celebrities and a company of acknowledged beauties of the theatrical world.

Against a background of Paris, Petrograd, Nice and the Riviera, where the drama was photographed, are staged the revels and intrigues, the tragedies of Mount Carlo gambling tables, the red course of Russia's revolution and the echo of the battle fields, combining to make one of the most absorbing narratives of screen history. "Enemies of Woman" comes direct from successful showings in the biggest theatres in America, where it was played at advanced prices. It is a privilege to be able to show it here and we sincerely advise those who seek the truly big things of the motion picture art not to miss this.

Very truly yours,
L. A. Moon.

DAIRY POINTS

Speedy Justice Recently Meted Out to Scrub Sire

In a special "court" convened in Howard county, Md., the last of October, A. S. Bull, known familiarly as "scrub," was found guilty of robbing hard-working farmers and their families and was sentenced to be hanged immediately. It was brought out by County Agricultural Agent M. H. Fairbank, who acted as prosecuting attorney, that the accused had been depriving the people of this farming community of many luxuries and even some of the necessities, taking the butter from their bread and cream from the milk.

According to a representative of the United States Department of Agriculture, "scrub" was well represented by counsel appointed by the "court," but no arguments could prevail against the overwhelming evidence presented by the prosecution and the damning testimony of a large number of farmer witnesses who had been robbed and had seen their neighbors robbed in the same manner by this old offender.

The jury was unanimous for conviction, and J. R. Dawson, of the dairy division, United States Department of Agriculture, delivered the funeral oration. Scrub's meat is not of the best, but it was well cooked, and a hungry crowd enjoyed it. In a measure, because they had a sense of doing a good thing for the community. The trial was followed by a sale of pure bred bulls.

One of the unusual features of the trial was a brass band which provided appropriate music during the day. Interest in the "trial" was shown by a large attendance from adjoining counties.

Dairy Cows Improved by Advanced Registry Test

"No one thing has done so much to increase the productivity of pure bred dairy cattle in New Jersey as advanced registry testing," says W. R. Robbers, dairy expert at the agricultural experiment station, New Brunswick.

"The average production of all cows has been given by the United States census as 4,000 pounds of milk a year. Pure bred herds under the advanced registry tests soon develop cows which produce twice that amount of milk without additional feed cost.

"Care in the management of cows increases their productive capacity. It is the care incidental to advanced registry testing which often results in the cow doing much better during her second testing period than her first.

"By means of these tests and the records kept the hopelessly unproductive cows are detected so that the dairyman can eliminate them from the herd.

"It has long been recognized that the bull is the most important factor in improving the herd. Through advanced registry it is possible for the dairyman to observe whether or not the daughters of the bull are better than their dams. In this way superior bulls are discovered and are chosen to raise the standard of the herd.

"The advisory experts maintained by the department of dairy husbandry at the State College of Agriculture, New Brunswick, are always glad to answer questions on advanced registry or any other phase of dairying."

Feeding Test Made With Corn Silage and Fodder

The dairy cow has long found favor because she is able to convert large quantities of bulky roughage into a concentrated and highly nutritious product. There are, however, certain roughages on which a cow produces much better. As the business of dairying is to produce milk profitably rather than merely to convert fodder into milk, a comparison of the common farm roughages is valuable.

A careful feeding test was made at the Iowa experiment station with corn silage and fodder, alfalfa and timothy hay, and a combination of corn fodder and timothy hay.

The use of corn fodder in place of corn silage reduced the milk production 6 per cent, and the fat production 5 per cent. When alfalfa is worth $4.50 a ton, an acre of corn yielding eight tons, if converted into silage, is worth $36, while if converted into fodder the value is reduced to $10.21.

When alfalfa hay was replaced by timothy in a good dairy ration, milk and butterfat production was reduced 7 per cent. When both alfalfa hay and silage were replaced at the same time by fodder and timothy hay, the milk yield dropped 18 per cent and fat 14 per cent.

If possible get the corn crop in the silo. Timothy hay should be sold and clover or alfalfa bought to take its place.

Wash Milk Cans Clean.
The cleansing of milk vessels is best done by first rinsing them in cold or lukewarm water to remove the milk after which they should be scrubbed with a brush inside and out. Use hot water and washing powder and then rinse in clean, hot water.

Show Up Poor Cows.
Almost any cow can make a profit on pasture, but the feeding of grain and roughage indoors soon shows up the poor ones in dairy-improvement records.

Burton Melencamp left for Boyne City on Monday, and expects to take up his duties as County Farm Agent of Charlevoix county at once. His position as cow tester of the North Antrim association has been taken by G. G. Mullett, of Three Rivers.

The creamery department of the Marketing association broke all previous records on Saturday of last week when they received fifty-four cans of cream. This means that local farmers and dairymen received in the neighborhood of five hundred dollars for their cream on this one day and is a further proof that dairying is becoming a real thing in this vicinity. The marketing association also reported $6,600 business on merchandise for the month of May, this being four hundred dollars short of the April business, the falling off being largely due to less grass seed being sold in the past month than in April.

RESULTS OF THE GOITRE SURVEY

Startling Results Revealed Throughout Entire District

During the goitre survey in our county, 2,392 school children were examined by the goitre personnel of the Michigan department of health; of this number, 1,100 children had goitre; 53.3 per cent of our girls have goitre and 38.4 per cent of our boys have goitre.

This is an extremely large percent, especially among our Antrim county girls. The specimens of water which were sent from Elk Rapids, Bellaire, Central Lake and Mancelona show that the water supply in these places does not contain any iodine. This, of course, bears out the theory that with little or no iodine in the water supply there is a high incidence of goitre.

We cannot emphasize enough the fact that the simple goitre is a deficiency disease caused by a lack of iodine in the water and food supply, and that the preventive and curative treatment of the goitre is in using some form of iodine. We should like to try it from the house-tops to every family in Antrim county to use some form of iodine in their home; we should like to have every family using the iodized salt which is on the market for the prevention of goitre. It tastes like other salt, looks the same and costs very little more than other salt. The very best part of it is that it keeps our preschool children from developing goitre, takes care of the expectant mother, and also our school children.

This iodized salt should be used consistently every day. For those who prefer to use the iodine in tablet form there is the "Iodostarine" tablets which taste like chocolate candy, and contains one-tenth of a grain of iodine. The Michigan department of health advocates from one to two tablets a week, depending on the age of the child. There are absolutely no harmful effects to be had from these tablets, and they may be gotten from the home druggist.

Begin now using some form of iodine in your homes. Tomorrow is just another day in which your thyroid gland may be trying to manufacture its own iodine. This causes an enlarged thyroid, and to quote Dr. Kimball, who is one of our foremost goitre specialists, "In regard to the simple goitre, a milligram of prevention is worth a million pounds of cure."

Build Automobile Roads and Make Streets Better

Following similar action by municipalities in India, Australia, and Japan, cities in China are putting into practice the latest methods adopted by American highway engineers for the construction of automobile roads and modern paved streets. According to C. Harpur, commissioner of public works at Shanghai, Chinese highway bureaus are beginning to replace their waterbound macadam streets with asphaltic concrete. In Shanghai last year five and one-fourth miles of asphaltic concrete pavement were constructed. Nearly three miles of this are on roads approved for new lines of railless trams. The mileage of streets traversed by Shanghai's tramway system is about twenty-six.

Last year the tramcars of Shanghai carried 123,094,228 persons, or 10,500 persons per route mile per day, a passenger traffic unequalled. It is said, even by the surface lines of New York city, London, Chicago, Paris, or Berlin. Handicarts licensed in Shanghai last December numbered 2,164, while the wheelbarrows licensed totaled 18,941. There are now 364 motor trucks using Shanghai streets.

MUST REGISTER AGAIN THIS YEAR

VOTERS REQUIRED TO LIST
NAME WITH CITY CLERK

Members of All Parties Come Under This Law Regardless of Any Previous Registration

A general re-registration of Michigan voters will be made, beginning June 1, in compliance with the state law.

All electors wishing to vote at the fall primaries, Sept. 8th, must re-register between June 1 and August 23. Poll books will be open in the office of the city clerk at the Carnegie Library every day except Sunday and legal holidays during the months of June, July and August.

The qualifications for registering and voting, as defined by the state constitution, requires the age of 21 years, be a citizen of the United States, resident of the state for six months prior to the election, and of the city for 30 days. Naturalized citizens should be in a position to furnish information as to the time and place where final, or second papers were granted, and election officials request that such naturalized citizens present such proof when making application for registration.

To vote at the fall primaries or succeeding election, Nov. 4, every citizen must re-register, and applicants are requested to make a note of this fact and present themselves at the city clerk's office during the times specified.

County, state and federal officers are to be nominated and elected at the fall contests and several questions decided by Michigan voters, including an amendment on state re-districting for legislative purposes and the parochial school amendment.

BOYNE CITY WHITE- WASHED BY LOCALS

This Gives Us the North State Championship

In the final game of this year's successful base ball season, the red and whites greatly outclassed their opponents in a one sided contest at the North Side park. It was the closing outburst of the "veterans" who have tucked the North State base ball championship under their belt.

Boyne City was held absolutely scoreless during the entire game, with only a single hit and that in the last inning. They were dumbfounded at the consistent and tireless plugging of the local batteries and the red and white showed up better than ever before. We can truly boast of an exceptional high school base ball outfit.

The score by innings was as follows:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Charlevoix	4	3	0	2	0	0	0	0	0

Total - Charlevoix, 12; Boyne City 0.

Boyne gave up the sponge in the sixth when they saw they were hopelessly outclassed by Charlevoix. This is the sixth victory the locals have dragged down this year. Congratulations.

Buell & Wickett Institution May Be Reorganized

The Elmira Bank of Buell & Wickett closed its doors, Monday, May 26th, and suspended business.

Mr. Wickett, who was appointed administrator for the concern, has been occupied for the past four years, winding up the bank's affairs and keeping it running as well as he could, being case, in which a woman connected with the affair hid in a swamp over night. It was this woman, former belle among the Indians, who procured the liquor from Wilkes, it is alleged, and her two small brothers, one seven years of age and the other ten, were important witnesses in the case. The seven year old testified to having accompanied his sister to Wilkes's place where she received a package of liquor. The other boy testified to having seen a man come out of the place with a bottle under his coat tails that looked like a vinegar bottle. This man was afterwards found drunk and the evidence was linked up.

CELEBRATE DOUBLE BIRTH ANNIVERSARY

Messrs. Rogers and Munyon are Honored by Friends

Last Saturday evening, the Country Club and other friends and neighbors (47 in all) gathered at the home of C. R. Munyon on rural Rt. No. 1 for a potluck dinner in honor of the birthday anniversaries of Walter Rogers and C. R. Munyon.

A long table was placed on the porch, which had been enclosed in canvas for the occasion. The color scheme was pink and yellow. Bowls of pink and yellow flowers were effectively used for the decorations and two large birthday cakes were decorated with pink and yellow candles, one for each decade of the gentlemen's lives, the blowing out of these candles indicating many more birthdays for each. The favors were small pink and yellow baskets of bon-bons.

A general good time was enjoyed by all and the guests departed, wishing Mr. Munyon and Mr. Rogers many happy returns of the days and promising to help them celebrate each birthday to come, as Mrs. Munyon and Mrs. Rogers have made this an annual affair.

Hotel Torch on M-11, between Traverse City and Charlevoix, is now open and is serving its famous chicken dinners, as in previous years. Please make reservations early. Phone Charlevoix exchange, Pay Station Three. R. H. Benne, Proprietor.—Adv. 23-41.

BROKE THE ICE IN PINE LAKE FOR '24

Local Youths Find Bathing A Trifle Coolish

While most of us, citizens of Charlevoix and vicinity, were taking part in the Memorial day exercises (or fishing!), two ardent believers in bathing for the sake of bathing—regardless of necessity, were putting their theories into practice by cleaving the icy waters of Pine Lake, just off Pine Point.

These two gentlemen, Gilbert Saltonstall and Al Rollins, when pressed by their friends for information, admitted that the water was a trifle cooler than was necessary for comfort, but denied that their elation at being the first ones in for 1924 was in any way abated by this fact.

Material changes were made by the Legislature in 1923. The most important involve the taxation of real estate to persons who previously enjoyed exemption, increases in the rate of taxation, taxation of gifts made within two years before date of death and increases in the amount of exemptions.

FIVE AMENDMENTS TO BE VOTED ON

ALL OF MORE THAN USUAL INTEREST TO PEOPLE OF STATE

Closing of All Private and Parochial Schools to Be Fought Out—Liquor Question Aired

Five amendments to the state constitution are to be submitted to vote in November. Petitions with about 60,000 signatures have been filed with the secretary of state and under the law these five amendments will be submitted to the voters in November.

A state income tax. An amendment forbidding parochial schools.

A wine and beer act in violation of the national constitution.

Two propositions from Wayne county, the purpose and effect of which would be to greatly increase the Wayne county vote in the state legislature.

The purpose of the income tax is to put into those having an income of over $4,000 a large proportion of the general expenses of the state.

In speaking of these amendments, a leading southern Michigan weekly says in part:

"The school question is also to be submitted in the form of a constitutional amendment. Secretary of State DeLand refused to be governed by the petitions that had been presented some time ago in favor of doing away with parochial schools; but the state supreme court has overruled his objections and declared unconstitutional a state law passed by the last legislature, which Secretary DeLand held was the basis of his refusal. This means that the school question will have to be threshed out at the polls in November. It is unfortunate that this disturbing issue should come up at this time; but there is no way to prevent it, and the voters will have to make their decision as to whether they wish to compel the closing of all private and parochial schools, and require that every child in this state must attend public schools.

It is still a question as to whether the federal constitution would permit the carrying out of such a provision even if the voters of the state approved it. It will be remembered that the voters of Oregon, by a majority vote, decreed that there should be no more church schools in that state. An appeal was taken to the federal courts. So far it has reached only the federal district court, and the decision of the federal judge in that court was that the Oregon law was unconstitutional. If his decision is sustained by the federal district court and by the federal supreme court, the passing of such an enactment in Michigan would be futile. The district court decision on the Oregon law has been appealed from the district court to the federal circuit court. It will be some time before the matter is finally passed upon by the court of last resort, the U. S. supreme court.

It also appears that there are some people in Michigan who still want a wine and beer amendment to the constitution of this state. What earthly good it would do so long as the eighteenth amendment to the federal constitution is in existence, it seems hard to conjecture, for the national constitution and the laws based upon it would nullify any amendment to the state constitution or any state laws which conflict with the federal laws. It will be remembered that such a state amendment was voted down in Michigan by a two to one vote when we had a state prohibitory law and before the eighteenth amendment or the Volstead Act were adopted. We hardly think it will fare any better at this time.

There will also be two propositions put up from Wayne county in favor of a new re-apportionment of Michigan that will give to Wayne county an immensely increased representation in the state legislature. If the rest of the state knows when they are well off, they will see that these Wayne propositions are defeated. With 60 per cent of the population of Detroit foreign born or the children of foreign born, who have not resided in this country long enough to have imbibed the principles of Americanism, we think it will be a sorry time for the rest of us in Michigan to give Detroit such a whip-hand in the legislature of Michigan.

as she would gain if the apportionment were based upon population alone.

This is a favorable time to submit constitutional amendments. Our state law requires that 10 per cent of the vote cast at the preceding election for governor must sign petitions for a constitutional amendment in order to secure its submission to the voters. The vote two years ago, on which this would be based, was very light, requiring a little over 58,000 voters to sign such petitions. If it were based upon a presidential vote, it would require from 150,000 to 160,000, and that is quite a lot of names to get on petitions."

WHEAT CROP FOR YEAR IS SMALLER

LATEST REVIEW SHOWS GRAIN CONDITION LESS FAVORABLE

Michigan Crop in Much Better Condition Than General
Average of Nation

A smaller crop of wheat this year than produced last year was forecast Monday by the department of agriculture in its report of June 1 crop conditions just published.

Smaller acreage of both winter and spring wheat and less favorable conditions than last year are responsible.

Winter wheat production, was forecast at 509,000,000 bushels, compared with a forecast of 553,013,000 bushels a month ago.

First production forecasts for the season of other crops are: Oats, 1,232,000,000 bushels; barley, 160,000,000 bushels; rye, 62,500,000 bushels, and peaches, 52,500,000 bushels.

The condition of the crops on June 1, from which the production forecasts were computed, were: Winter wheat, 74.0 per cent of a normal; spring wheat, 82.3. All wheat 76.0; oats, 83.0; barley, 79.5; rye, 87.4; hay, 83.0; pastures, 82.2; apples, 74.0; peaches 72.7.

The total wheat acreage, combining winter and spring wheat areas, 82.3 per cent of the combined area last year.

The acreage of corn and oats is 41,250,000 acres or 90.19 per cent of last year, and of barley 71,552,000 acres, or 95.5 per cent of last year.

The condition of winter wheat on June 1 and the forecast of production (in thousands of bushels, i. e., thousands omitted), by important producing states include:

Pennsylvania condition, 85 per cent of normal; production, 20,451 bushels.

Ohio, 77 and 33,724.

Indiana, 77 and 25,567.

Illinois, 64 and 336.

Michigan, 89 and 16,335.

Charlevoix Cannot Have Team When Backing Is Left Up To One or Two

At the meeting of baseball fans and promoters, which was held in the high school auditorium last Monday evening, nothing very definite was accomplished for the principal reason that nothing very definite in the way of a plan had been prepared. Two committees were created with the chairman empowered to select their own committeemen. Leo Pow-ers is chairman of the committee on the team and George Glados chairman of the finance committee.

This matter of baseball in Charlevoix, outside of the realm of high school athletics, is a matter that has been shifted for many years past on to the shoulders of one or two persons who have been public spirited enough to carry the burden. And this is true, not only of baseball, but of other sports as well. This small handful of enthusiasts, practically confined to the members of one family, as a matter of fact, have put up the money, given of their time and loaned their premises and conveyances to keep public athletics alive in this community. Now, they feel that they should no longer be asked to bear the entire brunt of the matter and have withdrawn, with the result that we are now facing a baseball season without a team and no very definite prospects of having one.

The city council have promised their support to the extent of $200. This is as far as they can go with the advertising funds at their command. A total of $1,000 must be raised. The rest depends on the gate receipts. Now it is up to the people.

The Charlevoix public, through their commercial association, have issued an advertising booklet this year in which they have featured a baseball team as one of the interesting attractions of the summer season and have gone so far as to supplement this announcement with a large cut, showing the team in action. This pretty nearly binds us to produce a team this season and a good one.

There is plenty of material for a good team to be had if we can assure the players that the necessary funds and backing will be forthcoming. Baseball is a great "puller" for any town and this is so generally recognized that in many places men who have the qualifications of first-class ball players are offered jobs in the town as an inducement to make their homes there and play on the town team.

All this is so well known that it is hardly necessary to mention it. But baseball, or any other seasonal sport, will never get very far here or anywhere else unless we have a strong, well-managed and permanent organization that can "put it across" and in whose ability to wisely and effectively apend the funds entrusted to it the people have entire confidence. This looks to us like a large, but important job for the Charlevoix Association of Commerce—the creation of an organization of this kind and faithful support of it when formed.

The evening meeting was addressed by Mrs. Cora Downs Stevens, national field secretary, whose wide experience and ability as a speaker made her most interesting.

The Tuesday sessions were inspiring and greatly enjoyed by those in attendance. A reading by Mrs. Blewfield was especially well received as was the playlet, "Preparing for the Convention," by Mrs. W. M. Van Every. Mrs. Blewfield and Mrs. James Saigeon.

An unusually fine address was given by Mrs. Maud Hildreth, corresponding secretary for the societies of the Michigan conference.

The convention continued through Wednesday morning, June 4th, and closed with a worker's conference in charge of Mrs. Hildreth in the afternoon.

EAST JORDAN BAND TO PLAY HERE SOON

May Be Regular Event If Business People Will Cooperate

The East Jordan concert band has been secured to play in this city on the evening of Thursday, June 12th, at which time they will present the following program:

March: "The Rambler."
Concert Waltz: "Emerald."
Andantino: "O Sole Mio."
March: "Guess It."
A Tune Picture of the South: "Uncle Tom's Cabin."
March: "With the Colors."
Overture: "Twilight Echoes."
Serenade: "Evening Shadows."
Song and Dance: "You and I."
Duet for Two Cornets: "Lieutenant Santelman March."

If the business people of the town and lovers of good band music can be persuaded to cooperate in the matter, it is hoped to obtain the services of this fine band at regular intervals throughout the summer months.

A good band, playing for public entertainment in the city streets, is always a headline attraction, and as long as we have no band of our own, it will be "fine business" to be able to enjoy each week the very excellent organization which our sister city provides.

TREE STEALING TO BE CHECKED

WHOLESALE SPOILIATION OF EVERGREENS MUST STOP

Upper Peninsula Development Bureau Planning Drastic Action
To This End

The officers and directors of the Upper Michigan Development Bureau, at a recent meeting at Marquette, went on record as opposed to the wanton and wasteful cutting of ground pine and evergreen trees for Christmas uses, throughout the upper peninsula, and voted to begin at once a crusade to control this illegal practice. A great many letters, urging that some such step be taken, have been received by the officials of the Bureau during the past year and the contemplated action is the outcome of these expressions of popular opinion.

It is felt that the state conservation department should empower and instruct its agents in the field—game, fish and fire wardens—to include the illegal cutting of Christmas trees and ground pine in the field of their operations and to report all serious violations for punishment.

In support of the action of the Development Bureau, G. E. Bishop, its secretary-manager, says:

"While the officers of the organization are not unmindful of the sentiment of Christmas and the fact that the curtailment of the indiscriminate cutting will perhaps affect the Christmas tree markets to a considerable extent, we sincerely believe that the land owners in every case should have the right to say whether or not the trees shall be taken from his property in carload quantities, as has been the practice in the past.

"It is not so much that we would entirely stop the cutting of the trees as it is to protect the owners of the property. Surely, when such trees are cut for commercial purposes, the private owner should at least be entitled to some return from their sale. This seems to us no more than fair.

"The cutting of ground pine and Christmas trees has become a considerable industry in some sections of the peninsula, and it is growing. We believe it is high time that some measure should be put in force for its control."

Last Thursday Was Sad Day For

Continuing the cases before the court at the May term, sentence was pronounced last Thursday on the following offenders:

W. F. Beach, violation of the Medical Registration Act, fine of $200.00 with costs of $100.00 and sixty days in the county jail. In default of payment of fine within 24 hours, an additional four months in jail to be added to the sentence.

The case of the People vs. Chester Brannon. Brannon plead guilty on a non-support charge and was sentenced to Jackson for from one to three years, the recommendation of the court being eighteen months, at hard labor. Earnings of the prisoner to go to his family.

The case of the people vs. Frank Celoski, found guilty of transporting liquor: $100.00 fine and $100.00 costs and six months in Ionia.

The case of the people vs. Elmer Tift, guilty of selling liquor to two high school boys: fine $200.00 and costs of $100.00 and sentence of six months to one year with recommendation of seven months in Jackson.

The case of the people vs. Walter Ware, violation of liquor law. Defendant found guilty and fined $100 with costs of $100. He paid the cash.

The people vs. Mike Sevinsky. Plead guilty to selling liquor and was fined $100.00 with costs of $100.00 and given a six months stretch at Ionia.

The people vs. James Cole, who was found guilty of furnishing liquor to a young girl, sixteen years of age. He was sentenced to six months at Ionia.

The case of Milton G. Wilkes, convicted of a violation of the liquor law, will be continued until July 1st to give the defendant a chance to appeal his case. He is out on $10,000 bail and if unsuccessful in his appeal will be required to appear for sentence on the date above named.

It is evidently the intention of Judge Gilbert to make bootlegging unhealthy in this part of the country and the Courier is heartily in accord with this endeavor. They can pay fines out of their swollen earnings, but working on the roads in the hot suns of the lower end of this state ought to induce some mighty keen reflection on the part of these gentlemen as to the wisdom of their course.

LATEST DATA ON CAR FERRY

State Issues Ferry Price Lists and Times of Sailings

A schedule and rates for passenger automobiles and motor trucks which use the state ferry at the Straits of Mackinac have been announced by the Michigan highway department, which at the present time is operating the steamer St. Ignace.

Cars having wheel base up to and including 114 inches are transferred across the straits for $2.50, and cars having a wheel base of more than 114 inches the charge is $3.50.

In both cases the passengers are carried free. Persons crossing the straits not in automobiles are charged 25 cents each way.

The state ferry will not handle package freight other than that carried in automobiles and trucks.

The rate for trailers is $1.50; for motorcycles $1; with basket attachment $1.50; for one-ton truck and under, $5; over one ton to and including two tons, $9; over two tons to and including three tons, $11; over three tons to and including four tons, $13; and over four tons to and including five tons, $15.

UNCEASING MISERY
Some Charlevoix Kidney Sufferers Get Little Rest or Comfort

There is little sleep, little rest, little peace for many a sufferer from kidney trouble. Life is one continual round of pain. You can't rest at night when there's kidney backache. You suffer twinges and "stabs" of pain, annoying urinary disorders, lameness and nervousness. You can't be comfortable at work with darting pains and blinding dizzy spells. Neglect these ailments and serious troubles may follow. Begin using Doan's Kidney Pills at the first sign of disorder. Thousands have testified to their merit.

Proof in Charlevoix testimony: Mrs. Dan Bacot, 105 Lincoln Ave., Charlevoix, says: "My back was stiff and sore just over my kidneys. My kidneys were weak and acted irregularly, so I decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills and got a few boxes. They rid me of the trouble in a very satisfactory manner."

TRAILS BANDIT AND FINALLY GETS HIM

Detective Waterman of the criminal investigation bureau of the Michigan State Police needed all of his persistence in trailing Carl Tague from town to town but he finally located him and now Tague is in the hands of the law.

A restaurant in Lansing was held up February 23. The bandit escaped but a Lansing officer saw a man acting suspiciously near the railroad station and remembered his appearance.

Starting with only a slight clue, Waterman traced the crime to Tague, who had gone from Lansing to Toledo, then to Columbus, to New Lexington, to Melbury, to Kirksville, to Zanesville and finally, with the assistance of an Ohio sheriff, arrested him at Roseville.

ARMSTRONG HEADS ANTI-LIQUOR SQUAD

Lieutenant Fred G. Armstrong has been chosen to head the prohibition enforcement, or "clean-up" squad of the Michigan State Police. His headquarters will be at Lansing and he will have the services of a number of investigators and also of the Department of Public Safety district inspectors throughout the state. After evidence has been obtained by the investigators, unarmored men from the patrol division will be detailed to make the raids.

Lieutenant John S. Palmer has been placed in charge of the criminal investigation division, with the state detectives under his orders. He will also supervise the movement and condition of prisoners.

AT THE MOVIES
 Major Norris' Novel "Brass" Picturized

The screen version of Major Charles G. Norris' novel, "Brass," with Monte Blue portraying the role of Phillip Baldwin, comes to the Palace Theatre next Tuesday and Wednesday. This is the story which is enjoying uninterrupted vogue by its realistic treatment of marriage and divorce.

The picture is said to retain the vividness characteristic of the novel. The setting of the story is in sunny California, first in a prosperous rural community, then shifting to bustling

San Francisco, where most of the action passes.

"Brass" is a Warner Brothers classic of the screen, directed by Sidney Franklin. Monte Blue's supporting cast consists of Marie Prevost, Harry Myers, Vera Lewis, Irene Rich, Frank Keenan, Miss DuPont, Margaret Seddan, Helen Ferguson, Edward Jobson, Harvey Clark, Cyril Chadwick, Pat O'Malley, Gertrude Bennett and Ethel Grey Terry.

Pola Negri's Best Picture
 Heralded as her greatest picture, Pola Negri's second Paramount star production, "The Cheat," produced by George Fitzmaurice and featuring Jack Holt, with Charles deRoche in support, will be shown at the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday. It is an absorbing screen drama with a highly satisfactory climax and a role that presents this famous star in a most delightful manner.

Most of the action takes place at a Long Island society resort. Miss Negri appears as Carmelita de Cordoba, a South American heiress who falls in love with a New York broker (Jack Holt). They elope in Paris and coming to New York, a series of highly dramatic episodes occur in which the young wife finds herself sorely pressed for funds. As a last resort she accepts the aid of a bogus East Indian prince who loves her madly. A happy ending brings the picture to a novel close—an unusually gripping court room scene constituting the climax, the equal of which seldom has been seen on the screen.

This is the type of picture that the public has been clamoring for. Nothing has been left undone—it is a veritable triumph for both star and producer. Nor must the splendid work done by Jack Holt and Charles deRoche be overlooked. Beautiful women, gorgeous gowns, sumptuous settings, a tremendous story and acting to the nth degree, all combine to make "The Cheat" THE picture of the current season.

The supporting cast includes, among others, Dorothy Cummings, Robert Schable, Charles Stevenson, and Guy Oliver. Ouida Bergere adapted the story to the screen.

WHY PAY MORE?

Why pay $10.00 for shoes and oxfords when exactly the same grade and quality can be bought for $7.00 and $8.00. Our Neuen Bush shoes and Oxfords are equal in quality to any made. The very best of leather is used and they give the best of service. Again we ask, why pay the high price asked by some dealers, whose goods are often not equal to those sold in the same community for less money? Better investigate this shoe proposition, and at the same time save money by so doing.

A $10,000,000 BOY SCOUT FUND
Foresight and a consecration to the great work in which they are engaged have persuaded the leaders of the Boy Scout movement in the United States to undertake the task of raising $10,000,000 as a fund to be used in providing the opportunity for the 2,000,000 boys of Scout age not now enrolled in the organization to take part in its activities. At the National Boy Scout Council in St. Louis, Colin H. Livingston of Washington, D. C., was elected president of the organization for the fifteenth time. Clarence H. Howard of St. Louis, president of the Scout council in that city, was made chairman of the national committee which will have charge of the campaign to raise the fund.

No one who, by association with members of the Boy Scout camps anywhere, has become familiar with the organization, need be told what a great opportunity awaits him in the privilege to contribute to the generous fund to be raised. When it is realized that through the proper application of the money given the means will be provided for bringing the teachings of the craft to at least a large proportion of the boys who are anxious to become enrolled Scouts, there should be no hesitation about giving. Like other patriotic funds to which Americans have contributed in the past, it should be oversubscribed on the day the books are opened.

But properly regarded the giving of money for such a purpose is not a mere contribution. It is an investment, not in something of questionable value, but in gilt-edged, dividend-paying stock. Who can foresee the result of the proper training of an American boy who, because of his surroundings, an unclean environment, or lack of vision on the part of those whose duty it is to instruct and direct him, would otherwise be subjected to degrading influences? The returns from such an investment cannot possibly be measured in dollars.

The fathers and mothers of America, and of the world for that matter, owe a great debt to those unselfish men and women who have stood in the front of the line and by determination and wise perseverance, have placed the Boy Scout organization upon a firm and enduring basis. Those parents who have seen the results of Scout training need not be told what it will mean to those boys who as yet are unable to take part in it.

If anyone doubts the wisdom of giving to the cause let him inquire of those who know. Or let him, on an evening, visit the headquarters of a Scout camp in some city or town. Better yet, let him, by train or otherwise, follow the boys to one of their summer camps. The proof to corroborate all that has been said or that can be said in commendation of the work being done will be found there. — Christian Science Monitor.

HE HADN'T TIME

The funeral procession that held you up as you were driving along the street was in honor of a man who hadn't time. He was only 54, yet in that brief span of years had built a fine, substantial business. He couldn't be enticed away from his desk. One meeting followed another. One conference crowded another. His daily correspondence was a veritable mound. He hadn't time for anything but business—until they called in the undertaker.

Most of us have the promise of a good three score years and ten. Twenty-five of these years we spend in growing up and getting prepared to make good. Then we work madly for another twenty-five years or so, promising ourselves to sit down and enjoy the last ten or twenty years, with a big roll in the bank. But the life insurance statistics suggest that that promise is not always performed.

So, why make that promise? Why delay the fun of living until that golden moment of your dreams when you are going to take it easy? Why wait?

Life is only so long. Nobody can crowd all the good things it offers into a decade. Even though you live, age will creep on to take away the bloom from the things you planned to do. You can't motor across the Continental Divide at 60 and get the same punch out of it you could have gotten at 40. At 60 you cannot hike in the woods and brave the dangers of the out doors as you did when young.

What does it profit a man to gain the whole world and then shuffle off? What is the sense of making a great pile of money and lose the power to enjoy it?

Horace Greely, who died untimely at 60, promised a friend shortly before his end, that he expected to quit the game soon and go fishing. But he never did. He hadn't time. Have you?

MORE SCHOOLS?

In many a home during the next few weeks the question of more schooling for the older children will come up for discussion.

Shall the boy ready for college become so interested in his summer job that he thinks after all he had better stick to business and let college go? Shall the boy or girl half way through high school and becoming restive stop and go to work or shall he by changing course a bit get ready for college or for mechanical work of the higher sort? Shall the eighth grader be allowed to decide that he is educated enough, and never again look inside of a school room, never read a good book or advance himself intellectually in any way beyond the necessary requirements of the nearest job, joining for life the great army of lowbrows?

We asked a wise old person what he thought about all this, the arguments for and against more school. This was his answer, and it bears consideration:

"There are two things which I have lived to hear many a man and women regret not doing when young. Never have I heard men or women regret doing them. One is getting a little more schooling while there was a chance; the other is buying a little piece of land.

"Not every boy or girl should go through college, not every one should buy a farm. But just getting one more year of school or music or acquiring the habit of reading good books while the mind is young and nimble is worth everything to the happiness of later life, and buying one good lot the margin of the first salary establishes a foundation of credit and thrift for later comfort.

"Tell the kids to stick it out just one more term. They will never be sorry."

PICKLE ACREAGE QUOTA FILLED

The maximum quota of contracts having been written, the Charlevoix Pickle & Produce Company discontinued taking pickle acreage last week. Several late-calls came in for acreage, but many of these could not be filled after the capacity amount had been reached.

This is planting time. Although many fields were planted last week, the majority will doubtless be finished before Saturday night.

Due partly to the larger sizes that will be taken and also to the higher prices being paid, the acreage written is many times larger this year than it has ever been here at Charlevoix before.—Adv. 24-11.

"HURRY-UP" YOST QUEST OF ALUMNI

Famous U. of M. Coach Visited Charlevoix Wednesday

Charlevoix was honored by the presence on last Wednesday evening of Fielding H. Yost—"Hurry-Up" Yost, as he is familiarly known to the thousands of University of Michigan undergraduates and alumni who have had the pleasure of knowing this famous coach, who has spent the major portion of his life in the field of sports and is without peer in coaching football teams and building real men. For more than twenty years he has been at the University of Michigan and it is largely due to his efforts that during that time Michigan has indeed been "Champion of the West."

The coach brought several reels of pictures with him, showing Michigan football teams in action and views of the campus. These were shown at the Palace Theatre and after the pictures, Coach Yost gave a very interesting and inspiring talk to the high school boys and others gathered there, in which he stressed the necessity of always being in training if we are to meet successfully the competition in football and other contests, including the great game of life.

After the talk, about fifty of the townspeople banqueted with Mr. Yost at Hallett's Inn, where he again gave a very interesting talk. Those who were fortunate enough to be present will always remember it as a very pleasant and profitable evening.

COMMUNICATION

To the Public of Charlevoix County:

There seem to be a few citizens in Charlevoix county who do not understand why we chiropractors are taking the stand we do in regard to the Medical Practice Act. Some of them seem to think that we are arbitrary and refuse to take the examination for sentimental reasons or our dislike for the medical profession. Such is not the case. Nor do we believe that chiropractors will replace the medical practitioners.

We believe in law and regulation. We do not believe in class legislation in regard to health service any more than any other public problem. We know that principle in the average person or group of persons is not broad enough for them to be entrusted with a monopoly of health service. If the medical profession, which is represented by the state medical board, were so inflexible as to get all their patients well, half the people of the country would not be seeking health service from another source. If the profession, which is represented by the board of medical examiners, do not and cannot use chiropractic methods to relieve the sick, how in the name of common sense are they going to examine the chiropractor to determine his ability to practice the thing they know nothing about?

Our law-makers recognize that fact in creating the several examining boards for the state, but the chiropractor alone is required by law to go to men of a different profession for their examination.

We only ask for our constitutional rights and independence, so that the public may be protected from the fake chiropractor, with three weeks attendance at a chiropractic school, such as have been recently licensed under the present regulation.

A few do not like our "go-to-jail" policy because it is a burden to the taxpayer. We have tried to get just laws for more than ten years through other methods and have failed. The law has been on the statute books since 1913 and much relief has been given by chiropractors because it has not been enforced. Until recently, there has been but little condemnation of the illegal practice of chiropractic, which is recognized as one of the lending health services of today. The only charges that are made against the chiropractor are of a technical nature. If harm came from chiropractic advertising, there would have been much activity on the part of officials. About the only persons active in the prosecution of chiropractors are those who are affected by their competition.

We have always understood that competition was the force that has pushed us on in the wonderful progress of our nation. If that is so, competition should be good for health services. The present law tends to create a monopoly and we are trying to bring this before the people of the state of Michigan by our "go-to-jail" policy, in an effort to have all members of the legislative body at Lansing instructed to enact a just law. This, after other more pacific methods have failed.

A. E. MASON

NEW PALACE THEATRE

Friday, June 13th

Wm. Fox presents Shirley Mason in "LOVE LETTERS." A romance of youthful folly, into which the thread of mystery has been twined. Swift action with a surprise for a climax. Also a Lyman H. Howe's-Hodge-Podge reel. "A LYIN HUNT."

Saturday and Sunday, June 14 and 15

Paramount presents an intensely dramatic story with a happy ending in "THE CHEAT," which provides Pola Negri, world-famed star, with the finest and most satisfying role of her screen career. Jack Holt is the leading man, supported by Charles DeRoche. Not a vamp picture—not a tragedy—just a great big picture of sensational surprises, with Pola Negri in a brand new-kind of role the biggest surprise of all.

ADDED ATTRACTION

"FAST STEPPERS," the sensational screen version of the thrilling race track stories of Gerald Beaumont as published in the Red Book magazine, featuring Billy Sullivan, famous as the star in the Leather Pushers series. A smashing high speed romance from the Tia Juana race track.

Tuesday and Wednesday, June 17 and 18

A Warner Brothers classic, "BRASS." Monte Blue and Marie Prevost in a great picture of marriage and divorce, from the famous novel by Charles C. Nord. Read and talked about by millions of people. The wedding ring—a golden gateway to happiness—or a tarnished portal to despair?? In the great and uncertain venture known as marriage, men and women are like eager, inexperienced prospectors—who blindly rush at their elaim, hoping that luck will be with them. A great screen drama, "BRASS." A picture showing that all is not gold that glitters.

Also a two reel Gang comedy, "BACK STAGE."

BREWER FAILS TO SAVE SELF

UNEXPECTED DESCENT ON BREWERY FINDS FORBIDDEN LIQUOR THERE.

Co-operation between State Police and Federal prohibition officers resulted in the successful raiding of the National Products Company, brewery in Detroit and the arrest of the president of the company, Hans W. Havemann, and five employees.

State officers had been watching this and other breweries for some time and tracing deliveries of real beer. The making of real beer is a brewery is not a crime since it is usual to make beer and then remove the alcohol from it in order to make near-beer. The offense comes in selling real beer or shipping it.

When they were sure of their ground the state troopers trailed a truck containing a load of half barrels full of real beer. This they seized and on making sure of the contents, telephoned the federal prohibition officers. The latter have the right to enter a brewery at any time while the State Police must first secure a search warrant.

When the federal squad reached the brewery, they claim that Havemann and his men were engaged in pouring out beer by removing the bugs from barrels. This was stopped and sufficient evidence was secured to allow of taking out warrants for the men.

In a number of other instances the State Police have secured evidence which led to the closing up of breweries.

Demand for real beer is so extreme in the larger cities that there is a temptation for brewers to take a chance on selling it. Constant vigilance by the prohibition officers has been found to be the only remedy.

An outsider can't understand why one who works in a bank shouldn't have all the money he wants.

YOUNG FARMER
PLEADS GUILTY

STATE DETECTIVE UNCOVERS CONCLUSIVE PROOF OF MURDER OF WIFE

When Ralph Lindsley, a young farmer of St. Joseph county, pleaded guilty in circuit court to the murder of his wife, he admitted the facts which had been disclosed by unusual detective work.

One morning Lindsley drove into Sturgis and reported to the chief of police that Mrs. Lindsley had committed suicide by shooting herself.

The coroner and other officials found the woman's body lying in a pool of blood, with a bullet wound in the forehead, and a revolver lying close by.

H. Erlekson of the state Bureau of Identification was sent for and took a complete set of photographs, also taking the finger-prints found upon the revolver barrel. Lieutenant John S. Palmer, in charge of the criminal investigation bureau of the Department of Public Safety then took the case.

Tests were made with the revolver which showed that the woman could not have shot herself, inasmuch as powder burns were lacking which would have occurred if she had held the gun.

In seeking a clue to the motive for the killing, Lieutenant Palmer learned that Lindsley had been attentive to a young married woman of the neighborhood. Search was made and the fragments of a 16-page letter, which had been read and torn up and the pieces thrown away, were gathered.

It took a day and a night to put the letter together and then the motive was plain.

Lindsley had planned to get rid of his wife and also of the other woman's husband, it appeared.

Finger prints of the revolver and measurements showing the direction of the bullet and approximate fixing of the height from which it was fired were other details entering into the case.

Finally, the burden of evidence being too strong to be overcome, Lindsley came into court and pleaded guilty. He is now serving his sentence in Jackson prison.

MICHIGAN HAS NAVY ON DETROIT RIVER

Commissioner Harry H. Jackson of the Department of Public Safety might now add the title of "admiral" to his name. He is in command of a fleet of four armed speed boats which are now plying the border waters between Ontario and Michigan.

Their mission is to do away with the smuggling, principally of liquor, which has been such a heavy traffic in the narrow waters.

Inasmuch as Ecorse, in Wayne county, has been the receiving point for a very large share of the liquor slipped across the border, it will receive particular attention from the fleet both by day and by night.

Several smuggling vessels were picked up in the first week of operations of the fleet.

KNOCK A WHOLE ROW OF MAIL BOXES DOWN

A dozen rural mail boxes at the roadside near Memphis, Macomb County, were found knocked down one morning. Sergeant Frank Walker of the St. Clair detachment of the State Police found an automobile hub cap nearby. He searched the car and found a bent radiator and missing cap. Orville Kinsey was the owner and he pleaded guilty to destroying property and paid a fine of $50.

It's what Oakland gives for $995 that counts

Bear these facts in mind in choosing a car:

Be sure that the engine in the car you choose incorporates the very latest design and construction.

Be sure you get the latest braking system. Four-wheel brakes are safer. Don't buy a car without them.

Ordinary body finishes are perishable and easily marred. Get the facts about Oakland's new finish.

Observe whether driving controls are convenient. Compare other cars with Oakland in this respect.

The tendency is toward a more substantial top for open cars. Examine cars with this point in mind.

Although disc steel wheels are superior, most builders in this class make you pay extra for them.

Note the body design and workmanship of cars in this class. Are bodies attractive and substantial?

Here are the advantages Oakland offers:

1. Oakland's engine is the last word in advanced design. Automotive engineers praise its construction.

2. The Oakland Six has four-wheel brakes at no added cost. They are sound in principle and practice.

3. Oakland alone, in its class, has a special new finish which will not check nor lose its lustre.

4. Oakland's controls—all of them except gear shift—are on the steering wheel; an exclusive feature.

5. Everyone likes Oakland's permanent top. Curtains fit better and glass enclosures can be added.

6. All True Blue Oaklands have disc steel wheels at no extra cost. They are better looking and safer.

7. Oakland's seven distinctive bodies are Fisher-built. Everyone comments on their smart appearance.

The True Blue Oakland is built and priced to be the leading value in its field.

ROAD BUILDING

Transcontinental Motor Route of Great Benefit

When the Moffat tunnel, soon to be drilled through the continental divide in Colorado at a cost of $1,000,000 a mile, is in operation in 1925, a transcontinental motor route through that state will be opened 12 months of the year instead of only five months in which the highway is now accessible. Hundreds of miles of road through desert sands encountered on the south route to California will be eliminated.

Until recently a transcontinental motor trip was a hazardous adventure, proving expensive and tiresome. But improvement of road conditions on established routes has made the journey less laborious. Much of the emergency gear formerly required on a transcontinental tour and extra gasoline supply is now unnecessary.

Although the Moffat tunnel, the fifth largest transportation tunnel in the world and longest in America, will cut the rail distance between Denver and Salt Lake City 173 miles and open a new route from Chicago to the Pacific 70 miles shorter than any existing line, it is estimated by highway experts that the benefits to be derived from the tunnel as an automobile highway will exceed the entire cost of its construction.

By the expenditure of $6,720,000 to drill 6.04 miles through solid granite, the Colorado tunnel commission will lower the tracks of the temporary line of the Moffat road (Denver & Salt Lake) over the Continental Divide about 2,500 feet and open an uninterrupted winter route for automobiles through the tunnel at an elevation of 9,100 feet instead of a few months' accessible road through Berthoud pass at an elevation of 11,330 feet.

The Moffat tunnel will provide cars especially built for the transportation of automobiles and all trains will be drawn by electric locomotives, eliminating smoke and gases that would result if engines operated under their own power. The tunnel will be used in connection with the proposed Victory highway, running from Wilmington, Del., to San Francisco. It is proposed by the Victory Highway association to make this the world's greatest highway.

Passing through Washington, D. C., the highway will continue through Wheeling, Indianapolis, St. Louis, Kansas City and Denver, where it is provided to continue west through Berthoud pass, Steamboat Springs, Salt Lake City and Reno to San Francisco.

Completion of the Moffat tunnel is eagerly awaited by those fostering the Victory highway, as it is the only link in the proposed route that might block the plans for the greatest highway in the world. The tunnel should be completed in three and one-half years with present improved engineering appliances.

Valuable Road Material Is Discovered in Texas

A new and valuable discovery of road materials for Maverick county, Texas, has been made by the county engineer, county officials announce. Recently the engineer was conducting an investigation of materials with which to construct a hard-surfaced highway in the county. The result was the discovery of a bed of petrified oysters covering several acres of land.

The material is proving superior to any yet found in this section, the engineer reports. After being placed in position and rolled, the shells cement into a hard, smooth layer, it is stated.

The bed is attracting attention in that it was discovered at a point approximately 1,000 feet above sea level. Crappings of oyster shells have been found in other parts of the county also. Authorities declare this is proof that this section was at one time a part of the sea and that the land was, probably, thrown up in some prehistoric period.

Motor Vehicles Must Be Adapted to Old Roads

Sweden, considering the motorizing of its highway traffic, declares that the general establishment of regular automobile passenger and truck service cannot wait for the construction of new roads and the rebuilding of old ones, but that the motor vehicles must be adapted to the roads.

The roads are to be divided into four classes, according to the weights which they are able to sustain. Trailers, rather than additional motor trucks, are to be used wherever the traffic is recommended for winter use in northern Sweden. This car is to have eight runners instead of front wheels, and will be equipped with special drive wheels and gear.

For the financing of this new service yearly subsidies have been proposed, as well as a government loan fund.

Early Road Construction. Cobblestones were used for paving in Boston and New York as early as 1650. The first brick pavement on a roadway in the United States was laid in Charleston, W. Va., in 1870. In the same year the first asphalt pavement in the United States was laid in Newark, N. J.

Billions for Roads. It is estimated that within the next 15 years the aggregate cost of the federal aid program will be about $3,000,000,000.

LOEB FARMS CATTLE AGAIN IN LIMELIGHT

Charlevoix Ormsby Queen Scores A Record or Two

Two noteworthy production records were made recently in the herd of the Loeb Farms, at Charlevoix, Michigan, by their purebred Holstein cow, Charlevoix Ormsby Queen, according to an official announcement made by the advanced registry office of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

At the age of two years and two months this cow produced 528.8 lbs. milk containing 16,100 lbs. butterfat equal to 20.12 lbs. butter in seven days and in thirty days she produced 2,097.4 lbs. milk containing 62,572 lbs. butterfat equal to 78.21 lbs. butter.

There are two general methods of obtaining production records—official test records and cow testing association records. The official test records deal with the purebred animal. The cow testing association records deal mainly with the grade animals, but in many instances purebred animals are included. Nothing has been more beneficial to the breeder of purebred dairy cattle than official records. Each year sees keener interest in the work. Dairy farmers are realizing more and more that official records add to the value of the animals for both sale and breeding purposes.

Annual Meeting Date. The annual meeting of the Charlevoix County Odd Fellows Mutual Benefit Association will be held at the I. O. O. F. hall in Boyne City, Michigan, on Saturday, June 21, at 8:00 p. m. standard time. Edward J. Davis, Secretary.—Adv. 24-12.

HER LIFE PASSED WHILE SHE SLEPT

Sudden Death of Miss Harrington a Shock to Family and Friends

Friends and neighbors of the family of Thomas Harrington of 219 Antrim street were surprised and shocked to learn of the death of their daughter, Pearl, which occurred at about six o'clock last Sunday evening.

The girl, who was about nineteen years of age, had been ailing slightly for about a month past. Saturday evening, up to that hour apparently in no worse condition than for some time previous, she complained of feeling badly, was unable to eat her supper and went to bed, sinking into a sleep from which she never awakened.

Three doctors, including Dr. Reynolds of Petoskey, were called into consultation in an attempt to save Miss Harrington's life, but were unable to definitely diagnose the case.

The funeral services were held from the Harrington home on Tuesday, June 10th, at 2:00 p. m., with interment at Brookside.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS.

F. S. Harmon and wife of Northville, Mich., arrived in the city Wednesday to visit at the home of H. D. Dean, superintendent of the local hatchery.

The date of the Legion dance at the Belvedere casino has been postponed until Thursday evening, July 3rd, at which time Mrs. Sears, manager of the Belvedere, has kindly offered the services of the famous Winger orchestra, the "Pennsylvania" for that occasion.

The superintendent of the local government hatchery, H. D. Dean, informs us that an aquarium will be established on or about the 20th of this month in the west end of the hatchery building. Specimens of the numerous varieties of lake fish found in local waters will be on display in large tanks.

John McCann of this city has taken over the bakery formerly operated by his brother, the late Lawrence McCann, at 325 Bridge street and will move past of the fixtures and equipment of his present place of business on Park avenue to the Bridge street store next Sunday. The store part of the Park avenue establishment will then be closed.

Notice to Dog Owners. Much damage is being done to flower beds and shrubs by dogs running at large on the grounds of the Belvedere Club. If owners do not have sufficient interest in their dogs to keep them at home, measures must be taken to stop this nuisance. Adv. 18-1f W. H. MILLER, Warden.

Presenting to you the The New Home of "Personalized" Banking Service

To the good people of Charlevoix and Charlevoix County, whose patronage and loyal support have made these forty years of constructive history possible, the Officers and Stockholders of the Charlevoix County Bank now dedicate their new building with grateful appreciation.

We hope and intend that its completion and occupancy on June 27th shall usher in a new era of banking service for Charlevoix.

But,—when we contemplate only the finished building and its physical equipment, we are forced to acknowledge the limited significance which these symbols of utility proclaim, in themselves.

For—we know that the warmth and imagination of "personalized" banking service can never be expressed in stone—or steel—or words. But it can be expressed in the undiminished courtesy and enthusiasm of service—promptly and generously rendered. Such has been and will continue to be our policy.

Don't forget June 27th and 28th. On those days you are cordially invited to join us in celebrating our Fortieth Birthday Anniversary and in dedicating our new home. Come—and bring the family—there will be—

FLAG DAY OBSERVED OVER ALL THE LAND

Michigan's Governor Makes Appeal For Its Observance

The next day of national observance on the calendar is Flag Day, Saturday, June 14th, and the governor of the state of Michigan has issued the following proclamation with regard thereto:

"Another milestone in its progress through the ages has been reached by Old Glory—for soon we are to observe another Flag Day. As time sweeps by and as one generation is quickly followed by another, we realize that our nation has advanced to the most commanding place ever occupied by any country in all the world history. Just as long as we hold to Justice as our ideal, this exalted position will remain America's. And as our flag is the emblem of our nation and our ideal, it is proper and most fitting that a day should be set aside so that we may place unusual emphasis upon the symbol of our ideal.

By virtue of the authority vested in me as Governor of the State of Michigan, I hereby proclaim Saturday, June 14, 1924, as Flag Day, and urge that the flag not only be displayed wherever possible but that communities, schools and other organizations conduct appropriate exercises. It would be good Americanism, too, if each motion picture theater on Flag Day would flash on the screen a picture of our Nation's emblem.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the state this fourth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty-four, and the Commonwealth the eighty-eighth.

Alex J. Groesbeck, Governor."

MORE LIGHT ON M-11 MYSTERY

INVESTIGATION REVEALS THE SEAT OF TROUBLE

The Nigger-in-the-Woodpile Wears A Blue Coat, But Who is the "Man Behind"?

The article that appeared in a recent issue of the Courier, headed "A Little Spite Work Going On" has, it seems, struck a tender spot. Copies of this article were mailed by the association of commerce to various boards of commerce along the line of M-11 and, among other communications, the Courier is in receipt of the following letter from Lee H. Bierce, secretary of the Grand Rapids Association of Commerce:

Mr. A. J. Usher,
Care Charlevoix Courier,
Charlevoix, Michigan.

Dear Sir:—We received in the mails a few days ago a copy of the Charlevoix Courier, issue of June 4th containing a marked article relative to the diversion of automobile traffic from M-11 to M-13.

The writer is at loss to know just why you sent this paper to us and is wondering if anybody in Grand Rapids or this section of the state is doing this. The Grand Rapids Association of Commerce is not, because we do not route tourists and the writer is a member of the Board of Directors of the Grand Rapids Motor Club, and if that organization is doing it, I would appreciate it if you would so inform me. Would also like to know whether or not you think this diversion of traffic can be traced to the Michigan Tourists and Resort Association.

Thanking you very kindly, the writer remains

Very truly yours,
Lee H. Bierce, Secretary.

The pith of this communication lies in its last paragraph. It shows that Mr. Bierce has his own suspicions as to who has been the prime mover behind any attempt to divert traffic from M-11 to M-13. That these suspicions are warranted may be gathered from a report made to the advertising committee of the Charlevoix Association of Commerce, at a special session held Monday night at the council rooms, by one of our citizens who is exceptionally well qualified to be an investigator of a matter of this kind. The name of this gentleman is withheld for obvious reasons.

This man had recently completed a tour of the two routes between Charlevoix and the south and had previously reported that M-11 from here to Munstee and Ludington is practically in perfect condition. The six miles of work now under way between Ludington and Scottville, he states, does not affect travel through Ludington in the least and the gravel road into that city is perfect. When the work now in progress is completed in that section, there will be two perfect roads where before but one existed.

At Pentwater, the authorities have agreed to keep M-11 south of their city open until after September 8th, as the detour that would be necessitated by the closing of this portion of the trunk line would be a very difficult one. The four miles of concrete construction north of Pentwater is purely a relocation job and will not affect traffic over M-11 in any way. The work cannot even be seen from the state highway. After the 8th of September, there will be only approximately forty days of detour between Pentwater and Hart, and this will be after the height of the resort season has passed. There is practically no detour at the present time on M-11, south of Sprick's corner, that is worth mentioning. From Hart into Grand Rapids is a perfect road.

While on this trip, our investigator visited Grand Rapids and, attired as a tourist in rusty khaki and high boots, went to the information booth operated by members of the Grand Rapids police force at the corner of Monroe and Ionia avenues, opposite the Hotel Pentland and next to the old Grand Rapids National Bank. Here he requested of the bluecoat in charge directions as to the best route to follow to reach Charlevoix and the north, feigning complete ignorance of traffic conditions and routes in this territory. He was promptly directed over M-13. He then asked the policeman where he could cut across on to M-11 and was told that it would not be a wise course and that the best route was M-13 right straight through. Our investigator then called the officer's attention to the fact that M-13 does not run through to Charlevoix and was told that it was only a short distance from M-13 to Charlevoix. As a matter of fact it is twenty-four miles from Boyne Falls to this city, and that is the closest that M-13 approaches us over its entire length.

Failing to get any more satisfactory information at this booth, our informant went over to the Pauline information bureau, which is operated by the Grand Rapids Automobile Club, and was there informed by the young lady in charge, who seemed to be a most competent person, thoroughly on to her job and willing to cheerfully assist in the matter of planning his trip, that there were several routes that he could follow.

If he wanted a scenic route and did not object to travelling about thirty miles farther, he could cross over to Muskegon and go up M-11. There had been a detour at Ludington, she understood, but this was now eliminated and the road in good shape. Of the detour between Sprick's

JEP'S A SHARK ON THE FIDDLE

OLD PROTEGE OF HENRY FORD
WIELDS A MEAN BOW

Delights Crowd of 400 Guests At Fisherman's Paradise With the Old Tunes

Jep Bisbee, the old-fashioned fiddler that so tickled Henry Ford that he presented him with a brand new Ford sedan, entertained to a high degree the 400 guests at Fisherman's Paradise last Sunday. Jep, with his wife and orchestra, is an "old timer" in the true sense of the words. He says he's 82 and we believe him. Father Time, however, hasn't stiffened his "bow" arm and he still whittles off a mean tune on the fiddle. Henry Ford, of whom Jep is the cherished protege, thinks Jep is about the best fiddler that ever shoved a bow. We agree that the old boy is accomplished.

When it came time for the appearance of the aged fiddler the big crowd of diners saw old Jep step on the platform as nonchalantly as if he were about to feed the cows. He steps over to the piano, whinnies off on a few strings to get his battle worn instrument in tune and, fiddle in hand, said to the big crowd, "Say y'know by jiners I always did like this old tune we used to whistle at in them old days. The old timers all ask for it. Y'know one of them tourists come up to me and sez, 'say you've been around these parts for a long while, aint-cha?' 'Y'betcha,' says I, 'Y'see that hill over there?' 'Yes,' says he. 'Well,' says I, 'that was here when I come.' Well this is one of the pieces we played in them days." And old Jep "hailed off" and blazed away at a tune that would make the most rheumatic feet jump.

People from all parts of the north state visited Fisherman's Paradise Sunday to hear Jep and the other entertainers and to partake of the fish and chicken dinner. Among them was a goodly representation from our fair city. Upon the register we found Mr. and Mrs. James Gaskin, Kay Gaskin, Mrs. Fred Cartier, W. Claire Cartier, Mr. and Mrs. Harry McHugh, Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Powers, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Widdfield and friends, Mrs. E. A. Rueggger and Edith Lamoreux, of Boyne City, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Adams, Miss Franklin and Dr. Dilly of the Chicago Club, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Levinson, Dr. and Mrs. F. M. Wilkinson.

WILD REOSKINS STIR THINGS UP

SUNDAY MORNING MARKED BY THRILLING EVENTS

Petoskey Indians' Story Causes Arrest of Burgess Liquor "Dealer" With the Evidence

Mrs. Leon Atchison of this city was awakened at about two o'clock last Sunday morning by an unfamiliar noise. She aroused her husband and descended to the dining room and found there, comfortably ensconced in a rocking chair, a big Indian, in a state of very evident intoxication. Mr. Atchison bounced the intruder with out further ceremony.

A few hours later (about five o'clock to be exact), Mrs. Pat Holland, alone in her home on Antrim street, was visited by the same gentleman who still seemed very much the worse for wear. Mrs. Holland went to the phone and called the sheriff, who appeared on the scene and took the unbidden and unwelcome guest away with him.

In the meantime, in another quarter of the town, more excitement was brewing. Art Staley and Rollett Ross had planned a fishing trip for Sunday morning and at about 4:00 a. m., drove down to the foot of Clinton street and left their truck while they went around the lake bank after their boat. When they returned, the truck was gone, and Mr. Ross, happening to look up Clinton street, saw his vehicle standing in the middle of the road, about two blocks up. He hurried to the spot and found an Indian sitting in the seat, trying desperately to start the motor, which had stalled. Upon being asked what he was doing there, the Indian replied that that truck belonged to his brother, Bill Bank, who had sent him for it. In the meantime, he kept on trying to start the machine. Mr. Ross said he would take him and the truck to his brother and climbing into the seat, pushed the Indian to one side and ran the truck back to the foot of Clinton street where Staley awaited him. When he stopped, he tried to get the Indian out of the car, the latter showed fight and bid fair to overpower his two husky opponents, using his teeth with dire effect in the struggle. A call for help brought the fireman from the nearby laundry to their assistance and between the three of them they managed to bind the wild redskin hand and foot with a stout rope. When the sheriff reached the scene, he was tied up like a trussed steer and couldn't have moved a muscle if his life depended on it.

When the early morning visitant at the Atchison and Holland homes was brought to the jail later on, it was found that the two Indians were pals. They had left Petoskey the night before at midnight in a hired taxi and further questioning revealed the fact that they had stopped at the corner store of Bernie Newson at Burgess and procured the hooch which so evidently had permeated their systems.

Acting on this information, the sheriff, assisted by Charles Marshall and Clair Webster, deputies, raided the Newson store at a few minutes after noon on Sunday and gathered in Mr. Newson and a large quantity of bottled wine, some 25 gallons of whiskey in the keg, half a quart of gin and two or three cases of empty bottles. Newson is now out on bail awaiting trial.

OUTLOOK GOOD FOR THIS YEAR

HOTEL KEEPERS PREDICT BIG RESORT SEASON

Many Improvements Have Taken Place in City's Leading Hotel—Since Last Summer

A visit to each of the city's various hotels this week reveals a very gratifying belief that the season of 1924 is to be a good one, judged from a resort standpoint and that means a good one for all of us.

The Beach Hotel opened last Sunday with exceptionally good hookings for this time of year and prospects of an excellent season ahead. Several improvements and new features have been arranged for this season, among them a first class dance orchestra and a new tea-room and rustic summer house on the north side of the hotel, with steps leading down to the beach.

The Inn is being completely redecorated this week in preparation for the opening on June 29th. The new dock with its attractive rustic summer house at its end is now practically completed and the railroad track along the parkside between the tracks and the lake is to be lined with a picket fence as a safety first precaution.

Saturday, June 14th, is the official opening day for the Chicago Club. Four families are now located in their cottages on the grounds and the majority of the regular members of the colony are expected to arrive on July 1st. A portion of the main building is undergoing redecoration this week and a new piano has been purchased for the casino. Prospects are excellent for a prosperous season.

The Hallett Inn opened the first of June and held its opening dance on Tuesday, June 6th, which was well attended, fifteen couples being present. Last Sunday there were fifteen rooms occupied and there are now twenty guests. This season's business so far, we are told, is an improvement over what it has been for the past three years and prospects are bright for an excellent season at this hotel. The rooms have been extensively redecorated and the wide fan-shaped expanse of lawn in front of the hotel will be equipped with sun-shade chairs and croquet sets. The garden at the rear of the hotel building will be filled with beautiful flowers this summer. "The Vagabonds," a six-piece orchestra from Evansville, Ind., has been engaged for the two months commencing July 1st and will play at the luncheon and dinner hour. A dance will be held in the lobby of the hotel every Friday night, to which the public will be admitted.

The Hallett House reports the same number of guests on the register on June 1st of this year as on that date a year ago. The dining room has been entirely redecorated; the former round posts supporting the ceiling having been boxed in. These cases and the lower part of the walls are paneled and attractively finished in two shades of cream, white and buff and the addition of handsome new light fixtures has wrought a pleasing transformation in the cheerful room. Reservations are about the same as last year and quite a few people are expected to arrive on July 1st. Mr. Hallett believes that, if the weather warms up, his 26th year as proprietor of the Hallett House will be a banner one.

While the Belvedere is not as yet formally open for business, guests are being received and meals served. A grand opening dinner concert is scheduled for July 4th and it is hoped that a number of local people, as well as the regular guests of the hotel who may be here at that time will be present to enter into the spirit of the affair which comes on a national holiday. Wingar's famous "Pennsylvanians" are to be at the Belvedere again this summer and will furnish the music for the dinner concert. Bookings are exceptionally good and prospects for a successful season excellent. Plans for utilizing the remarkably beautiful grounds surrounding this fine hotel for outdoor features, such as open-air teas and similar functions are contemplated by the management for this summer.

The Hotel Charlevoix is enjoying its usual brisk transient business and although the management, for whom this is the first summer in Charlevoix, have no means of comparing or gauging last year's business with the season now commencing, they predict plenty of summer patronage.

The Fountain City House is being trimmed up with a little paint this

PIONEER WOOD MAN DEAD

JOHN BAKER PASSES AT AGE OF EIGHTY-NINE

Canadian by Birth, He Settled In
This Region in 1876 and Helped Develop It

John Baker, a pioneer resident of the Norwood district, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Joseph Clarke on route four, last Thursday morning, June 12th, at five o'clock, following a week's illness. He was eighty-nine years of age, his death resulting from the gradual, natural decline of his bodily functions.

Mr. Baker was born in Peterboro, Canada, April 14, 1835 and moved to Grand Rapids in 1872, coming to this region four years later. He settled with his wife on a farm in Norwood and contributed largely by his efforts to the development of that locality. He was an earnest member of the Barnard M. E. church and took an active interest in all community affairs.

Mr. Baker's second wife died about a year ago. He is survived by three children, John S. Baker of this city, and Mrs. Joseph Clarke and Mrs. Jennie Chase of Norwood. There are six grandchildren and 18 great-grandchildren.

The funeral was held last Saturday at 10:00 a. m. from the home of the deceased's daughter, Mrs. Joseph Clarke, with whom he had been staying for the past four years. Interment was at Brookside, Rev. Stanley Lawrence of Ellsworth, officiating.

HALLETT'S INN TO HAVE ORCHESTRA

Engage the "Vagabonds" to Play
During Summer Season

The "Vagabonds," a first rate orchestra from Evansville, Ind., will play for Hallett's Inn this season. The orchestra will arrive July 1, and in addition to playing for Hallett's Inn, will have time for other engagements on several nights during the week.

The management of Hallett's Inn considers itself fortunate in getting the services of the orchestra, which has been in the field for three years and rapidly is becoming known as one of the most popular orchestras of the south.

The orchestra is best known in Indiana, Kentucky and Illinois. The members of the six-piece band are artists on their various instruments.

Instrumentation is as follows: Arnold Habbe, banjo and piano; Walter Jarvis, cornet; Tom Jarvis, trombone; William Martin, (business manager), saxophone; Russell Day, (manager), drums and violin; Chas. Holtsclaw, piano and trombone.

The fact that the orchestra is kept constantly busy in the city from which it comes, signifies its great popularity. It was only after considerable correspondence that Mr. Hallett succeeded in getting them.

E. V. Smith, piano tuner, will be in Charlevoix after June 25th. Orders left at the Holley Gift Shop, W. C. Bellinger's or the Bartlett House will receive my special, prompt and careful attention.—Adv. 25-11.

REGISTRATION IS NOT REQUIRED

AMENDMENT OF LAW CAUSES CONFUSION

Can Be Had in Cities or Townships of Population Less than 10,000
Only by Resolution

Two weeks ago the Courier republished from another paper a statement that a registration of voters is required this year. This is incorrect. The mistake on the part of the original publisher of the notice doubtless arose from the fact that the registration law has been several times amended, twice in fact in 1921, and from the fact that in cities or townships of 10,000 population there must be a re-registration every four years. This is doubtless due to the fact that the registration in some of these cities would become so complicated when there is a rapid growth or great change of population that it might be impossible to easily determine the eligibility of a voter.

A careful reading of the following opinion prepared at the request of the Courier by Prosecutor A. L. Fitch will clear up the whole difficulty.

The following sections cover the law of re-registration of electors as now amended:

Section 1—In every year in which presidential electors are to be chosen, there shall be a re-registration of the qualified electors of each township and city of this state having a population of ten thousand or more, as shown by the last preceding federal census.

Section 2—In any township or city having a population of less than ten thousand, as shown by the last preceding federal census, the township board or legislative body may, in its discretion, by resolution passed not later than the fifteenth day of February of any year in which presidential electors are to be chosen, by a majority vote of the members-elect of such township board or legislative body, declare that it is desirable to have a re-registration of the qualified electors of such township or city; then, in such case, there shall be in said year a re-registration of the qualified electors of such township or city.

As amended, 1921 (First Ex. Sess.), Act No. 14, September 19. This section was also amended by Act No. 413, of 1919, August 14, and Act No. 184 of 1921, August 18. The amendment of 1919 was held unconstitutional in Bishop vs. Lindsay, 211 Mich. 79.

Section 3—A re-registration of qualified electors, in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, shall be had in the months of June, July and August, and shall be completed on the third Saturday before the next general primary election. All the provisions of this act relative to the registration of qualified electors shall apply with like force and effect to any such re-registration.

As amended, 1921, Act No. 184, August 18. This section was also amended by Act No. 413 of 1919, August 14, which was held invalid in Bishop vs. Lindsay, 211 Mich. 79.

Section 4—Whenever a re-registration is to be had in any township or city, the clerk thereof shall provide, at the expense of the township or city, as the case may be, a new registration book for each election precinct in such township or city. Such registration book shall be open for registration on the first secular day of June and such re-registration shall be completed on the third Saturday before the next general primary election. When such re-registration shall be completed, the former registration books, in such township or city shall thenceforth be that they were in danger or engaged in some unladylike escapade.

A motorist at Saginaw swerved his car into a ditch and narrowly escaped injury when he saw a stuffed dummy, resembling a man, ahead of him in the road. And what would he have thought of this rash dodging if it had proved to be a man after all?

A woman at Holland was fined for "falsely and maliciously slandering" a sheriff. She must have had her nerve, considering the fact that one doesn't even dare tell the truth about many of the sheriffs.

Nearly everybody else may judge you by the style of your car, but your banker doesn't.

WASHINGTON LETTER

The President's mail is being fairly swamped with letters commending him for signing the tax bill. Most writers express the utmost regret that partisanship and demagoguery in congress prevented the passage of a really good bill, incorporating the Mellon plan; but all declare their gratitude over the 25 per cent reduction in their income tax and evidently feel that Mr. Coolidge would have been unwise to veto this bill even though it was far from true tax reform. The greatest dissatisfaction comes from the failure of congress to reduce the surtaxes below 40 per cent. Why they should have been reduced at all, unless they were so far reduced as to bring capital, now tied up in tax-exempt bonds, into the industries none can explain. New light has just been thrown on the extent to which the very rich are now escaping these taxes by the report of federal trade commission, made pursuant to a resolution of Senator Norris. The commission finds that $100,000,000 was lost in taxes last year because the high surtaxes had resulted in $32,000,000, 000 being invested in tax exempt securities; that of this amount four and one-half billions was owned by the very rich who, under the Mellon plan, would have paid 25 per cent surtax, and that twelve billions was owned by corporations.

Senator Walsh has made the majority report of the oil investigation. The report is far less sensational than the reports fed out to the daily press indicated. No one is charged by the report with actual crime and Mr. Walsh makes evident his realization that the very leases he has been denouncing are legal by asking congress to amend the existing law to provide (1) that hereafter leases of naval oil lands may be made only on a competitive basis (2) that the authority to exchange oil be limited to an exchange for some other type of oil—not for tanks—(3) that all leases be approved by the Comptroller General, and (4) that leases shall be made only where there is danger of drainage into private wells. Demonstrating the danger of such drainage, Mr. Walsh says Secretary Daniels refused almost "to the point of obduracy" to lease navy lands to prevent such drainage and that it is estimated by the bureau of mines that before Daniels did consent to lease navy oil lands there was a loss by drainage to private parties of 6,800,000 barrels of oil. In a word, the leases made by the Harding administration, like those made by the Wilson administration, were perfectly legal, although Senator Walsh questions the advisability of the latter.

The decision of a United States district court that the Wheeler investigation of former Attorney General Daugherty was illegal, while no surprise to those who have studied the constitution, seemed greatly to surprise Mr. Wheeler and his colleagues. Following that decision, Mr. Daugherty advised the Wheeler committee that he would not appear before it as he could see no occasion of coming before a manifestly unjust committee whose operations had been declared illegal by the court. The court pointed out that inasmuch as, under the constitution, the senate must act as judge if a cabinet officer is tried for impeachment, neither the senate nor any of its committees can disqualify itself for acting as judge by first acting as investigator and prosecutor. The senate has voted to appeal court and the case doubtless will be carried to the supreme court.

The most careful estimates of the politicians disclose that, running independent as he is determined to do, Senator La Follette cannot hope to carry over six states, viz., Wisconsin, Minnesota, the two Dakotas, Montana and Nebraska. These states have 47 electoral votes but Montana, with 4, is normally Democratic, so that the net result of La Follette's candidacy would be to take 43 votes away from Coolidge. In a very close contest this might throw the election to the Democrats, or into the House. In the House the vote is so close it probably would be denuded, with the result that the senate would be compelled to elect one of the vice-presidential candidates. Mr. Coolidge's supporters are convinced, however, that even the most progressive Republicans will refuse to throw their votes away by voting for La Follette, regardless of what they might do if he had the slightest chance of election.

A frank—if disgraceful—promise of patronage to all who support McAdoo has been unearthed by the New York World, which prints a facsimile of the letters sent out by Hamilton D. de Weese, Ohio manager for the Crown Prince. De Weese explains the letter by saying it meant that if McAdoo is successful "there would be no repudiation of patronage claims, as there was in 1912."

corners and Charlevoix, which is the point on which the mysterious M-11 "knockers" have been hanging their case, she had apparently never heard, although our informant tried several times to "draw her out" on this point. (He had previously tried this stunt with a different purpose on the policeman at the other booth, trying to get him to at least mention M-11 in his routing directions, but never a peep did he get out of him. On M-11 the bluecoated gentleman was absolutely mum.) The obliging attendant at the Automobile Club's booth then went on to say that if time was a pressing factor with our traveller, regardless of the interest of the trip, he could go by the way of M-13 to Fife Lake, across to Traverse City and from there on over M-11 (as a matter of fact, if you go to Fife Lake you are five miles beyond where you turn off the macadam to Charlevoix). She said there had been quite a petition and demand from communities along the line of M-13 to bring Charlevoix traffic up M-13 and across at Elmira to Charlevoix, but she did not think the road was good over that route and had not directed traffic that way.

As a result of his experiences and observations, our informant is of the opinion that two things are chiefly militating against us in the routing of traffic through this region; one being that M-11 is not identified as it should be in Grand Rapids and the other that some influence is being brought to bear to direct traffic up M-13 as a short route.

The situation is a serious one for us and the other resort communities along the line of M-11. Although tourist traffic heading this way is reported from the lower part of the state as being exceptionally heavy for this time of year, we see nothing of it here. Obviously, these people are coming north, but not by the way of M-11. Most of the communities along the route of this trunk line highway have subscribed generously to resort publicity for the 1924 season—that is, generously, considering the results obtained from such expenditures in previous years. All have contributed something. If the lake shore towns are being double-crossed, they will no doubt be interested in finding out who is responsible.

AT THE MOVIES

"Rags to Riches" With Wes Barry
All who revel in Wesley Barry, the thirteen-year-old boy actor, will have a chance to see him in another picture. The latest one in which he is featured is "Rags to Riches," a Harry Rapf production for Warner Brothers, which will come to the Palace Theatre next Monday and Tuesday for a run of two days. "Rags to Riches" was adapted for the screen from the famous stage success of the same name.

Here Wesley is the same befreaked fun-loving, mischievous lad who delighted thousands in "School Days"; the same youngster who runs the gauntlet of glorious scraps and shuffles out of them with a coolness which has been the envy of every youngster and grown-up seeing him on the silver screen.

Cast in "Woman-Proof"
The cast for Thomas Meighan's new Paramount picture, "Woman-Proof," which comes to the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday, includes Lila Lee, John Sainpolis, Louise Dresser, Robert Agnew, Mary Astor, Edgar Norton, Charles A. Sellon, George O'Brien, Vera Reynolds, Hardee Kirkland, Martha Maddox and "Bill" Gonder. Many of the exterior scenes were made in Pasadena, Cal., and others along the New York waterfront.

George Ade wrote this story for Mr. Meighan and Tom Geraghty prepared the scenario. It was directed by Alfred E. Green. Mr. Meighan has the role of a young civil engineer who is too busy directing a big enterprise to think of marriage. His father's will stipulates that all of his four children must marry, and the complications of the plot revolve about the attempt of his brother and sisters to make him fall in love.

Harold Lloyd Is After Pictures With A Thought

"Pictures with a thought" is what Harold Lloyd is after now.

The spectacled comedian's success has been founded not alone on his ability to put over his parts, as it has been in keeping up with the trend of taste in motion pictures.

While everyone was making slapstick comedies, and the picking was good, Lloyd looked forward a couple of years and decided that the roughest brand of fun-making—the type in which the characters wear baggy pants and sling mud prodigiously—would not always have a great appeal. See him in "Dr. Jack," a five reel feature picture at the Palace Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday.

WOMAN CANDIDATE FOR CO. TREASURER

Mary A. Cooper, Present Deputy,
Will Be in Race

Mary A. Cooper, present deputy county treasurer, will be a candidate for the office of county treasurer at the September primary. Her formal announcement appears on another page of this issue.

When it comes to properly taking care of the duties connected with the office of treasurer, we cannot possibly see why a woman is not just as able to perform them as a man, and at the same time we can see no reason why a woman should not be elected to this office. We do not believe their social obligations would keep them from their office more than such obligations would of the opposite sex. So, in our estimation, sex does not enter into the controversy at all.

During the long illness of Treasurer H. C. Cooper, the duties of the office have fallen on the shoulders of his deputy, Mrs. Mary A. Cooper. We haven't heard any kicks, so presume she has proven herself equal to the job. There is no reason why she should be less efficient as treasurer than she has been as the treasurer's deputy.

Mrs. Cooper is the first woman to announce her candidacy for county office since the gentler sex has been allowed the privilege of the ballot. When the votes are counted primary day the result may be rather of a surprise to those who still think they should not have been given this privilege.

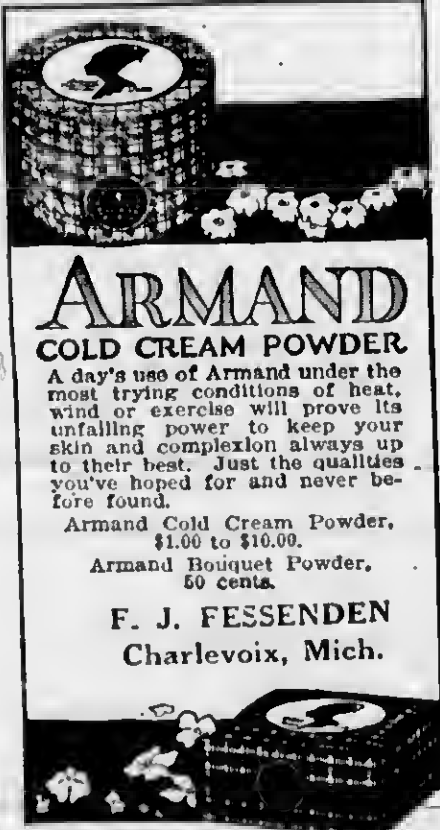

Notice to Dog Owners.

Much damage is being done to flower beds and shrubs by dogs running at large on the grounds of the Belvedere Club. If owners do not have sufficient interest in their dogs to keep them at home, measures must be taken to stop this nuisance. Adv. 18-1f W. H. MILLER, Warden.

Famous Entertainers

The famous De Moss family, who have given more entertainments, entertained more thousands of people and traveled more years and in more countries than any other musical family in the world, are coming to the M. E. church, Charlevoix, on Tuesday evening, June 24th. They have appeared in the largest churches, auditoriums and music halls in the great cities as well as the small ones, entertaining the thousands until their name has become a household word in many lands.

We can sell you a good used Ford Sedan, Coupe or Touring car, with starters, at a very low price. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 10tf.

Why the True Blue Oakland Endures

The reasons for the splendid performance and endurance of the True Blue Oakland Six are not hard to find.

When a car is built by a permanent organization such as Oakland; when it is backed by unlimited engineering and financial resources such as General Motors possesses; and when all concerned set out deliberately to build the finest light-six in its field—you would just naturally expect that car to be a success.

The soundness of Oakland's design and construction is admirably reflected in the way this True Blue car performs. See it. Ride in it. Drive it. Make it your basis for comparison in choosing your new car.

INTERESTING BITS OF INFORMATION CLIPPED FROM OUR EXCHANGES

Hotel men meeting at Petoskey this week will consider plans to make Michigan a winter resort. This summer might be a good time to begin.

A young fellow at Grand Rapids is charged with forging a friend's name to pay for a used automobile. It is a serious offense and, as punishment he may be sentenced to keep the car.

Two hundred private cars drove to a fire at Cadillac, blocking the street so that the firemen could not get through. City authorities must see to it that more open space is provided for these events.

A band of gypsies at Escanaba is said to have rented the piece of ground on which they camped so that the order to "move on" was powerless. The arrangements to secure other people's pockets to keep their hands in, however, were carried out as usual.

MISS P. DURANCE IS NOW MRS. LEACHMAN

Ceremony Took Place on Last Thursday Morning, June 12th

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Durance, 505 Petoskey avenue, at 10:30 o'clock last Thursday morning, June 12th, occurred the marriage of their daughter, Pearl Josephine to Charles Ray Leachman, of Brazil, Indiana, in the presence of twenty-one guests—relatives and friends of the family.

of pale pink crepe de chene and wore a wreath of orange blossoms in her hair. The bridal couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Jones of Frankfort, Mich., sister and brother-in-law of the bride; Jermaine Atchinson, cousin of the bride, acting as ring bearer. The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. Albert, of Petoskey, under a bower of apple blossoms blending beautifully with the pink and white decorations used throughout the rooms.

Mrs. Ned Durance, sister-in-law of the bride, sang "I Love You Truly," accompanied by Miss Fannie Powell, who also played the wedding march. Dinner was served at high noon to the bridal party and guests, after which the happy couple left for Grand Rapids for a brief honeymoon before going to South Haven, Mich., where they will be at home at 220 Erie street after June 16th.

Miss Durance is a Charlevoix girl, well-liked and respected and with many friends in this city and vicinity. Mr. Leachman will be remembered as the telegraph operator in the local office last fall.

The trouble with the average movie is that it is just that.

week. Mr. Bedford, though reluctant to make any definite prediction, believes that the season will be fair. The Colonial Club and the new Oldham are preparing for a big summer restaurant business. They both fill a peculiar need in the city's resort life and are likely to be very popular with our summer visitors.

The Bartlett House is again open for the 1924 season and all the "old timers" are expected on their regular dates and there will probably be the usual number of new faces around its hospitable board this summer.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The W. C. T. U. meeting, which was held in the Baptist church, Friday afternoon, in the interest of the flower mission work, was enjoyed by a large number of members and friends of the Union.

The story of Jennie Cassidy, who was the originator of flower mission work, was read by Mrs. John Burns and Mrs. F. N. Metcalf read that beautiful passage from Lowell's "Vision of Sir Launfal," commencing, "What is so rare as a day in June."

Susannah Metcalf and Georgia Kelderhouse recited poems about flowers and Mrs. Kaye Butters sang a pleasing solo.

Mrs. Lois Campbell and Mrs. Lelah Simmons gave readings entitled "Life's Little Things" and "Don't Forget the Shut Ins"

The committee served light refreshments and the flowers, which were generously provided, were sent to the sick and shut-ins at the close of the meeting.

Attention was called to the date of the annual school meeting. The July 4th program was left to the direction of the executive board. Mrs. E. E. Cross, Secretary.

SHOWER FOR MISS PEARLE DURANCE

Delightful Pre-Nuptial Event Took Place on the 5th

A pre-nuptial shower for one of our June brides, Miss Pearle Durance, was given by her friends at the home of Mrs. Frank Metcalf, on Park avenue, Thursday evening, June 5th.

The house was charming in a color scheme of yellow and white. Thirty-two of Miss Durance's friends were present and made merry while the bride-to-be opened the many packages containing beautiful and useful gifts.

Luncheon was served at a late hour and, thanks to Mrs. Harry Walstead, nobody had to go home in the rain.

OUT OF THE GLOOM

Many a Gloomy Countenance in Charlevoix Now Lightens With Happiness

A bad back makes you gloomy. Can't be happy with continual backache.

The aches and pains of a bad back are frequently due to weak kidneys.

Donn's Kidney Pills are recommended for weak kidneys. So Charlevoix citizens testify.

Mrs. Chas. Myers, 207 Park Ave., Charlevoix, says: "I had trouble with my kidneys and felt tired out and languid all the time. My back ached continually. I bought a supply of Donn's Kidney Pills at Metcalf's drug store, and began using them. They soon relieved the trouble."

Mrs. Myers gave the above statement October 5, 1916 and on May 4, 1920, she added: "The cure Donn's Kidney Pills brought about in my case has proven permanent." Price 60c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Donn's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Myers had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

GYPSIES GET A COLD HAND

DERELICTS OF THE HIGHWAYS DRIVEN ON

Seven Cars of Dark-skinned Egyptians Given the Cold Shoulder
By Local Authorities

Thirty-six members of that once romantic old tribe of Gypsies were politely invited to vamoose Monday when they endeavored to make our fair city the nucleus of operation. They were the genuine old-fashioned Gypsy, and all that seemed out of place was the autos which bore the dusky crew on their endless journey.

Where they came from or where they are bound is hard to tell—perhaps they do not even know; nevertheless they seem to find potent happiness in their hot and dusty travels through the unfriendly towns along the roadside.

Their brightly dressed women find no curious pedestrians upon whom to lavish the romance of a well-prepared "fortune," the old gray mare out in the corn pastures hold no temptations to the black-eyed shies of the puffing caravan, for the days of the covered wagons are a thing of the past to the derelicts of the roads.

Even out of the county, the motor cops and the local officials trailed the unwelcome summer guests until they passed into the jurisdiction of Emmet.

But the day is not far off when these wild and woolly Gypsies will be a thing of the past. Their tribe is fast melting away, with no nourishment, no life and its appears as if the "gents" were growing fewer who will bite on the pet gags of the wanderers.

Today there are less than 500,000 Gypsies in existence. England claims 18,000, though their numbers are fast diminishing. In America there are 14,000 with few of the old stamp tent Gypsies such as passed through here so unceremoniously Monday. We have wondered what tongue they spoke and upon research we find that a large number of the words in all the different dialects are of Indian origin, as the main body of the tongue came from India with numerous borrowed words from many tribes. The grammar of the tongue is also oriental, and corresponds with the Indian dialects.

Gypsies first appeared in Germany six hundred years ago. They traveled in great hordes, with a talented commander at their head, usually a very cunning man. Then slowly they filtered out into small bands, wandering like aimless derelicts about the globe. In Scotland they were cordially received and formed a gypsy community called Yetholm, where the thievery and trickery of their tribesmen was hidden. But now their day is done and the race is sinking into the oblivion that is fast hiding the American Indian. —Albert Widdfield.

WHAT'S THIS BRO- THER, SOME NEW PUBLICITY STUNT?

Speaking of headlines, those of our readers who take the Petoskey Evening News as well as the Courier, may have wondered, after he-holding the front page of our contemporary's issue of June 21st, what the Petoskey band was doing on top of Mt. Everest in the Himalayns and why the two wretches, who had the temerity to solicit Petoskey people for contributions for the band had to die a lonely death on the mountain top.

Interesting if true, but wouldn't Mt. McSaubia or Greensky Hill have done just as well for the band and why inflict such cruel and unusual punishment on the two hapless solicitors, who probably would have got all that was coming to them by the time they finished making collections anyhow?

KIDS APPRECIATE BEACH PLAYGROUND

Have Gone Wild Over the Slides, Giant Stride and Teeter

That the play-ground equipment recently purchased by the city of Charlevoix for the use of the kiddies on the beach of Lake Michigan is fully appreciated by the youngsters from ages three to fifteen needs only a visit to the hench on some Sunday afternoon, or even a week-day, to be satisfactorily proven.

They run about like wild things, one moment dangling from one of the ropes of the giant stride in a dizzy whirl around the big pole and the next clinging with mingled feelings of delight and thrilling fearfulness to their precarious seats on the teeter-totter or standing in pushing, breathless and giggling line for their turn on the long chute-the-chute that lauds one, after a breath-taking rush, ker-thump in a pile of soft sand. The other chute that dumps you into the water is a little lonesome as yet, due to the backwardness of the weather which doesn't seem to want to warm up. But the kids have barrels of fun and it is hard to think of any better way to spend the people's money than to invest it in such equipment as we have down on the beach.

ROTARIANS ARE MUCH PLEASED

THEIR RECEPTION HERE IMPRESSED THEM

Shown Over the City, Many Determined to Return Later and Stay Longer

Did you hear the big noise Monday morning? Well, that was made by the Indiana Rotarians who landed in here off the S. S. Missouri at 9:30, on their way south from Mackinac Island, the last regular stopping place on their itinerary. They were induced to add Charlevoix to their list of visiting points through the efforts of the Commercial Association committee of which Fred E. Cartier is the chairman, ably assisted by Captain Bright of the Missouri.

The party, one hundred and fifty-five in number, including wives, children and friends of the members, hail from all over the state of Indiana, coming from Bedford, Bluffton, Connersville, Crawfordsville, Evansville, Fort Wayne, Franklin, Gary, Goshen, Greensburg, Greensburg, Hammond, Huntington, Indianapolis, Kokomo, Lafayette, Lebanon, Logansport, Michigan City, Marion, Mitchell, Newcastle, Peru, Richmond, Rushville, Seymour, Shelbyville, South Bend, Terre Haute, Union City, Valparaiso, Vincennes, Wabash and Winchester. They left Michigan City on Thursday, June 12th, on the Missouri and made a tour of Lakes Michigan and Huron, their first stop on the up trip being Mackinac Island, as it was their last on the return trip before reaching Charlevoix. En route they touched at Port Huron, Port Colborne, Thorold, Toronto, Port Dalhousie, and passed by Detroit.

They were met at the dock here by a number of the business men and were conveyed in about thirty or forty cars on a sight seeing trip around the city and out to the Loeb Farms where they discovered the cheese factory and insisted on sampling its product. Many returned to the boat with their purchases and quite a few others left their order for cheeses to be sent to their home addresses.

All were loud in their expressions of gratification at the reception accorded them in this city, which was unique in their experience so far on the trip. Two of the party, while here, made special arrangements to spend two weeks in this city in August; one man said he was planning to come here for a week or ten days the latter part of the season and if he liked it to rent a cottage and spend the summer of 1925 with us. Several others signified their intention of stopping off here on an automobile tour later in the summer.

E. V. Smith, piano tuner, will be in Charlevoix this week. Orders left at the Holley Gift Shop, W. C. Bellinger's or the Bartlett House will receive my special, prompt and careful attention.—Adv. 26-11.

New Charlevoix County Bank Building

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY BANK TO DEDICATE NEW HOME ON JUNE 28TH

STARTED FORTY YEARS AGO WHEN THIS TOWN WAS YOUNG, NOW A STRONGHOLD OF FINANCE

Occasion to Be Marked By An Unusual Celebration At Which The Public and Noted Banking Officials of the Middle West Will Be Present

The Charlevoix County Bank originally opened its doors as the Charlevoix Savings Bank, in 1884. It was organized in July of that year by A. R. Upright, Archibald Butters, John Nicholls, O. D. Wood, Amos Fox and others. Imagine, if you can, Charlevoix—some are here who will remember it—with a population of about eight hundred people. The only industries were a saw mill and a few commercial fishermen.

The bank opened for business in a small room of the Ingleside Hotel, located where the Central Drug Store now stands. In 1887 the bank built a small frame building which was in its day an attractive little place. The building is now owned by E. V. Madison and occupied by Lemieux and Pearl as a cigar store.

At that time there were in Charlevoix two physicians, Drs. Lewis and Preston; two lawyers, E. H. Green and J. M. Eaton; two year-round hotels, the Ingleside and the Fountain City House; two summer hotels, the Belvedere and the Chicago Club; two newspapers, the Charlevoix Sentinel, owned and operated by Willard A. Smith, and the Charlevoix Journal, owned and operated by C. J. Strang, son of the Mormon King of Beaver Island.

In 1890, John Nicholls, Archibald Butters, Henry Nicholls, and Monte Lewis formed a partnership and took over the Charlevoix Savings Bank, changing the name to Charlevoix County Bank. This concern prospered and in 1902 Albert F. Bridge came to Charlevoix and was made a member of the firm. In 1904, Mr. Bridge was instrumental in starting and completing the three-story brick building recently destroyed by fire.

John Nicholls died in 1915 and the heirs of his estate took over his share of the partnership. In 1920, Robert Bridge was taken into the firm and to him has fallen the burden of completing the present modern building.

The fortieth anniversary of the bank and dedication of the new building will be held on Saturday, June 28th. The new structure, classical in design of the Doric order, is composed of brick and Indiana limestone. Brick columns, with stone base and caps, together with the attractive large windows on the south or Clinton street side, add materially to its simple beauty. The front of the building, which conforms with the classical design, faces Bridge street. Here the small windows stand out in contrast to the heavy stone entrance surrounding the large metal doors, showing strength and solidity. At the same time this entrance has a pleasing and inviting appearance.

Entering from Bridge street through the vestibule, the first appearance is one of singular beauty and simplicity. From the terrazzo floor of inlaid marble, the eye is at once attracted to the warmth of the elegant Tennessee marble on the wall and counters, and the plaster columns of the walls. Use of the Doric order is made in the caps decorating the tops of these columns which carries out the classical idea similar to the exterior. From the columns are corniced, plastered beams extending from wall to wall across the barrelled ceiling, which gives it a substantial and decorative appearance. The ceiling is further enhanced by large and gracefully carved rosettes from which hang lighting fixtures of exceptional style and beauty.

To the left, on entering the spacious lobby of fifteen feet by thirty feet, is the open office of the cashier. Adjoining are the counters, behind which are large windows which practically cover the entire side of the building. These windows in back of the counter screen make working conditions and lighting arrangements.

OLD SETTLERS MEET TODAY AT NORTHPORT

Forty-Third Annual Picnic Held In Historic Spot

The Forty-third Annual Old Settlers' Picnic will be held this year at Northport, on Wednesday, June 25th (in fact lunch boxes are being packed and admonitions screamed at Johnnie and Willie to "hurry, or you will be late" even as this is being written). Rev. A. A. Allington, of Northport, has been elected president of the association with N. C. Morgann, of Omenn, as secretary.

The following are the county vice-presidents: Antrim, Frank Martinek; Charlevoix, Archie Butters, Emmet, Mrs. Ethel Rowan Fasquelle, Benzie, L. P. Judon; Leelanau, Frank Fisher; Kalkaska, A. E. Palmer; Grand Traverse, Frank Hamilton.

The meetings of the old settlers are always interesting and provide a pleasant opportunity for the "old timers," whose efforts helped to make this region the prosperous, happy and beautiful country that it is, to get together and exchange reminiscences and recall the incidents that have enriched the history of west-central Michigan and in which the raconteurs themselves played so important a part.

IT'S LAWFUL TO CATCH 'EM--YES

BUT A TRUE SPORT WILL WAIT
A WHILE YET

Bass Spawning Season Does Not Jibe
With Legal Opening Date—
A Queer Situation

According to the laws of the state of Michigan, the season for legally catching black bass opened on Monday, June 16. The man who fishes now for bass is not violating any law. But, according to the code of Michigan sportsmen, that man is not a good sportsman. The situation is unusual. Men are asked to abstain from rights which the law clearly grants to them. Not only have the various sportsmen's organizations appealed to anglers to postpone bass fishing, but the state department of conservation through Director John Baird, has issued an official request for such abstinence. In all of this the cheering feature is not that men in touch with conditions and devoting their lives to conservation have made such appeals, but that fishermen are taking these appeals to heart.

A freak season is responsible for the conditions which postponement of fishing seeks to overcome. Ordinarily bass have spawned before the middle of June. But before they start spawning a water temperature of approximately 60 degrees in the near shore shoals is necessary. This year continued cold weather through April and May left the water chilled; and not until last week did the fish start their strange nest-making antics. Today, according to fish culturists, the spawning season is well under way. With continued warm weather the entire process of propagation may be completed within another week and the male fish, which act as guardians of the spawn and the young, will leave the nests, hungry and ready to give the fishermen a fair fight. Until that time to catch a bass means to rob a lake of thousands of baby fish—one mother bass will produce as many as 25,000 eggs. Nature provides her own method of thinning out the small fish once they are left to their own resources.

The bass fishermen face a plea for self-denial. For months they have looked forward with anticipation to the pink dawn of June 16th. Boats were reserved far in advance of the season opening. But now they are asked on their honor to wait a while longer. Such discipline in itself is a good thing. We need to discipline ourselves in out of door sports, to learn to respect and protect natural resources. The more fishermen there are who abstain from molesting the spawning bass the better will be Michigan's future fishing and the better will be the individual's right to hold up his head and answer the roll call of sportsman.—Grand Rapids Herald.

HIGHLY RESPECTED AND BELOVED

MRS. ELMER JOHNSON HAS PASSED AWAY

Well-Known Local Matron is Mourned by Many Who Appreciated
Her Sterling Worth

This community lost a much respected and beloved member last week in the death of Mrs. Elmer L. Johnson, which occurred at six p. m. last Wednesday at her home on Mason street, following an illness of many days duration. Her vitality was at a very low ebb for several days preceding her death, which nevertheless came as a sad shock to her husband and family to whom she had been a devoted wife and mother and to her many friends who cherished for her a deep and abiding affection won by years of happy association, kindness and good will.

Mrs. Johnson suffered a complete nervous collapse several weeks ago and, although seeming to improve slightly from time to time during her illness, never rallied entirely and appeared to be worse after each seeming gain.

Nellie Bernice Hyres was born in Kingsville, Ashtabula county, Ohio, on September 16, 1865, and was in her fifty-ninth year at the time of her death. On January 18, 1884, she was married to Elmer L. Johnson in Ohio. They came to Michigan five years later, settling in Fairgrove, where they remained for seven years before removing to Central Lake, where they lived for a year before coming to Charlevoix. In this city they had made their home for the past 21 years at the residence on Mason street.

Mrs. Johnson is survived by her husband, a daughter, Mrs. Charles Lamphear of this city and granddaughter, Bernice; two sisters, Mrs. L. B. Bartlett of Charlevoix, and Mrs. Lucy Harvey of Grand Rapids, and three brothers, George Hyres, of Grand Rapids; Charles Hyres, of this city, and Fred Hyres, of San Diego, California.

The funeral services were held at the home of the deceased on Mason street, Saturday afternoon, June 21, at two-thirty o'clock, Rev. H. R. E. Quant of the M. E. church officiating, with the local Eastern Star lodge, of which the deceased had been a faithful and valuable member, attending in a body. The interment was made at Brookside. E. D. Schaefer, of Petoskey, assisting in arrangements for the funeral owing to serious illness in the family of the local undertaker, which prevented the latter from taking charge.

The pall bearers were Messrs. E. J. Hiller, S. M. Rose, W. S. Richardson, Art Alcock, F. S. Myers and B. A. Herman. Those of the family from out of town who were present included Mrs. Lucy Harvey, of Grand Rapids, sister of the deceased; Miss Rosanna Mnsena, of Ashtabula, Ohio, a half-sister, and Mrs. Alfred Johnson and Mrs. George Hunter, cousins of the deceased, both of Fairgrove, Mich.

STRANGE DOINGS AROUND THE PAR- SONAGE RECENTLY

We haven't heard in years of so touching and delicate a tribute to a man's hospitality and generous instincts as was mutely accorded our reverend brother Quant on his return, recently, from his vacation. No editorial pen could possibly have expressed so perfect a recognition of his fatherly qualities as a shepherd of flocks, no poet could extol in measured verse his tolerance and kindly sympathy as did the humble visitants of whom we are about to speak by the simple actions that revealed their perfect trust and confidence. Well—to get to the point—when he reached home, he found a mother robin had nested on the ledge above his front door and had already produced a lusty brood. No. 2—a couple of days later, a small black kitty visited the parsonage and made herself at home. And last, but not least, one evening a homeless canine wanderer takes up her abode under the side porch steps and the next morning is found surrounded by a real old-fashioned family—no traces of race suicide visible.

If the above don't prove that the reverend is a good family man, we want to know.

AT THE MOVIES

"Zaza" Star Role of Many Noted Actresses

When "Zaza," the great French play was produced in Paris some twenty-five years ago, and which was the starring vehicle for Madame Rejane, it was believed by many critics that it would be impossible for any American actress to portray that arduous role as artistically as the actress named, but these critics were in error as the evidence showed. The play was for many years a reigning success on the American stage with many notable actresses in the title role.

The picturization of this charming play by Paramount with beautiful Gloria Swanson in the title role is said by many to be a far more powerful characterization than has ever been seen on the American stage or screen. In this splendid picturization, which will be shown at the Palace Theatre Saturday and Sunday next, Miss Swanson relies entirely upon the power of pantomime art in which the French always have been adepts, but those who have seen the great screen artist in her wonderful emotional interpretations, in which she has appeared for several years, will be the first to declare that Miss Swanson is the only American screen star who vests the role of "Zaza" with a power never heretofore witnessed in silent drama productions.

The support provided for Miss Swanson in this play, headed by H. B. Warner, is exceptionally praiseworthy, each role being in the hands of an artist. The photoplay was splendidly produced by Allan Dwan

"The Country Kid" Features Wesley Barry

"One for all, and all for one." That was the motto of the famous Three Musketeers—but it was also the motto of Wesley Barry, portraying the role of Ben Applegate who takes care and protects his two younger brothers.

"The Country Kid" is the name of the latest Warner Brothers production scheduled to come to the Palace Theatre for two days beginning next Wednesday.

In this picture "Us Boys" are there in full force. Where could a better trio of boys be found than Wesley Barry, "Spec" O'Donnell and little Bruce Guerin, who take the part of Ben, Joe and Andy Applegate, respectively.

Rex Beach Won Fame with "The Spoilers"

A literary person with a passion for figures has estimated that fully ten million books dealing with Alaska have been sold. Two names head the list of best sellers of Alaskan novels. They are Beach and Jack London.

Rex Beach's novel, "The Spoilers," according to the figures, is the most popular novel ever written about the far north. Its sales have run to the half million mark. Numerous editions have been printed. It is even now selling as well as the average novel, and it has been nearly twenty years since it was published.

Interest in the book was revived by the announcement that it was being filmed on an elaborate scale by Jesse D. Hampton at the Goldwyn studios. When it was screened some years ago it was the first big American picture. The new version has an all-star cast headed by Milton Sills, Barbara Bedford, Anna Q. Nilsson and Noah Beery. It will be the attraction at the Palace Theatre for next Monday and Tuesday.

PROMINENT BUSINESS MAN PASSES

H. B. Wood Is Dead At the Age of Fifty Years

Henry B. Wood, prominent business man of this city, died at his home last Sunday, June 22nd, at the close of a long illness. Mr. Wood was alling all last summer and in the early fall went to Detroit and submitted to an operation which left him in a very weakened condition. Since his return to this city last April he had been steadily failing and his life continued to ebb away until last week when death came as a merciful release.

Mr. Wood was born in Norwood on the 25th of February, 1874, the son of Orvis D. and Mary H. Wood. He came to Charlevoix at the age of six years and spent the remainder of his life in this city, during which time he was principally engaged in the livery business. His first establishment was on the Belvedere Terrace near where the Linda Vista now stands. He next moved to the George Miller property, opposite the present location of his business on Bridge street, and his removal to the east side of the street was simultaneous with his securing of the agency for the Dodge line of cars. Since that time the garage and automobile business which he started has continued to prosper until it is now one of the city's most thriving concerns, after ten years of existence.

The funeral was held from the home of the deceased at ten-thirty o'clock this morning, Rev. H. R. E. Quant officiating, with interment in the family plot at Brookside. His sole surviving near relative is his sister, Mrs. Frederick H. Clarke, of Evanston, Ill., who was with him during his long illness and present at the funeral.

Politics and the Railroads

To the present generation of Michigan Railroad men it is a grateful thought that this Peninsular commonwealth is appreciative of the fact that Railroad Service is today the best in Michigan history.

We know this appreciation by actual expressions—spoken and written—and by the gradual disappearance of that ancient hostility which featured an era of Railroad long past.

Most people realize that Railroad Service has been re-established despite laws which restrict management in every detail—laws which add huge burdens of expense to Railroad operation without assisting in any way toward Railroad progress or the development of Railroad Service.

Those who understand these facts give full credit for the achievement of Michigan's twenty-four steam Railroads and are prompt to resent selfish attacks on them. Before this defense—a defense based on facts—railroad aspersion is becoming out of date, except for spasmodic revivals at election time, when office seekers, desperately fighting for votes, sometimes endeavor to turn Railroad abuse into political capital.

Railroads have small chance to meet such attacks. Railroad men are too busy furnishing transportation and conducting negotiations with the various Government boards and commissions which so closely supervise our every act. In this extremity we must rely on you to protect and defend us, and to insure us a square deal.

Is this reliance well placed?

Fishermen at Peshtigo report that winter freezes in their camp pails at night. On the other hand, the freezing weather has its advantages in that, if you hit a mosquito's stinger a good sharp blow with an axe you can sometimes break it off.

Officers raiding a place at Lansing found a flask of whiskey in the bedroom, several bottles of beer in the grape arbor, and a keg of wine in the garage. Evidently the suspicion that every man has something in his cellar is cruelly unjust.

Repaired Dock
The city has been rebuilding the dock at the foot of Mason street, filling it in with rocks and cementing the face and sides and it now presents a very creditable appearance to what it used to. S. M. Rose is the man behind the sheet piling work and George Lusk handled the concrete end of it. It's a nice job.

WHY PAY MORE?

Why pay $10.00 for shoes and oxfords when exactly the same grade and quality can be bought for $7.00 and $8.00. Our Nunn Bush shoes and oxfords are equal in quality to any made. The very best of leather is used and they give the best of service. Again we ask, why pay the high price asked by some dealers, whose goods are often not equal to those sold in the same community for less money? Better investigate this shoe proposition, and at the same time save money by so doing.

WHY HE'S POPULAR

Confidence in Coolidge is general and deep seated. In the presidential primaries he carried every state in which the people have had opportunity to express their preference, and by majorities so overwhelming as to leave no doubt of their significance. No president has been more securely entrenched in popular good will.

There is a lesson in that popularity which ought not to be lost even upon those politicians who habitually think of public questions only in terms of votes. Calvin Coolidge does not piny to the galleries. He does not profess to be a mere registering machine for public sentiment, whether informed or misguided. The people, after all, are not so fond of being flattered as our demagogues suppose. They have a preference for leaders who think and act upon the guidance of conviction, rather than upon suppositions as to what may be for the moment popular.

The United States is a representative republican government, not a democracy. Under such a government the people rule, but they rule through chosen representatives who are expected to give to the consideration of public problems that same intelligent consideration the official of a private corporation would give to the affairs of its business. The public servant whose so-called conscience is a mere seismograph by which the momentary emotions of the mob are registered is worse than worthless.

The nation has had no better example of the true representative than Abraham Lincoln, the first great Republican. Lincoln did not fear to breast the tide of adverse public opinion. He respected public opinion, but he did not obey it against his own better judgment. He did not fear to disagree with even a majority. Subservience to a majority might be treason to the republic. Lincoln said, "the people wobble, but they finally wobble right." He did not wobble with them; he went straight on his way and waited for the tide to turn.

In other words, Lincoln thought more of being right than of being popular. He cared nothing for power for power's sake; he cared for it only as a means of real service to the people. Lincoln was not a follower; he was a leader, and because he led in the right direction, and because he stuck to his course through evil and good report, he saved the nation and gained historic immortality.

No one ever heard Abraham Lincoln extolling his own honesty, his own fidelity to the people and reflecting upon the integrity or sincerity of those who disagreed with him. The politicians who practice this method of getting on in politics by that very course forfeit all claims to confidence. Imagine Abraham Lincoln dominating one of these present day senate inquiries, emptying the jails to provide witnesses to "smear up" somebody with hearsay and gossip in the hope of helping his own party and hurting the other party by such misuse of public funds and

Charlevoix People Must Recognize and Heed It.

Kidney ills come mysteriously. But nature generally warns you. Notice the kidney secretions. See if the color is unhealthy. If there are settlements and sediment. Passages frequent, scanty, painful. It's time to fear serious kidney trouble.

It's time to use Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have done great work in Charlevoix. Ask your neighbor. Hubert Ackert, mason, 107 W. Garfield Ave., Charlevoix, says: "There was a constant ache in the small of my back and nights I couldn't get any sleep. My kidneys were sluggish in action and the secretions were scanty and burned in passage. I bought Doan's Kidney Pills at Metcalf's Drug Store, and they fixed me up in fine shape. I haven't had any trouble since Doan's cured me."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Ackert had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

public power. Imagine Calvin Coolidge participating in that sort of performance!

President Coolidge has dignity, integrity, courage, self-control and a dominating desire to promote the welfare of the American people. He is not a demagogue or a charlatan. The American people like his modesty, his sincerity, his simplicity and his consistency. They are weary of the gabble of the time-serving gallery players.

UNUSED MONEY

An officer of the United States treasury says there is more than $100,000,000 hoarded in this country by people who distrust banks or are indifferent to the benefits of bank deposits.

Many of them, he says are plain misers, who love to gloat over their gold, silver and banknotes. About $200,000,000 is stored in cupboards and mattresses of foreign-born residents who are unaccustomed to banks. Farmers are hoarding perhaps $125,000,000.

All of this is understandable. Coins have a pleasant jingle in one's pocket, and to many eyes an engraved greenback or yellow-back is more beautiful than any other work of art. The foreign-born have more excuse for acting as their own bankers than the native-born, because it is often a new thing for them to have money and often their experiences with petty bankers of their own nationality have been unfortunate. Farmers have poorer banking facilities than other classes.

Yet in nearly all cases, this withholding of money from the bank vaults where it naturally belongs is bad. Money is the chief tool of our economic system. Like any other tool, it is made to use. And unlike other tools, it does not wear out, but grows with use.

It is foolish for the owner of any sum larger than pocket cash to forego the interest it will bear. But there is a stronger reason for banking it. Putting the money into the bank is putting it into circulation and stimulating business. It is using the same money, over and over again, for wages, salaries and the distribution of the necessities of life. The banks cannot lend money to carry on business, or to build houses and develop farms, unless people first deposit it with them.

OUR INDIAN CITIZENS

Two thousand American Indians have just been in session in Tulsa, Okla., seeking organization for the improvement of their race. "We are a good people with high aims," said the leader, "but the white men do not know that because we have not taken the time to tell them."

It is well known that under reservation living conditions, all kept pretty well within the white man's control; the American Indian has suffered in many ways. His health has been undermined, his education too often neglected, his natural resources exploited to the benefit of others.

Today the Indians are ready to take steps for themselves to change these conditions. They are not putting on war paint or stirring up conflict to accomplish their purpose. They are simply getting together to seek continued improvements in health and education facilities, greater independence of action for themselves, and other matters which will help them to stand on their own feet, independent and responsible.

Citizenship has recently been granted by act of congress to every native-born American Indian. This, combined with their awakened ideals and ambitions, should help the red man to regain the nobility which many of the usurpers were at first only too willing to have them lose.

THE CITY ON EXHIBITION

When a city succeeds in attracting a big convention to itself it naturally wants to appear at its best when the crowds of visitors begin to arrive. Kansas City, with its recent Shriner's Jubilee convention, Cleveland with its Republican convention, and New York with its coming Democratic convention have done and will do only what any housewife usually does when guests are expected—clean up for company.

The cleaning up and dressing up covers everything from flag draped buildings and cleaned streets to newly cleaned and painted buildings, pruned shrubbery and freshly cut lawns. It is all very fine, and the visitors appreciate it and the whole family of citizens enjoys having the old town look its best. But the question is inevitably raised in many minds, why all the extra flurry and work for the temporary enjoyment of outsiders? The Kansas City Star puts it thus:

"Less preparation would be needed for great occasions if there were a more aggressive policy for continuous order, cleanliness and beauty. After all, it is much more important for a city to keep itself attractive and orderly all the time for the benefit of all people who live in the city and for the effect on the daily travelers than it is to make an extraordinary display for unusual events. A city is on exhibition all the year 'round. It cannot afford to get sloppy even for a single day."

LIVE STOCK FACTS

Earning Power of Pure Bred Higher Than Scrub

Based on utility alone—apart from breeding or sales value—pure bred live stock has an earning power from a third to one-half greater than scrub stock. The average superiority of pure bred over scrubs for all classes of farm animals is about 40 per cent.

Of the principal points in which pure bred excel other stock, the most prominent are: Superiority and uniformity in conformation and type, greater sale value, early maturity, and economy in the conversion of feed into meat, milk, wool, and work.

Superior pure bred are readily salable at satisfactory prices in the majority of cases; but much depends on the breeding and production records and the business ability of the breeder.

With rare exceptions, pure bred sire users are satisfied with the quality of the offspring obtained, except that the desire is created in many cases to improve the quality still further. The progeny of pure bred sires has practically a 50 per cent greater sale value than the progeny of sires not pure bred.

Pure bred sires of good quality are readily obtainable in the experience of three-fourths of the breeders reporting. The principal difficulties are: Paying the price and finding the desirable type, but there is practically unanimous agreement that the results justify the cost.

The average increase in financial returns, from live stock raising, traceable to the use of pure bred sires is 48 per cent.

Docking of Lambs Great Help at Time of Selling

Farmers who are engaged in the sheep industry often forget to dock and castrate their lambs. Live stock commission men and packers are staunch supporters of castration and docking of lambs for market purposes and pay more for animals which have received this attention.

"Castration of lambs is a simple operation and if performed at the proper time the lamb does not mind it and there is little risk attached," says Prof. Phil. A. Anderson, animal husbandry man at University farm at St. Paul, Minn. "The operation should be done when the lamb is ten days to two weeks old; older lambs can be unsexed but with more risk. Use any good disinfectant, having hands and knife clean. The lower one-third of the scrotum is removed and the testicles forced out. The spermatic cord should be drawn out with the fingers and cut off with a knife in a scraping manner in order to prevent excessive bleeding. After the operation is completed, apply a disinfectant. If blowflies are abundant, apply a little clean pine tar.

"Lambs that have not been docked present a poor appearance when marketed, but the main reason for docking is that lambs on summer pasture often scour. Such conditions invite the blow-fly and maggots and often the lamb is lost."

Breeding Ewes Require Exercise During Winter

One very important factor in winter breeding ewes is to see that they get plenty of exercise. Lack of exercise is one of the causes of weak lambs. When it can be arranged, at least a part of the roughage should be fed in the field at some distance from the barns or the shed and the ewes should be out every day that the weather is fair. In fact, for best results, the ewe should have the equivalent of at least a mile of exercise each day.

In sheltering ewes, protect them from cold rains and driving storms. Many people make the mistake of not housing their ewes until they have become wet or until practically all damage has been done. Low temperature in the barn or shed is not serious so long as the sheep are dry under foot and over head. Have ventilation without strong drafts. Danger lies in having a barn too warm and damp.

"Hard Luck" With Pigs Traced to Improper Feed

A great deal of the so-called "hard luck" with young pigs soon after farrowing can be traced directly to improper feeding and in most cases to overfeeding of the sows. Just because a sow seems hungry just after farrowing is no indication that she should receive feed.

A liberal supply of water should always be available. This will usually satisfy and quiet the sow. She should receive very little feed for at least 24 hours after farrowing. The first few feeds of grain should be light and fed in the form of thick slop. She should not be on full feed for from six to ten days after farrowing.

rangements the finest that could be had.

The fixtures are the last word in banking equipment, made by the Nachteggall Manufacturing Co., of Grand Rapids, who are considered the best firm for such work. The base is a beautiful gray Tennessee marble and the top screen is of American walnut with clear plate glass. The warmth of this walnut, together with the lightness of the clear glass, has a most pleasing appearance for both the customer and the employee. In harmony with the fixtures, walnut trim has been used throughout the building which also has a warm inviting appearance and the dark trim stands out in contrast to the light colored walls.

A private office is accessible from the cashier's office. This, too, is provided with walnut furniture and taupe rugs. From here, through the casement windows, a vista of Round and Pines lakes looms up. Then too, a view of Bridge street may be had from a window on the south.

Opposite this office, on the other side of the vestibule, is the passage leading to the stairway to the mezzanine floor. Most attractive in every respect, from the soft taupe rugs of heavy pile, to the walnut furniture, is the director's room located on this mezzanine floor. In this room are also windows overlooking Bridge and Clinton streets and the bank lobby. Below the mezzanine is a stairway leading down to the ladies' room.

Directly opposite the front door, but at the rear of the bank, is the large vault. This has a four-inch solid steel door, weighing about five tons in all, which guards the vault containing money-safe and safety deposit boxes. The huge door is one made by the Mosler Safe Co., and probably the heaviest and best vault door in northern Michigan. The vault itself has been built for present and future use. It is twenty-one feet long and eight feet wide, and is one of the most modern construction. It has a seventeen-inch wall of brick, concrete and iron and is further protected by a McClinton burglar alarm of electric wires completely covering all walls, floor and ceiling and attached to the door. These electric wires are spaced about three inches apart, making it practically impossible to even try to penetrate the wall without striking them. The wires are connected with an alarm which it is said can be heard for a distance of six miles. This burglar alarm is one of the latest types and is also connected with ten holdup stations, placed at convenient locations easily reached by officers or employees in case of holdup.

A heavy steel grille separates the safety deposit boxes from that portion of the vault used by the bank for money-safe, valuable documents and other supplies, leaving the entire front of the vault for the convenience of safety deposit box customers. Here a small desk and chair provides a place for clients to look over their valuable papers.

In addition to the main vault on the banking floor is a vault of similar size and construction in the basement, used for storing valuable records and customers' bulky articles which are too large for safety deposit boxes.

The bank is equipped with two of the latest model Burroughs' book-keeping machines and two small adding machines which aid materially in giving better and prompter service.

A recent innovation in office equipment is the use of period furniture and this idea has been carried out entirely in furnishing the "Bank on the Corner." The walnut furniture is all of the Early American design and is used in all rooms and in the lobby.

The general plan and entire furnishing of the bank has been designed with an idea of simple beauty, inviting, friendly appearance and convenience to customers and employees. Every detail has been studied and worked out to give the most pleasing effect, from the recessed radiators on the north side of the banking lobby to the small pinn wicket from the cashier's office to the teller's cage.

Charlevoix is to be congratulated on having a building of such beauty and the officers of the bank have the commendation of the entire community for having erected such an edifice.

M. E. CHURCH

With commencement over and summer already on us, one might meditate profitably upon these words:

Be rich in good works, laying up in store a good foundation against the time to come. 1 Tim. vi. 18, 19.

My brethren, we may be quite sure that the church of Christ is summoned to do a great work, and every member of the church is summoned to take some part in it. It is big enough to affront you, because it is so big as to be impossible. If we only knew it, Sunday-school teaching and preaching, with the object of changing people's lives and bringing them to God, is the biggest work in the world; so big that anybody is a fool who attempts it alone, or who thinks that any wit or wisdom of his is going to accomplish it. It is so big that only the power of God's Spirit can accomplish it. And that Spirit is waiting for channels through whom He may work. He finds them in every surrendered and obedient soul.—Charles Brown.

This Sunday is the 29th of June, 10:30, worship. The pastor, who has been absent for three Sundays, will give the message, "The Fundamentals in the Acquiring of Truth." Sunday school is at 12 o'clock. Junior League at 3:00 p. m. Epworth League this Sunday at 6:30.

Evening worship, at 7:30. The pastor will discuss at this service the theme, "How Am I Justified." Strangers always welcome. Come in friends! Prayer meeting this Thursday at 7:30 p. m. Read the 20th chapter of John's Gospel.

Guaranteed paint at $2.50 per gallon. Benj. Brown.—Adv. 20-11.

In Memoriam
In loving remembrance of our dear little Bruce, who passed away one year ago today, June 25: Softly the stars are shining, over his silent grave, Gently he is sleeping, one we loved but could not save. None can know how much we miss him through the weary, long-some hours, In our hearts there is no question that God picks the sweetest flowers.
Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith and children.

CHIROS STAGE A PARADE TO JAIL

Convention Delegates Make a Striking Demonstration

Delegates to the three-day convention of the Michigan branch of the Universal Chiropractor's Association, which met at the Panslind Hotel last week, discussed legislation designed to improve the condition of the chiropractor in Michigan. The delegates assembled 500 strong to listen to the opening address by the state president, Charles M. Guyelman, of Jackson, on Monday afternoon. Dr. Virginia Ryall Brown, of Charlevoix, represented the profession from this district.

Later in the afternoon, members of the association staged a parade to the Kent county jail to visit Milford H. Beebe, young Grand Rapids chiropractor who is serving a 30 day term. Ordered to pay a fine of $25 and costs when he admitted that he used the title "Dr." on his stationery and for advertising purposes, Beebe told Judge L. D. Verdier that he preferred to go to jail.

MURDERED WOMAN ONCE LIVED IN ELLSWORTH

Was Formerly Mrs. William Waller, Sister of John Stevens

The late Mrs. George Cummings, of Grand Rapids, who was slain by her newly wedded husband while the couple were on their honeymoon trip to British Columbia, was formerly Mrs. William Waller, who resided in Ellsworth several years ago. She was a sister of John Stevens of Central Lake. At the time of her marriage to George Cummings, she was Mrs. Jean Rue. She had then been married four times.

The fatal marriage took place in Grand Rapids on Saturday, June 7th. Mr. and Mrs. Cummings immediately prepared to take their honeymoon trip, leaving Grand Rapids in her new Chevrolet roadster for British Columbia. They traveled, it seems to northern Michigan and then into Wisconsin. They arrived in camp at Wittenberg about four o'clock Saturday afternoon, June 14th. Mrs. Cummings was not seen alive by anyone after that hour.

It was supposed that she was murdered while asleep in her tent some time during the night, Saturday, according to the Press report.

After Cummings had continued his journey Sunday morning, the woman's body was found buried in a shallow mound alongside the road. She had apparently been killed with a hatchet. Her clothing had been removed and was lying a short distance from where she was buried. It is thought that the dead woman's money was the incentive for the crime which was evidently premeditated. Wisconsin officials are searching everywhere for the fugitive murderer.

BAND CONCERT DRAWS LARGE CROWD

Weekly Musical Program Growing More Popular Each Week

The Ellsworth band gave a very good concert last Saturday evening. The only regret is that the streets of Ellsworth are not longer and wide enough to accommodate more people and more cars.

Two merchants remarked that they will be forced to hire more clerks to take care of the extra Saturday night trade. Every factory of any size and every town or city of any importance has a band boosting for it.

Next Saturday night the band will appear in uniform and give a short parade besides a concert of standard marches and overtures.

Mr. I. H. Erratt, of the First National Bank of Cheboygan, has been planning on this event for several months and is anxiously awaiting the opening.

Many bankers from nearby cities have signified their intention of being in Charlevoix for the opening celebration. Traverse City, Manicou, East Jordan, Boyne City, Petoskey, Pellston and other cities will be well represented.

LOCAL BASEBALL TEAM ORGANIZED

With Frank Glassford, Ray Ashdon and Leo Powers as Officers

At a meeting of baseball fans, held Tuesday evening, an organization was formed, to be known as the Charlevoix Baseball Association, with Frank Glassford as president, Leo Powers, secretary, and Ray Ashdon, treasurer.

William Christy, of Danville, Ill., has been employed as manager and three players have been secured from Bay City, who will fill the positions of pitcher, catcher and second base. Their names have not as yet been revealed to us. Warren Shield, former Albion college player, who was on last year's local team, is with us again this summer and will fill an outfield position. Perry, the colored boy from the south, who played on the local city team last year, will appear on the new team as first baseman at the start of the season.

New suits and equipment have been ordered for the team and are expected to arrive here daily now. The ball grounds are being put in better condition than they have ever been in before. James Gaskin, who is donating his time, is doing the work.

It is going to cost considerable money to put this team in the field and any who have not subscribed may contribute with the assurance that their gift will be welcome. Those who have subscribed may help things along by turning in their money to the treasurer. It will be highly appreciated.

The first home game of the season will be held on Sunday, July 6th, with the fast-travelling East Jordan aggregation. Petoskey is the only town in the northern Michigan group that will not be represented by a ball team this season.

WAS STRICKEN DOWN IN PRIME OF LIFE

Mrs. Jack Maher Failed to Survive
Critical Operation

The community learned with sorrow and surprise this week of the untimely death of Mrs. Jack Maher, of Grand Rapids, who passed away at the Blodgett Hospital in that city last Sunday, June 22nd, following an illness of only three days duration necessitating an operation which proved fatal.

Effie F. See was born in Charlevoix, September 26, 1898, and was in her 26th year of age at the time of her death. She was educated in the grammar schools here and graduated from Ferris Institute at Big Rapids. She is survived by her husband and little 21 months old son, Charles, her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. See of this city, three brothers, Glenn and Chester of this city and Louis of Warmsprings, Oregon, and a sister, Mrs. Seth Smith, of Charlevoix.

The funeral was held this afternoon (Wednesday, June 25th) at two-thirty o'clock from the Charles See residence on Dixon avenue, Rev. H. R. E. Quant officiating. The interment was at Brookside.

Among those present at the funeral from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. George Carr, of East Jordan, and Mr. and Mrs. Lou Thomas and daughter, Mrs. Herbert Akey, of Petoskey.

BROWN & WALLACE PLANS EXTENSIVE

New Oil Storage Building Will Be Erected

The extensive cement work which has been going on around the Sinclair Oil station at the junction of Bridge street and Belvedere avenue for the past few weeks looks to the future erection of an oil storage building in the shape of a semi-circle, extending from one street to the other around the present building as a center. The laying of the concrete floor will go on as fast as the removal of dirt from the bank behind the station permits and when sufficient room is obtained the work of construction will commence. It is not anticipated that the building will be finished under another two or three months.

At the east end of the concrete floor space will be provided for car washing and oil drainage. A new Fleckenstein visible gasoline pump has been installed in the center of the driveway on the east side of the present building.

DAR F. MEECH FOR REGISTER OF DEEDS

Fully Capable of Handling the Duties

Among the latest to announce their candidacy for county office at the September primary is Dar F. Meech, who will seek to be nominated as register of deeds, to succeed Malcolm M. McDonald, whose term of office expires January 1, 1925, and who is not seeking re-election.

That "Dar" is fully qualified to perform the duties as register of deeds, no one can deny. Few men in the county are in closer touch with court house business than Mr. Meech. There are but few things about its workings he is not familiar with.

He has been in the harness before as county clerk, assistant in the office of register of deeds, supervisor, and city assessor. And he knows the ins and outs of both ward, city and county affairs. NEW COUNTY BANK OPENS WITH MANY VISITORS

Two Hundred New Accounts Are Opened and Messages of Congratulation Pour In

The opening day for the Charlevoix County Bank's new home and the 40th anniversary of the founding of the institution was commemorated last Saturday, June 28th, in appropriate fashion in accordance with the announced plans of the management.

The doors of the building opened promptly at nine a. m. and from that time on until late in the evening a steady stream of interested visitors poured into the handsome edifice to look and admire. The bank officials estimate that from 2,000 to 2,500 people took advantage of the opportunity to see the results of the work that has aroused so much wondering comment at the rapidity of its completion and the perfection of its detail. That the above estimate of numbers is not exaggerated may be confirmed by the fact that all the souvenirs for the kiddies were exhausted by three p. m., Saturday and at the end of the day all of the other 1,500 souvenirs had been given out. The wonderful birthday cake didn't go begging either, for 200 new accounts were opened and this meant a piece of the cake for each account.

This cake, the work of Mrs. Will Higman of this city, was a remarkable affair. It was of five layers and measured 20 inches square at the base. The ingredients used in its preparation were measured out in five—five dozen eggs, five pounds of flour, five pounds of sugar, etc. Intricate designs were worked in the frosting and across the top was inscribed in sugary letters, "40th Anniversary." Forty little pink birthday candles surrounded it and outside of these, around the edge of the cake board, sprays of spirea formed a garland. With every new account opened a piece of the cake was given to the new depositor and many found valuable prizes in their portion. Henry McClanathan discovered the architect's prize, a ten dollar gold piece, in his slice and Mrs. Ada B. Carrier of the Belvedere secured the next largest token, a five dollar gold piece. Dr. Vernard L. Miller and Miss Mildred Parker found $2.50 gold pieces in their share of the cake and many others were rewarded with silver pieces, such as dollars, halves and quarters.

Many fine clusters of flowers, the gifts of out-of-town banks and local friends, helped to beautify the attractive interior of the building; Petoskey, East Jordan, Boyne City, Traverse City, New York, Detroit and Chicago, among other places, being represented by the donors. Frank Winegar's orchestra, the "Pennsylvanians," secured by the bank management for the entertainment of its visitors, played throughout the afternoon and evening.

Practically everyone of the visitors had something to say about the attractiveness of the building and

BIBLE TO HAVE ITS PLACE IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

The Bible will have a place in all public and parochial schools in Michigan next year if school officials follow instructions mailed to them Friday of last week by Thomas E. Johnson, state superintendent of public instruction.

In his letter to the school officers, Mr. Johnson says:

"I was in a schoolhouse the other day and wished to find a Bible quotation and to my astonishment there was not a copy in the building.

"No school should exist in Michigan without a copy of the Bible and it might be well if a copy would be of the St. James version the language of which is familiar to all of us. Do not allow your school to reopen without having a copy of the Bible available."

The use of the Bible as a part of the courses of education is one up to the local boards of education. There is no state law covering the subject. It is within the power of Mr. Johnson, however, to direct that the Bible be provided for reference work in all schools coming under his jurisdiction.

the remarkable promptness with which it had been erected. Visiting friends of the bank, who have not been watching the progress of the work from day to day, and had prophesied that the building could not be occupied before August or September, were greatly astounded at the early opening date. Credit for the feat of erecting a building of this type in so short a time and with such careful attention to detail is due to the skill, foresight and energy of Russell G. Finn, head of the construction firm of Russell G. Finn & Company of Detroit, and his able corps of assistants, among them notably, John F. Campbell, general superintendent of the Finn company, who had supervision of the work, and his efficient helpers. The bank management is greatly pleased with their new building and the work of its creators and this feeling of satisfaction has been heightened by the congratulatory messages that have been received by them lately from friends and others interested in the progress of the work. Among those who have expressed in writing their pleasure at the Charlevoix County Bank's successful rounding-out of forty years of business existence in this community are A. D. Crimmins, vice-president of the Grand Rapids Na-

NEW TEAM HASN'T FOUND ITSELF YET

GOT A SETBACK IN FIRST GAME OF SEASON

Locals Lose to Pellston by Score of 3 to 0—Opponents Are Strong This Year

Harbor Springs, Pellston and East Jordan league base ball teams were the victors in three Sunday afternoon games. Petoskey has not yet organized a team for the northern league, but efforts are being made to get one underway.

Harbor Springs won from Rogers City by a score of 16 to 7 at Harbor Springs; Pellston shut out Charlevoix at Pellston, 3 to 0, while East Jordan won, 12 to 0 from Boyne City, errors costing the latter team a much closer count.

Our local base ball team struck an snag in the first game of the season at Pellston (score 3-0). The snag was Claude Miller, ably supported by the best team Pellston has had in the field for years. Miller held the locals to one single and struck out 15 men.

Ebere, pitching for Charlevoix, was nearly as effective as Miller, allowing but four hits and striking out 16, going Miller one better in this respect. The runs in Pellston's half of the seventh, as the result of two infield errors and a fluke home run, which Shields lost in the sun.

Charlevoix has a team that will measure up to any of them and are confident that they will defeat Boyne City on July 3rd at Boyne and East Jordan here next Sunday. The Sunday games will be called at 3:00 p. m. and the admission charge will be 40 cents to all.

The line-up of the local team last Sunday was as follows: Valley, of Saginaw, catcher; Ebere, of Saginaw, pitcher; Perry, of Chittanooga, 1st base; Christy, of Danville, Ill., 2nd base; Malloy, of St. Louis, 3rd base; Callahan, of Detroit, shortstop; Shields, of Albion, right field; Lennox, of Detroit, center field; Cartier, of Charlevoix, left field; Cunningham, of Charlevoix, second string pitcher and Franklin Lewis, of Charlevoix substitute. Only two of the men—Shields and Christy, played on last year's team.

The new suits arrived last week and will be paid for by advertisements of the local merchants, one ad. painted on the back of each suit.

STARTS ITS SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

BEACH HOTEL BEGINS SEASON WITH A DANCE

Evening of Fourth of July To Be Marked by Brilliant Initial Affair

The management of the Beach Hotel have issued invitations for a dance to be held on the evening of the Fourth of July in the hotel ballroom. People of the town and cottagers have been included in these invitations and the affair as planned is to be a brilliant event. Manuel I. Fiegen's seven piece orchestra, which has been secured by the management to play evenings at the Beach this summer, will furnish the music.

Several notable features have been added to the hotel this summer. A portion of the conservatory at the west end of the building has been converted into an attractive little tea room to be known as the "Parrot" room. Decorations in this room will follow a red, white and blue motif, the hangings, figured with large red and white parrots, draped from blue rods, flowers pots and ash trays in the shape of parrots, etc. Mr. Bondi, the Beach's famous chef, is with them again this season and will stand ready to cater to the guests up until one a. m. each day. Fiegen's orchestra will play every evening from 8:30 until 11:30 and on Saturday evenings from 8:30 to 12:00, when it will be augmented by four extra pieces. This orchestra has played three seasons for the Harbor Point Club and at such hotels as the La Salle and Cooper-Carlton of Chicago.

Leading out of the ballroom at the northwest corner of the building and on the brow of the bluff, directly overlooking the lake, has been prepared one of the prettiest little tea gardens imaginable. Rustic seats and vine-covered arbors surround a concreted lily pond and whether veiled by fine surrounding trees from the afternoon sun or softly lighted at night, with lamps of red, green, blue and yellow, makes a most attractive rendezvous for the dancers by night and a restful retreat in the heat of the day.

At the opposite side of the ballroom are located the soda fountain and tables. An experienced dispenser has been secured for the summer and prices have been reduced to a popular figure.

Miss Lela B. Brindley is social hostess this season—a charming personality with tact and resourcefulness, who will see to it that social features are not allowed to lag behind the balance of the hotel's excellent service.

At least 100 guests are expected to have their names on the register by the Fourth and present indications are that the season will be fully up to standard, with an evident tendency on the part of the patrons to remain later in the season than formerly.

Political Announcement

I respectfully submit to the Republican electors of Charlevoix county that I am a candidate for nomination at the September primary for the office of Register of Deeds.

"PENNSYLVANIANS" CLIMBING TO FAME

BELVEDERE'S ORCHESTRA BOASTS A FINE REP

Had Its Humble Beginnings In the Ambitions of Four of U. of P. Freshmen

Frank Winegar's Pennsylvanians have returned to Charlevoix to play an eight week engagement at the Belvedere Hotel. They have just completed a most successful season in Philadelphia, where they have been playing all winter and at the same time attending the University of Pennsylvania.

This orchestra has had a varied and interesting past. Two years ago, four boys, then freshmen in the University of Pennsylvania, formed the nucleus of the "Pennsylvanians." They were Frank Winegar, Will Simmer, Milt Voloshin and Clay Boland. These boys had had a great deal of professional experience previous to that time, and with a will to some day become one of the great orchestras of the country, set to work to accomplish that end. The orchestra, thus formed, grew both in size and popularity, and when the boys finished their first year in college they were rewarded with a trip to Europe by the University. Upon their return to the states they played an engagement at the Belvedere Hotel which ended successfully. The following year they were back at college and attained even greater success. The orchestra was augmented to ten pieces. It played the most exclusive affairs that Philadelphia had to offer and the name "Pennsylvanians" was on everyone's lips. They broadcasted over radio through Gimbel Brother's department store all winter and their popularity grew by leaps and bounds. Trips were frequently made to other colleges in the states of Pennsylvania and New York, where they played the yearly "Hop" at these schools. The boys even played vaudeville where they would be called on at times to fill in a vacant "spot" in a bill. At a competition of thirty acts, composed of undergraduates of the university, the "Pennsylvanians" won first place.

But perhaps the greatest achievement of all was the association with Ted Weems, conductor of the famous Victor Recording Orchestra. The Pennsylvanians played as a second orchestra to Weems's first orchestra, and played much of his outside work. Through this association the "Pennsylvanians" received much valuable instruction.

The management of the Belvedere Hotel, in an effort to give its patrons the best music possible, has secured the "Pennsylvanians" for the second season. The size of the band has been cut down to seven men, the same as last summer. They will play two concerts daily in the hotel lobby and three dances a week in the Belvedere casino. The other three nights of the week the orchestra is free to play outside engagements. Much of this time has already been taken up. The boys are all hard at work, hoping to make this season even more successful than last. Their motto is "return engagement."

The personnel is as follows: Milt Voloshin, violin; Beryl Retling, piano; Frank Winegar, banjo; Lyall Bowen, sax; Herbert Spencer, sax; Robert Metzger, trombone; Will Simmer, drums.

DINNER-CONCERT TO BE MEMORABLE

Belvedere's Opening Feast To Be Followed by Dance

Invitations have been issued by the management of the Belvedere Hotel for its formal opening dinner and concert, which will be held on Friday evening, July 4th, from seven until eight-thirty. Music is to be furnished by the famous Winegar "Pennsylvanians."

Already, a large number of reservations have been made. The announcements have enclosed with them a return card to be mailed to the hotel management not later than today, stating whether or not they expect to be present at the dinner. All local friends of the Belvedere are welcome, even if they have not received a formal invitation, but the management would appreciate being informed not later than today or tomorrow at the latest as to whether or not they will come.

A majority of the club members will be present at the dinner and some of the officers of the club will speak as well as, possibly, some of the older members. After the dinner, there will be a dancing party at the casino to which all guests at the dinner are invited.

EAST JORDAN COW AT HEAD

S. ULVIND'S JERSEY TOPS ASSOCIATION FOR MAY

George Meggison's High Herd Is Also Composed of Jerseys and Averaged 40.4 lbs.

A grade Jersey cow, from the herd owned by S. Ulvind, of East Jordan, heads the list of high producers of the cow testing association of this county for the month of May. This cow freshened on April 18th and during the month of May produced 1,360 lbs. of milk and 66.64 lbs. of butter fat. The second high cow in the "matured cow" class is owned by Ed Jensen, of Wallon Lake. His grade Holstein made 63.58 lbs. of butter fat.

In the four year old class, one of William Wither's grade Holsteins came first with 60 lbs. of butter fat and Dan Swanson's grade Holstein came second with 46 lbs of butter fat.

In the three year old class, another one of William Wither's P. B. Holsteins came first with 52 lbs. of butter fat and the second place goes to one of Art Shepherd's grade Holsteins.

In the two year old class, Siloam Rowena Girl, owned by the Orchard Bay Farm, of Charlevoix, has 56.74 lbs. of butter fat to her credit. It will be noticed that in this case, as in many others, the two year old cows produce more than the three year old. The reason in most cases is that a three year old cow is not in as good condition after his first year's work as she was before she began and is not able to come up to her first year's record.

George Meggison's grade and pure bred Jerseys have the best average production in butter fat for the month of May. The seven cows produced an average of 40.4 lbs. of butter fat. The Jerseys in this association are few and far between, but they are being well represented among the high producers of this association.

The average production of the 282 cows in this association (of which 35 are not milking) is 27.1 lbs. of butter fat and 645 lbs. of milk. The average test is 4.2 per cent butter fat.

There are 40 cows producing over 40 lbs. of butter fat per month.

SORORITY GIRLS LIKE CHARLEVOIX

THEIR VISIT IS AN ENJOYABLE EXPERIENCE

Social Activities Include Tournaments, Auto Rides and a Boat Trip to Mackinac

The First Triennial Convention of the national women's fraternal organization, known as the Alpha Epsilon Phi Sorority, commenced the first day of its five-day sojourn at the Charlevoix Inn on June 30th, with seventy-five delegates, representing twenty chapters located in all parts of the United States.

Although the 30th was the opening day of the convention, most of the delegates arrived in Charlevoix on the 29th. The first business meeting was held on Monday afternoon in the Inn casino, overlooking Pine Lake. A reception followed on Monday evening at the hotel. As the trip is designed to combine business with pleasure, the second business session on Tuesday morning, July 2nd, was followed by an automobile ride, in cars provided by the Petoskey chamber of commerce, to the latter's city and around Little Traverse Bay. Tuesday afternoon and evening was occupied by a chapter sing and picnic supper which took place at Pine Point, with Thyra W. Amos, dean of the University of Pittsburgh, and her assistant, Miss Helen Rush, who acted as judges of the singing contest.

Today's business session was followed by golf, tennis and bridge tournaments and tonight will be "stunt" night. Tomorrow (Thursday, July 3rd) will be occupied with an all-day boat trip to Mackinac Island on the Manitou, a "special unique night program" having been arranged. The convention closes Friday with a business meeting, completion of the athletic program and a banquet in the evening, at which prizes will be awarded to victors in the various athletic and social contests.

At the business meeting on Tuesday, presided over by the convention chairman, Miss Edith Lazarus, of Pittsburgh, the following national officers were elected: President, Miss Freda Rosenthal, of Flint, to succeed Mrs. Alice Borchard Green, of Montclair, N. J.; vice-president, Mrs. Martin Kaplan, of New York City, to succeed Miss Rose Oltsky, of Waukegan, Ill.; secretary, Miss Dorothy Slepyan, of Chicago, who succeeds Mrs. Stella Caplan Bloom of New York City, and treasurer, Miss Edith Lazarus, of Pittsburgh, Pa., to succeed Mrs. Jeanette Armstrong Slatoff, of Newark, N. J.

Convention officers include Miss Freda Rosenthal, of Flint, chairman of the committee on arrangements; Miss Ethel Saniel, of Pittsburgh, chairman of publicity and acting chairman of finance and Miss Anne Mushkin, of Sioux City, Ia., chairman of business procedure.

Though the convention officially closes on Friday evening, many of the delegates will remain here over the 5th. The delegates, through their spokesman, Miss Saniel, have expressed themselves as delighted with the courteous and kindly reception accorded them at Charlevoix and although the place of next year's convention has not as yet been definitely decided, it is an open secret that a good proportion of them favor this city as a meeting place for 1925.

DOING HEAVIER BUSINESS THIS SEASON

P. M. R. R. Reports More Passenger Traffic Than in 1923

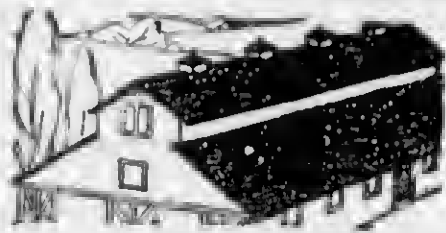

Pere Marquette officials report that passenger traffic on that railroad is heavier than at this time last season, indicating that more summer tourists are coming into the region than for some time.

The new Pere Marquette train from Detroit to Charlevoix and points beyond, inaugurated a week ago, is doing a heavy business, bringing tourists from Ohio and southern Michigan points and from the east into Charlevoix territory. The regular Chicago train on this road is equally well patronized this season.

WASHINGTON LETTER

The great fight in the rapidly approaching Democratic convention will be a religious one, a fight between the Ku Klux Klan and its opponents, a fight between Catholics and anti-Catholics. Wm. G. McAdoo is the Klan candidate. Imperial Wizard Evans, of the Klan is on the ground to put McAdoo over. Pat Harrison, senator from Mississippi, temporary chairman of the convention, will represent according to ex-senator Percy of Mississippi, a solid Klan delegation from that state, the Mississippi convention having thrown out all duly elected anti-Klan delegates and seated Klan delegates in their places. In order somewhat to obscure the extent of the Klan domination, Senator Tom Walsh of Montana, a Catholic, has been chosen permanent chairman. When McAdoo appeared to have lost all chance of the nomination because of the disclosure of his conduct in connection with E. L. Doheny and the Doheny oil interests, his association with and defense of Morse, the indicted convict who was awarded ship-building contracts under the McAdoo administration, and his securing for the Republic Iron & Steel Co., $600,000 rebate on taxes, a rebate granted McAdoo as attorney by the men who, McAdoo as secretary of the treasury, had appointed to office, the New York democrats began to press the claims of Gov. Al Smith, a Catholic. Immediately the chances of McAdoo's securing the nomination began to revive. "Better a crooked lawyer than a Catholic Governor" was the argument which won for McAdoo a revived support. Accordingly, Imperial Wizard Evans is in New York carrying on a secret but not less potent campaign to accomplish McAdoo's nomination.

American politics have, in the main, been so free from religious bitterness that it is a matter of intense regret to many of the foremost and the cleanest Democrats that this issue seems certain to dominate their convention this year and all of them have been begging their friends among the Washington correspondents to "soft-pedal" on the religious question. They have been hoping—against hope—to subordinate the issue—or at least to keep it from coming into the public view. Even the press has hesitated to say much about it thus far, fearing to stir up sectarian strife. But the giant strides which McAdoo, with the Klan backing, has been making have produced a determination on the part of those democrats who hate Klan domination of the democracy to make the at-

BURDENS LIFTED

From Charlevoix Backs—Relief
Proved by Lapse of Time.

Backache is a heavy burden; Nervousness, dizziness, headache. Rheumatic pain; urinary ills; All wear one out. Often effects of kidney weakness. No use to cure the symptoms, Relief is but temporary if the cause remains. If it's kidneys, cure the cause. Doan's Kidney Pills are for kidney ills. Read about your neighbor's case. Here's Charlevoix testimony. The kind that can be investigated. Mrs. Leo Allard, 210 W. Upright Ave., says: "Kidney trouble had me feeling miserable. There was a constant, dull, heavy ache in the small of my back and my kidneys acted irregularly. Doan's Kidney Pills, which I purchased at Metcalf's Drug Store, cured me in a splendid manner." Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Allard had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

tempt to adopt a clearcut and emphatic anti-Klan plank and that, it is admitted, will bring the first real fight of the convention. The McAdoo forces, nearly 600 strong, will resist such a plank to the last ditch, as they must if they are to continue to enjoy the Klan support—without which McAdoo could get nowhere.

Realizing the peril which the two-thirds rule is to their candidate the McAdoodle-ites have been striving to have it abrogated and nominations made by a majority, as is done in the Republican convention. Opponents of the Crown Prince promptly replied that they were entirely willing to throw overboard the two-thirds rule if the other side would throw over the unit rule, whereby a majority of a delegation can compel the minority to vote for a candidate they abhor. As many of the delegations counted for McAdoo contain sizable minorities which, if free, would never vote for him, his supporters promptly declined consent to abolition of the unit rule, and it seems improbable they can get rid of the two-thirds rule without letting the tail go with the hide. That the Klan, the League of Nations and rum will constitute the big and difficult issues of the democratic convention is generally conceded.

Bob La Follette has been having a terrible time trying to prevent the Farmer-Labor Progressive convention, dominated by Wm. Z. Foster and his fellow socialists, from endorsing La Follette for the presidency. La Follette realizes perfectly that an endorsement by the socialists, who captured the convention, would only hurt him with the really progressive farmers and workers of the country. On the other hand, Foster and his ilk, I. W. W.'s, and all, recognize La Follette as nearer their ideal for president than any other man who could possibly secure the serious consideration of any considerable body of voters. La Follette insulted the Farmer-Labor-ites repeatedly but even though he finally awarded a direct endorsement, and the convention nominated Duncan McDonald, Wm. Z. Foster announces that if La Follette will repent and play with his crowd he can still have their votes.

POULTRY

Green Feed for Layers

Needed During Winter

Green feed for hens in the winter will make them lay better, besides being one of the cheapest foods for the poultryman to use.

If possible, get some mangel beets. Cut them into pieces and put on a stick which is driven in the ground, or set up on the floor of the poultry house. This will give the chickens a chance to pick off the beet. One or two mangels, depending on the size, should be allowed every 25 birds. Mangels can be stored easily, so that they will keep throughout the entire winter.

Sprouted oats also supply green-food which is very satisfactory. The oats thing to remember is not to let the oats sprout too long. Best results have been found with young sprouts that are green and tender. Care must be taken not to let it become moldy, as this poisons chickens. If mold persists it can be overcome by sprinkling with the sprouting water ten drops of formaldehyde. Formaldehyde is not injurious to the chickens in this quantity.

Soaked oats will help out if the trouble of sprouting is too great. Alfalfa leaves which have been dried and then covered with hollering water to "green" them, are also good and palatable.

The use of these succulent feeds will increase the egg production and will reduce the feeding costs.

Sour Skim Milk Given as

Cause of High Production

Some time ago the Missouri College of Agriculture through the department of poultry husbandry started an experiment to determine the cause of the high production secured from laying hens that were given an abundance of sour skim milk. A study of the analysis of sour skim milk showed it to contain 90.77 per cent water, 0.10 per cent fat, 3.03 per cent milk sugar (lactose), 0.56 per cent lactic acid, 3.65 per cent protein and 0.79 per cent milk ash or salts. It was assumed that water alone was not the stimulating factor. The fat content seemed too low, and the distribution of carbohydrates did not point to milk sugar as a possible source of the problem. A comparison was made of rations containing lactic acid, milk salts, protein-free sour skim milk and sour skim milk. The results showed conclusively that lactic acid in the same solution as in sour skim milk is valueless for egg production. Besides both milk salts and ash entirely failed to stimulate increased egg production. The results all seem to indicate that it is the proteins or milk curd that is the valuable part of sour skim milk. For two years the protein-free sour skim milk has not given as satisfactory production as the sour skim milk.

Guinea Quite Valuable

Fowl to Have on Farm

So far, guineas occupy a back place in the poultry industry. Yet they are a valuable fowl.

When they are known they will come into their own with honor.

They are among the very best "bug rustlers" we have, living almost entirely on insects, doing very little damage to growing crops.

As for eating purposes, the guineas are claimed by some people to surpass the chicken in flavor and juiciness. Although having dark flesh, the young fowls are tender. The meat of the grown fowls is not as dry, when baked, as that of chicken or turkey.

The guinea hens are always known by their plaintive "potrack, potrack, potrack," while the rooster, when disturbed by a hawk or strange dog, lets forth such a shrill chatter that it puts one's nerves on edge.

Guineas begin laying the first of May and lay all through the summer, the eggs selling on the market for as much as hen eggs.

POULTRY NOTES

Do not feed the goslings until 48 hours old, but give them tender, finely cut grass and water.

Turkeys for breeding should be in good breeding condition; if fat the eggs are largely infertile.

Some geese will hatch two broods of goslings in a season if well managed. Goose eggs require 28 to 31 days to hatch.

The young are chicks until their sex can be distinguished or possibly even a little longer. A brood is a collection of chicks, cared for by one hen or in a single brooder.

A stewing chicken weighs about three pounds and a roaster four pounds or more.

A constitutionally strong bird, one that passes through the molt quickly, and easily, is a better layer than one that develops all kinds of ailments during this period.

Individual hens with pale-colored shanks, in such breeds as the Rock, Wyandottes, Reds and Leghorns, are considered better layers than those with bright-yellow shanks.

CHILDREN IN SUMMER

School is now out not to resume for many weeks. What shall the children do with their time? Shall they idle it all away, or can they have just as much fun, more physical upbuilding and a little more mental gain if the lazy days are strung on the thread of a constructive plan?

Summer, say the music teachers, is the best of all times for intensive music study. In six weeks of two lessons a week, two hours' practice a day, a child can accomplish almost as much as in a year of adding music to a crowded school regime. Warm weather limbers up the muscles, freedom from school releases the mental powers.

Summer is the best time to help with the housework. In an hour or two of working right along with mother the best of all practical lessons can be learned, whether in cooking, canning, sewing, self-control or general care of the house. Even the six-year-old can do his stunt, and will learn gladly at this age what may come harder later.

Comradeship in work results also in comradeship in play. If mother is helped, then mother will have more time for picnic or swinging or backyard frolic hours. At the very least, and in the most competently served households, the child should learn in summer to care for his own room.

A little good reading—half an hour a day perhaps—will not come amiss.

What are three or four hours of happily useful activity out of a glorious fourteen? And whether this or some other plan makes up the time budget, it is safe to say the child who lives his vacation in this way rather than by a frittering away of energy on useless laziness or frenzied entertainment will have a better time all the time, and be far more fit in body, mind and soul for the next winter's work.

LOCAL HISTORY

A Kansas citizen recently wrote to his newspaper to complain of the fact that 50 students in a class at the state university were wholly ignorant of a matter of local history. Kansas, it seems, once had a loyal and farsighted citizen who devoted many years of effort to planting elm trees in the open spaces which are now Topeka. The trees did not grow easily and many fellow-citizens ridiculed the idea that they ever would grow there. Today many of the streets of that city are embowered with elms and they are even to be found on the edges of the prairie lands outside the town.

In some ways this is a small matter to call history and to expect college students to be familiar with. Yet ignorance of this tree-planter's labor of love and vision is deplorable because it is indicative of a like ignorance of many more important things of national as well as local history.

The erection of monuments to all citizens who have contributed to a community's upbuilding is of course foolish and extreme. But a knowledge of the facts of a community's growth is very desirable. Too many thriving, up-to-date towns are wholly unaware of the truly inspiring traditions and historical facts of their origin and development. Why not go in for a short course on local history?

THE CAMERA AS JUDGE

"The quickness of the hand deceives the eye." Likewise of the feet. And in athletics as in juggling. Wherefore the movie camera this year is to be made supreme judge of intercollegiate track and field games.

In important meets there will be an official camera man to photograph the finish of every dash, run, hurdle race, etc., developing his films and having them ready immediately after the contest. In every close finish his record will be final. No matter what the judges may have decided from ocular observation, if their decision is not upheld by the finer testimony of the film they will be overruled, if any contestant wins by as little as a nose or a finger's length, the film will probably show it. The innovation is the result of contested decisions, which proved the unreliability of the human eye.

This conquest of the motion camera in the realm of sports is no less striking than its invasion of the microscopic world. It may yet play a big part in lawsuits of many kinds, giving detailed testimony more trustworthy than that of the most honest and intelligent witness.

FARM STOCK

LONG-HAIRED GOATS GROWING IN FAVOR

While goats are among the oldest of domestic animals, in our own country they occupy a minor place in the farm economy. Yet "specialized" goats, or "special purpose goats," we might better call them, can be made a profitable adjunct to the live stock program of most farms.

Growing in popularity and importance is the Angora goat, or long-haired "mohair" goat. These animals are great weed and brush eradicators, and can be advantageously pastured with horses, cattle, sheep or swine. They are a godsend in timbered country and to clear-land of weeds and brush. They are as easily kept as other farm animals and are usually hardy and rather free from disease than ordinary live stock.

Well-bred Angoras are handsome, attractive and intelligent animals that are interesting to raise and profitable for those who give them proper attention. Certain strains of Angoras are clean, white, non-mucous non-odoriferous animals that are a delight to young and old. These specially bred Angoras grow very long fleeces, and it is the extra long mohair that commands the fancy price. Some of this product is said to be worth as high as $30 a pound. This means the longest portion of the clip, which is sorted and graded at shearing time and sold as extra long staple. The shorter mohair sells for $2 a pound—sometimes more, and sometimes less, depending upon the market.

In these days when many farmers are looking around for ways and means to diversify without materially increasing their farm equipment, the Angora ought to appeal to the enterprising as a source of profit—especially on cheap or rough lands and on farms not quoted at fancy prices.

Sheep Give Big Profits Besides Clearing Land

Thirty farmers who raised sheep chiefly for the purpose of clearing land in 1923 made a profit of $26,823.53, compilation of their reports to Oklahoma A. and M. college shows.

Fourteen of the sheep raisers said feed for the year did not cost them anything, because the animals lived on weeds and waste. They did not include in their profits the value of the land the sheep cleared, or the cost of clearing by other methods.

Combined flocks of the group of 30 farmers counted 3,617 ewes January 1 last year, P. H. Lowery, live stock specialist in the extension division of the college, reports. They were valued at $22,765, thus showing the profit to be nearly 120 per cent.

From the ewes on hand, 3,115 lambs were raised which sold for $21,833.28. Wool shorn from the combined flocks weighed 23,477 pounds, and was sold for $8,450.45. Sixteen members of the group made a total charge of $3,671.20 for feed, reports to Lowery show.

Easy Way to Drive Sows to Prevent Excitement

At farrowing time it is not always an easy matter to drive a heavy brood sow from the yard into the pen in the hog house where she is to farrow. To save time and undue excitement of the sow, use a simple device that can easily be made.

Make a bottomless crate of light but strong boards. The length of the crate ought to be at least six feet, a little longer than the largest sow to be handled and a little higher than the sow stands, say about three and one-half feet. The crate need not be clumsy or heavily made. It must be light enough for one man to carry.

When the sow to be put in the pen is eating or nosing about the ground, step up with the crate and quietly slip it over her. As she cannot turn around in it, she will walk forward; and as she walks, a man can guide her to the door of the pen, lift up one end of the crate and allow her to walk into the pen.

Live Stock Notes

Do not expect to develop pure breeds with scrub treatment.

Scrub cattle on scrub pasture is scrub business policy.

Under present conditions the hog will pay more for corn than will any denier.

Ewes producing twin lambs must be well fed and looked after in order to grow their lambs profitably.

Feed mature horses first and second cutting alfalfa, which is free from mold and dust. Never feed wet alfalfa hay to horses.

The man who constantly strives for the lowest possible cost of production is the man who will enjoy the greatest measure of success in the future.

The sow with pigs should have plenty of feed rich in protein. This may be had by feeding milk, clover, alfalfa, soy beans, wheat bran, shorts flaked oil meal, or tankage.

The "kiddies" playground apparatus on the beach gets our heartiest commendation. Organized play with creditable equipment is one of the best means of keeping boys and girls fit.

We note some splendid "Charlevoix the Beautiful" signs. They are well placed and undoubtedly will bring to our city many who might have gone elsewhere. In fact there is being done a magnificent lot of fine advertising which ought to receive general commendation.

AT THE MOVIES

PALACE THEATRE

Come and Meet the Screen's Happy Couple

Come and meet the happy couple of filmdom—Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lloyd. Yes, they are no other than the spectacular comedian, Harold, and his pretty little leading lady, Mildred Davis.

Harold and Mildred are coming to the Palace Theatre Saturday and Sunday in the seven-reel Pathe comedy, "Safety Last," and the big event of their lives took place shortly after the completion of the production.

This delightful romance of the silver screen began about three years ago when Mildred joined the Hal Roach forces and made her first appearance with Harold in the two-reel comedy, "From Hand to Mouth." A warm friendship sprang up between the young people resulting in merry wedding bells. And, "Safety Last," by the way, is the last picture in which Harold and Mildred will be seen together, for Mrs. Harold Lloyd is to star in her own right in feature pictures.

It is a fitting thing that "Safety Last" tells one of the most charming love stories ever presented in a picture. As the boy, head over heels in love, Harold gets into the most trying difficulties. In fact, Lloyd climbs the side of a twelve story building, and runs into more hair-raising situations than anyone could imagine. But his reward is winning the love of his screen sweetheart, The Girl, and, incidentally, Mrs. Harold Lloyd. Come and wish them loads of happiness!

"Little Johnny Jones"

The race track and the queer denizens it harbors—all the intrigues, betting, romance and speculation followed there, fortunes won and lost in the twinkling of an eye—figures as the setting of the strong comedy-drama announced by the Palace Theatre management. It is the famed "Little Johnny Jones," which comes for a two day's run, starting Monday, July 7.

This is a Warner Brothers classic of the screen, an adaptation of the popular stage play of the same name written by George M. Cohan himself around the career of Tod Sloan, America's most renowned jockey.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

"The Little Church Around the Corner," coming to the Majestic Theatre on Saturday and Sunday is a screen adaptation from the well-known stage play of Charles Blaney. Clara Windsor has the feature role and heads an all-star cast.

Bulletin Issued on Watermelons

Handling of Product Is Precarious on Account of Many Factors.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

"Watermelons." That is the name of a new bulletin just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. The subject of watermelons is a big one, but the author of this bulletin has covered the ground thoroughly. The handling of watermelons is extremely precarious, he says, on account of the many factors that govern their sale on the market. Overproduction is one of the chief causes of loss, but weather conditions at the market are perhaps a more important factor. Cool, rainy weather will cause breaks of the market, while clear, hot weather will invariably stimulate the demand. Considerable losses are also caused by diseases which have their origin on the farm, but develop during transit.

Increase Yield and Quality.

Under existing conditions any decided increase in the acreage planted to watermelons for shipment, for the present at least, would be unwise, but there is great opportunity for improvement of the yield and the quality of the melons. Watermelon as a rule should not be grown on the same land often more than once in ten years, in order to avoid losses from disease. Plant on new land wherever possible and avoid the use of barn or feed-lot manure where either refuse melons or hay, cut from melon fields, have been fed during the previous season. They respond to the use of commercial fertilizer, the amount being governed by the character of the soil and the cost of the fertilizer. Melons grown for the market should be thinned to approximately two on each vine or hill, in order to get marketable size, the pruning being done when the vines are dry. The vines themselves should be cut back or pruned.

Watermelons should not be gathered until reasonably ripe, but not over-ripe. They should be clipped from the vines by means of a sharp knife, leaving the stems as long as possible, and hauled to the shipping point without injury to the skin or bruising. Melons should always be banded and loaded into the cars the same day that they are clipped from the vines.

Ship in Clean Cars.

Watermelons should be shipped only in clean cars provided with at least three inches of dry bedding, and in case of box cars or ventilated cars a lining of paper around the walls is desirable, although not absolutely essential. In sections where stem-end rot is prevalent, watermelons should be handled with extreme care to avoid injury. Only melons with fresh green stems should be loaded, and the stems should be redipped and treated to prevent the development of stem-rot in transit. Melons should be handled carefully throughout, snugly packed in the cars, and should reach the market without unnecessary delay.

The profits accruing from watermelon growing are not large; therefore all items of expense in their production should be kept as low as possible consistent with good cultural and handling methods. Sudden expansion of the acreage planted is undesirable, and usually results in extremely low prices.

A copy of this bulletin, Farmers' Bulletin No. 1394, Watermelons, may be secured, as long as the supply lasts, from the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Night Pastures Favored for Cattle and Horses

A night pasture for dairy cattle and horses saves some time every morning and good effects can be noticed on the stock. The cows will do much better if they can spend the night on pasture from the time the ground has warmed up until early fall. It isn't possible to have a night pasture on every farm. In such a case, it is better to spend a little time rounding the stock up in the morning than to not let them out at all. Some object to letting their work horses out at night on pasture. A horse may spend a little more, but seem to keep in better health the year round and takes much less care when given the run of a pasture. This does not mean to not give them an evening feed. We give our horses the regular feed in the barn when at work. On idle days they are turned out pasture and given a feed at night if they come up. When a horse can roll on the pasture sod he requires very little currying.

Carbonic Acid Vapor Is Very Poisonous in Silo

Carbonic acid gas is formed through the fermentation of corn in a silo. This gas is very poisonous. Being heavier than air, it will settle at the bottom of the silo and, unless some provision is made to let this flow out of the silo, it is dangerous for persons to enter. In the case of an above ground silo, leaving the door open at the silage level permits this gas to escape, and there is no danger. With a pit silo this escape is impossible, and the proper method to pursue is to start up the silage cutter and blower so as to agitate the air and mix good air with the carbonic acid. Another method has been to take a branch of a tree and stir up this carbonic acid gas so that it will disappear into the air.

ABOUT UNCOOKED FOODS

The raw faddist didn't know why raw food seemed to be so healthful; but he knew he could cure anything that flesh was heir to with raw foods. Today we know that many raw foods, such as greens of all kinds, cabbage, carrots and turnips contain life-giving substances called vitamins, which are (if eaten uncooked, not lost in the water of cooking or destroyed by heat) most valuable in keeping the body in good health.

One doesn't object to raw cabbage, carrots, lettuce, water cress and an occasional turnip, but one hesitates to eat uncooked beets or potatoes; in fact, they will need to be well-mashed in good rich salad dressing to be very popular with the masses.

Another point which the raw food supporters will tell us is we all eat too much, which we know, and that, when eating raw foods, one feels satisfied with a much smaller amount of food. Thus we may save food and money by being a raw food eater.

We are told also that every bit of such food is assimilated; you find yourself feeling good after the meal, brain clear, wits nimble, and when retiring time comes, sleep like the proverbial log. There is really something worth while in this; it is at least worth a trial.

Cabbage Salad.—Take a hard, crisp head of cabbage, chop one—or better, shred very fine; add salt and a few spoonfuls of sugar, a generous amount of thick, sweet cream to moisten, a dash of vinegar; mix well, and enjoy a most appetizing salad.

A dessert of a handful of dates and nuts will be easy to prepare and serve, and to the busy housewife who has everything to do—a great comfort. These foods are no more expensive, when time and material are counted, than many of the so-called simple desserts.

SMALLPOX THREATENS THE ENTIRE STATE

People Are Urged to Be Vaccinated At Once

An epidemic of virulent small pox is spreading throughout Michigan. Detroit alone reports 1,501 cases, while throughout various parts of the state there are more than 3,873 cases which have been reported.

Small pox is passed from one person to another. It is the type formerly known as "black small pox." One person can infect an entire community. The only way to protect yourself is to have a successful vaccination. No one who has ever been vaccinated has contracted small pox. Vaccination is safe and will not injure anyone. Don't depend upon your last vaccination to keep you immune—the effects may have worn off. Don't delay—one case in three is proving fatal. Go to your family physician and be vaccinated, and we will keep small pox out of Antrim county.

Public Health Nurse.

TASTY TIDBITS

It is pleasant occasionally to surprise our family with some choice dish when no company is expected. Here are a few while:

Banana Soup.—Select six ripe bananas, rub them through a sieve, add a pinch of salt, the grated rind of a lemon and place on the heat. When the boiling point is reached add two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch mixed smooth in a little cold milk and stir while adding to the boiling mixture. Cook for eight minutes, stirring all the while. Remove from the heat, cool; add two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice and serve well chilled in bouillon cups.

Parisian Peas.—Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan, add a quart of green peas, mix well, then pour on enough boiling water to barely cover them. Add salt and pepper, the heart of a head of lettuce finely minced, one-half of an onion minced fine, a sprig of parsley also minced. Simmer until the peas are tender, then stir in the yolks of two well-beaten eggs. Reheat carefully, not to curdle the eggs.

Current Pie.—Take one cupful of crushed ripe currants, one cupful of sugar, two egg yolks, a pinch of salt, two tablespoonfuls of flour and one tablespoonful of cold water. Mix all together and cook until smooth and thick. Cool and fill a baked shell. Cover with a meringue made from the two egg whites beaten stiff and three tablespoonfuls of sugar added. Dot with pieces of marshmallow and brown in the oven.

Fresh Fish Chowder.—Take a two-pound fish, clean, remove the bones and cut into small-sized pieces. Prepare one-half dozen potatoes, sliced, three onions also sliced, cover with boiling water and cook all together with the fish. When all are tender season with a little oil or two of fried salt pork cut into dice, add a quart of hot milk and as many milk crackers soaked in hot milk as there are people to serve. Season well and serve hot, in soup plates.

FARM STOCK

TAKE PRECAUTIONS FOR TREATING PIGS

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Ordinarily the castration of young pigs is a simple operation and one which many farmers know how to perform. There are precautions to observe, however, in sanitation and in the case of certain conditions, such as rupture, which should be given more careful consideration than is ordinarily done. If the best results are to be had, the hardness of these animals and their ability usually to withstand such operations favorably often leads the hog grower to consider the operation of castration as one requiring no particular care.

In order that young pigs will continue to gain after the operation without retardation of growth or other ill effects they should be castrated at a time which will allow the wounds to become entirely healed before weaning. At such age pigs are easily handled, the operation is conveniently and successfully performed, and perfect healing of the wounds is facilitated through their being nourished and protected by the sow. Complications, with attendant stunting of growth, which sometimes happens at later ages, are not liable to occur at this age. Castrating before weaning is a good practice.

When possible, cold days should be selected for the operation, and cold, damp weather avoided. The pigs should be kept on a light diet for the 24 hours preceding the operation. The digestive tract should never be distended with feed at the time of operating. A thorough washing of the scrotum with an antiseptic solution of liquor cresolis composuita, or cleaning with soap and water, is a part of the operation which should not be neglected. Extremely irritating solutions are painful to the cut surfaces, and should be avoided. They may cause rubbing of the wounds and so result in greater injury to the parts.

Hemorrhagic Septicemia Hits Neglected Animals

Farm animals that have become scrawny through neglect during winter months are susceptible to disease, says Dr. G. S. Weaver, veterinarian at South Dakota State college. Hemorrhagic septicemia is one of the diseases that is especially active.

Dr. Weaver says that cattle are not the only animals affected by hemorrhagic septicemia, but the disease in cattle is of most importance. The disease at first usually attacks animals that are weakened by some other condition and later the disease will spread from one animal to another. The germs are everywhere present and it only takes certain conditions to bring them out.

Fever is one of the symptoms. However, a fever usually occurs in any contagious disease. Frequently, difficulty breathing is noticed. Possibly pneumonia may occur as a complication. Often the discharges from the animal may be colored with blood. Young animals are the most susceptible.

Treatment consists mainly of prevention. Provide the cattle with shelter, palatable food and warm water. The veterinarian can be of assistance in properly diagnosing the disease. A vaccine is being used with good results.

Man Held Responsible for Cholera Outbreaks

"If you want to see the bird responsible for new outbreaks of hog cholera, look up the owner or caretaker of the sick hogs in which the disease first developed," says I. K. Atherton, a government inspector in charge of hog cholera work in an eastern state. According to his statement the man who accuses sparrows of carrying the infection frequently does so to cover up his own carelessness.

Crows and buzzards may possibly carry the disease, but not if the owner of the dead hogs does his part to burn or bury all carcasses where dogs and birds cannot reach them.

New outbreaks of cholera can invariably be traced to garbage containing bones or meat scraps; to sick animals introduced into the herd or abuse of the double treatment. On rare occasions a careless peddler or similar person may be responsible for the disease, but here again the hog owners are to blame for allowing such irresponsible people near the hog yards.

In one state there has not been a single case of spread of cholera infection in six years from herds in which the outbreak was promptly reported. If birds were spreading the infection they would continue to do so whether or not the disease had been reported to the authorities. After all, the human is the greatest carrier of hog cholera.

Grinding Corn for Stock

Iowa experiments a number of years ago demonstrated that hogs under 200 pounds in weight usually made more economical gain on ear corn than on ground corn. With cattle there is a slight economy in grinding as a rule, but if there are hogs following the cattle, it seems that the expense of grinding is not justified. Dairy cows seem to appreciate ground corn, but neither fattening hogs nor fattening steers will, as a rule, pay for the cost of grinding.

RICHARDSON-ALT- ENBERG NUPTIALS

Popular Local Instructors Were Married on June 21st

Two well-known members of the Charlevoix public school teaching staff were the principals in an attractive marriage ceremony that took place at the home of the bride's parents at Napoleon, Mich., on Saturday, June 21st, when Miss Olive Myra Richardson became the wife of Clarence E. Altenburg, of Lansing. Mrs. Altenburg will be remembered as one of the teachers at the Washington school last year and Mr. Altenburg as science instructor and athletic manager of the high school.

The bridal chorus from Lohengrin was played as the bridal party took its place in the living room, where masses of roses, peonies, syringas and daisies in profusion gave a bow-wow effect.

Using the ring service, Rev. L. S. Slaybough, of Brooklyn, Mich., performed the ceremony at half-past six.

Mrs. Altenburg was attractively gowned in pink changeable taffeta, fashioned on quaint, simple lines. A colonial corsage of pink roses and white sweet peas completed her attire. The maid of honor, Miss Elizabeth Richardson, sister of the bride, wore pink georgette and a colonial corsage of pink roses and pink sweet-peas. Virgil Altenburg, brother of the bridegroom, who is superintendent of schools at Lawrence, Mich., attended the bridal couple as groomsman.

Following a reception, a sumptuous wedding collation was served to more than fifty guests. The bride's table was arranged for eight guests. Lavender and white formed the color motif. Centering the table was a mound of June blooms and foliage.

Among the guests in attendance were Dr. and Mrs. F. F. McMillan and son, Albert, and Charles P. Dagwell, of Charlevoix.

Mr. and Mrs. Altenburg will spend the summer at Pine Lake, near Kalamazoo and both have contracts to teach here again in the fall.

IF YOU SEE MR. REED CALL NEAREST COPPER

His Specialty is Cashing Worthless Checks

Some gentleman, more gifted with cleverness than imbued with ethics is "playing horse" with the Charlevoix State Savings Bank of this city. This individual operates in Ohio, Indiana and Pennsylvania under the alias of "J. F. Parrett" and lately, "J. F. Reed." He flits from place to place in the territory named, drawing worthless checks on the local bank and then making himself scarce before his duplicity can be discovered in that particular spot. His modus operandi or plan of action is to go into a town and purchase a farm or a house, or some other piece of property. In part payment, he tenders a check, drawn on the Charlevoix State Savings Bank for a considerable portion of the purchase price, say $500.00, and before this check can be put through by the bank in that town, he manages to cash a few smaller ones on the strength of the big transaction he has just put across and then becomes conspicuous by his absence.

The bank here has received as many as from one to three checks each day from this source, for the past three weeks, ranging in amount from $20.00 to $1,250.00. Of course, the Charlevoix bank is nothing out, as they merely return the checks, marked "No Funds" and let the irate business men of such towns as Waukena and Tiffin, Ohio, do the heavy worrying. Everybody down that way is looking for "Mr. Reed" and we wouldn't care to be in his shoes when they catch him, either. He has been known to pull off his little stunt in as many as half a dozen places in one town.

The local bank has notified the Michigan Bankers' Association and the wheels are now turning to land "Mr. Reed" in a safe place where stripes, not checks, are the prevailing pattern.

tional Bank, who, although unable to be present, sent his sincere regrets and the best of good wishes for his former fellow-townsmen and professional associates; Mr. and Mrs. George S. Bridge, of Evanston, Ill., brother and sister-in-law of A. F. Bridge, cashier of the new bank; J. G. Wakefield, vice-president of the Corn Exchange Bank of Chicago, who was also present at the opening celebration with Mrs. Wakefield; W. M. Kellogg, cashier of the First National Bank of Traverse City, who sent his regrets along with heartiest congratulations; Hiram S. Cody, vice president of the Chicago Trust Company; H. R. Drew, special service man of the National Bank of the Republic; Leon Chickester of the First State Bank of Petoskey, who was also present at the celebration; the officers, directors and employees of the National Bank of the Republic of Chicago; Eugene Richards, cashier of the Old National Bank of Grand Rapids; R. W. Morse of Lansing, father-in-law of Robert Bridge, the new bank's assistant cashier, and his family; the Charlevoix Association of Commerce and many others.

The success of the celebration may be attributed to the efforts of Mr. H. R. Cady, service man of the National Bank of the Republic of Chicago, in whose charge the arrangements were placed and to the employees of the bank, who worked faithfully until a late hour Friday night—yes, well—even into Saturday morning's small hours, to complete the necessary preparations.

Just as an afterthought, it might be interesting to note that Mr. Finn, in the course of his numerous visits to this city, has become so much impressed with the town and its environs that he is planning to spend several weeks at the Belvedere Hotel this summer, with his family.

WARD SAUNDER WED- DING A FINE AFFAIR

Over Two Hundred People Were Present As Guests

The wedding of Miss Elsie Marie Ward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William O. Ward, of Ironton, to William Mark Saunders, prominent farmer of the Ironton district and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry H. Saunders, took place at the Ironton Congregational church on Saturday, June 28th, at eight p. m., in the presence of the relatives and friends of both the contracting parties.

The bride was gowned in white satin and carried sweet peas. The bridesmaid, Miss Ethel Ward, sister of the bride, wore a dress of blue and carried a similar bouquet. Oakley Saunders, brother of the groom, acted as groomsman, while little Wilson Ward performed the office of ring bearer, and Miss Hilda Ogden and Agnes Brown were flower girls.

The two hundred relatives and friends assembled in the beautifully decorated church while the bridal party entered to the strains of the wedding march, played by Miss Janet Frye, of Chicago, and proceeded to the platform, where the ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. W. Long. Afterwards, all repaired to the grange hall, where a bounteous wedding supper awaited them.

Mr. and Mrs. Saunders received many useful and beautiful gifts. They will make their home on the farm of the groom in Ironton.

TWO MEN DROWN IN PINE LAKE WATERS

Rescuer Dragged Under by His Struggling Friend

A shocking tragedy occurred last Friday night near East Jordan when William Crawford and Lee Nowland of that city sank to their death in the waters of Pine Lake, near the mouth of Monroe Creek, where the unfortunate men and their families were enjoying a beach party.

The men, although having just finished eating a hearty supper, entered the water to bathe and after a while Nowland was taken with cramps. Crawford, plunging in at his friend's cry for help, tried to rescue him but was himself pulled under by the latter's frantic struggles and both drowned. Their bodies were recovered about an hour later.

Crawford, who was about 29 years of age, leaves a widow and two children. Lee Nowland, who is the son of Abe Nowland, of East Jordan, was unmarried.

This is the first reported tragedy of the 1924 season and should serve as a warning to others who may be tempted to treat lightly that cardinal rule of safety first—don't go in the water on a full stomach. To disregard it is suicidal.

This year the meeting is of especial interest and is attended by the state welfare commission and the heads of many public and state institutions for the correction of juvenile offenders.

An effort is being made to adopt more uniform practice for the administration of the mother's pension law throughout the state. This is the twenty-eighth annual meeting of the association. Judge E. E. Gilbert, of Petoskey, is secretary and treasurer. Judge S. A. Correll, of Charlevoix, was unable to attend this year.

MUCH TURKEY LOSS DUE TO BLACKHEAD

A large part of the turkey losses seem to be due to blackhead. Various medicines have been recommended for this disease and recently the Ipecac treatment has received a great deal of publicity in hopes that it might be the long-sought-for cure.

Up to the present time I can locate no cases in our section where the Ipecac treatment has given results sufficiently good enough to prove that it is definitely beneficial, says a writer in the Indiana Farmer's Guide. This being the case, I feel that turkey breeders must still rely on the old methods of preventing disease and not depend upon medicines. Inbreeding must be avoided as it often results in weak poults which are subject to a disease like blackhead. Breeding from mature stock seems to produce more resistant poults than those from young breeding stock.

Turkeys that range more apt to have blackhead as they are often scratching in the dirt of the other birds. Plenty of sour milk in the turkey ration seems to help the poults to resist blackhead. The sour milk is not a cure but it does stimulate a rapid, vigorous growth and this in turn helps to keep down digestive disorders which might weaken the poults and make them subject to blackhead.

It is difficult to raise poults on land where blackhead has been prevalent and some breeders have cleaned up their premises by censing to raise turkeys for a year or two. Then they obtain clean breeding stock and have better success. At present there are many farmers who might have good success with turkeys because none of the birds have ranged on their farm for five or ten years or more and the soil is probably entirely free from the disease.

Profit Made in Guinea Broilers and Roasters

The guinea hen is a good layer, but on account of the wild gamey flavor, the eggs have never had an extensive sale for table use. However, to turn these eggs into young broilers or roasters, a considerable profit will be derived. The flesh is the nearest substitute we have for the wild game.

The guinea is of a roving disposition, and one of the best known destroyers of insects.

The laying season starts in early April and continues until October, the hen laying as many as 120 eggs in a season. In the early part of the season it is not advisable to let the guinea hen hatch a brood, as she is of too restless a nature, and will not give her young the proper attention. But after the first of July, on account of the warm weather, she will be more quiet, and she can be safely entrusted with a brood.

It requires four weeks to hatch out guineas. The hen always hides her nest, and that, too, in some obscure place. As they come off the nest they give a shrill cry, and in this way their hiding place can be detected. All the hens of a flock are apt to lay in one nest, and in taking away these eggs they should not be touched with the hands, for if the hen discovers that the nest has been touched she will desert it and hunt another place. But if the eggs are removed with a stick she will not leave the nest, even if the eggs are taken out nearly every day.

Overcrowding Is One of Most Common Mistakes

Overcrowding is one of the most common mistakes made in growing chickens. Overcrowding of the baby chicks usually corrects itself by the simple method of the chicks dying from day to day until the number that can be accommodated with air is left. Any condition that depletes the vitality of the chick is apt to bring on a looseness of the bowels.

All cases of diarrhea are not the infectious white diarrhea; many of them could have been prevented by providing more room for the chicks; the diarrhea is merely an evidence of overcrowding.

When the young stock have reached the sex-conscious age, the sexes should be separated. Separation of the sexes promotes the growth of each.

Wet Feeds for Chicks

A few breeders say they have good results with wet feeds for baby chicks. Since many breeders fall with this system, we do not recommend it. Clean dry grains after the rolled oats becomes offensive to the chicks is the safest feed. Sour milk is very important in the feeding rations of baby chicks.

Origin of Pekin Duck

The Pekin duck is of Asiatic origin, and was imported to this country from China, about thirty years ago. A traveler who saw them about the streets of Peking mistook them for small white geese at first, but upon finding them ducks, was so impressed with their snow white plumage and noble carriage that he secured some of their eggs. They were brought to Hong-Kong and hatched, and in due time the birds were shipped to New York.

NEW SIDETRACK SHOULD EXPEDITE TRANSPORTATION

Livestock exhibitors at the seventy-fifth annual Michigan State Fair, Detroit, August 29 to September 7, are advised of the construction of a new sidetrack, entering at the north end of the fair grounds. This will be completed long before fair time, says C. W. Dickinson, secretary-manager, thus facilitating rapid movement of livestock in and out of the grounds.

This has been one of the shortcomings of the fair transportation system for years, Mr. Dickinson says, and its correction will be welcome news to those herdsmen who have exhibited at the fair in the past decade.

State Fair Will Aid
Michigan Art This Year, Says Manager

Eager to foster the work of home talent and to encourage Michigan artists, the Michigan State Fair will revert to its 1922 policy of purchasing prizes in the Art department of the approaching seventy-fifth state exposition at Detroit, August 29 to September 7, according to an announcement a few days ago by G. W. Dickinson, secretary-manager.

Over $2,500 in purchase prizes have been set aside for Michigan talent to "shoot" at, Mr. Dickinson says. This policy worked out very well in 1922 but was dropped last year in favor of another plan which did not prove nearly as satisfactory to the fair board from the standpoint of exhibitions by "Michigan's Own."

A committee of outside artists, none of which will be exhibiting, will be named to select the winners. In exhibiting a picture this year, the artist will be called upon to place a price on his work and this will be taken into consideration in determining whose art shall be bought.

The art becomes the property of the fair after its purchase and it is the plan to retain whatever work is purchased until the erection of a suitable art building on the grounds when it will go on display permanently.

Besides the art exhibition which will draw better this year than in past seasons, there will be a lecture course consisting of talks three times daily by experts.

WATER GLASS BEST TO PRESERVE EGGS

Preserving eggs in water glass has become a general practice, and is meeting with perfect success where ever tried, provided it is properly carried on. Remember that if you put in a poor egg, you are going to take out a poor one.

Eggs to be put in water glass should be fresh, sound and clean. They should be gathered daily and preserved the same day on which they are laid. Infertile eggs are conducive to the best success.

The method of preservation is as follows: Take one quart of water glass, which can be secured at any drug store at about $1 per gallon, and mix with ten quarts of water that has been boiled and then cooled. Stir thoroughly and place in a crockery vessel, never using galvanized or tin vessels. Place in a cool, well-ventilated cellar, and add eggs as you gather them from day to day, always keeping the solution one inch above the eggs, and keeping the crock covered with a lid of some kind to prevent too much evaporation.

Eggs preserved in this manner will keep perfectly for one year.

The water glass solution will not injure the hands, so do not be afraid to handle the eggs in the solution. Do not use the solution more than one year.

It is hard to tell a water glass egg from a fresh egg. If the former is properly kept, but by considering the price now and in winter, you can afford to eat three water glass eggs next winter where you could eat only one fresh one, and still have some money left. It will be found hard to tell water glass eggs, but by puncturing the large end with a needle, to allow the air to escape, and allowing the water to come to a boil gradually, you will not experience much trouble. —J. A. Delmurech, Colorado Agricultural College, Fort Collins, Colo.

Increase Yield of Eggs

by Destroying All Mites

Poultry men and farmers sometimes overlook a very important fact. It is that the best of feed, plenty of it, well balanced ration, etc., will not induce hens to lay eggs if they are compelled to roost in houses infested with mites.

The little red insect saps the vitality of the hen by sucking her blood. Hens have actually been killed, virtually eaten alive, by mites. Chickens cannot lay except when their vitality is maintained. Vitality and mites cannot exist in the same hen roost.

Guard against mites by giving all woodwork inside the poultry house a coat of hot whitewash well emulsified.

The roosts and their supports should be painted all over with carbolicum, zendoim, creoline, or kresol. These are all similar products, called by different names by different manufacturers. They are cresol or tar oil disinfectants, and are death to mites, while in no way injurious to the chickens.

The time and cost of carrying out these suggestions will be amply repaid by the hens who will show their appreciation by an increased yield of eggs.

Infertile Eggs Contain

Some Important Elements

Feeding of infertile eggs that have been candled out of an incubator was mentioned in a recent issue of the Orange Judd Farmer. It was suggested that these be cooked and ground up to feed baby chicks. Some complaint is made about the odor of these eggs. Don't let that frighten anyone. If they are thoroughly cooked there is no danger to the chicks. Even the eggs containing dead germs if candled out before they are too far along, make good feed.

The chicks thrive on these ground eggs, and they furnish some important feeding elements. The shells can be ground up with the eggs. Frequently the number of eggs tested out of incubators is small. In such a case, market eggs are usually profitable as a feed for the first two weeks.

Poultry Notes

Head lice kill chicks and poultry.

Sell the males and produce infertile eggs.

Keep brooding baby chicks until they are fully feathered.

You can count your chickens before they hatch if you observe carefully the correct principles of egg selection and incubation.

Wood floors for poultry houses are a little cheaper in first cost, but not easily and are difficult to keep clean and free from vermin.

The location of the poultry house requires very careful consideration, as it has a great deal to do with the convenience of handling and the success with which the work is carried out.

The half-mountain type of poultry house is much used, being very similar in construction to the same type of hog house.

A fiery temper usually gets a cool reception.

is very pretty from the harbor, being very hilly, the hills ending in the sea. All the buildings appear to be very neat, all made of stone with red tile roofs. As I said it is very hilly and everywhere they could stick a foundation they have put a building.

As we came in, it seemed that every boat in the harbor came out to meet us. They were all very friendly, waving their hands and hats and yelling. I remember one boat that came close by. There was a typical Englishman in her, at least I took him for a typical Englishman. He pulled a good attempt at a joke when he yelled up, "Anyone here wants a bottle of Johnnie Walker." I imagine he had a fine time laughing about that; also I can see Mr. Oldham doing the same thing and then laughing.

It wasn't until yesterday, Thursday, that I rated liberty. I went ashore at about 4:30 and got back at about 11:30, and boy, what a good time I had. I didn't have time to get my money changed on board the ship, so I took two dollars in good old American money with me. In the same motor-sailor with me was a fellow from Oregon. We made our leave together. He had some English money with him so we were able to get along. We had walked around for about an hour when a sight-seeing bus asked us if we wished to see the English Naval Academy at Dartmouth. We said we would go, so climbed in. The fare was one dollar in American money, round trip. Dartmouth is about twelve miles from Tor Bay. We made the trip one way in about an hour. The landscape all along the way can be described with only one word, beautiful. All the way over, I don't believe I saw a field larger than three or four acres. Far a boundary line they have none of our ungainly wire or wooden fences, but all hedges or stone walls covered with ivy. This makes it very effective to see one little patch one shade of green, another a little lighter and so on all set apart by dark green hedges. I thought the ride one way was well worth the dollar. After we got to Dartmouth, or rather to Kingsworth, we had to take a little boat across the river to Dartmouth. We all started up to the Royal Naval College all set to see it and compare it with Annapolis. However, when we got to the gate there was a warrant officer, or some such personage, there who told us we could not get in under any conditions. We asked him if there were no way to do it as

STOP THAT BACKACHE!

Many Charlevoix Folks Have Found the Way.

Is a dull, nerve-racking backache wearing you out? Do you feel older and slower than you should? Are you tired, weak and nervous; find it impossible to be happy, or enjoy the good times around you? Then there's something wrong and likely it's your kidneys. Why not get at the cause? Use Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Your neighbors recommend Doan's. Read what this Charlevoix resident says:

Daniel Himebauch, 107 W. Upright Ave., says: "I had a lame back and felt bad a good many times with backache, too. I was bothered by my kidneys being weak and acting irregularly and I had to get up three or four times at night to pass the secretions, which were highly colored and contained sediment. A few boxes of Doan's Pills, bought at Metcalf's Drug Store, fixed me up in a fine way."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills—the same that Mr. Himebauch had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

we were midshipmen from the United States navy and wished to pay an unofficial visit to a similar institution and we again asked him if we could enter the grounds. He said "Yes, over my dead body." We then asked him who we had to see to get permission. He said, "You will have to get a permit from the King, signed by the King himself." Someone then said, "Let's see the King, gang." We finally eked out of him that we might be allowed to enter if we saw or talked to the superintendent, or whatever his title is, but we couldn't see him as he was at home. We could call him up, but the only telephone in town was at the post office and that was closed. Altogether there were about fifty of us, as quite a few came over on the train. We all started back for the post office and stayed there for, I would say, fifteen minutes, when the word came from someone that we had permission to enter. We all went back to the gate and our friend there said we had the liberty of the yard only. I could see that it hurt him terribly to allow us to do so, but he was game and bore up wonderfully for a man of his age.

We had to walk up a steep hill for some little ways before we came to the buildings; we were standing there looking at the bay buildings, when someone called to us to come up to the building. It was a case of follow the leader. When we got there someone or other told us he had instructions to show us the buildings; things were getting along better. He was a rather dumb looking and acting fellow and fortunately for us he was soon substituted by a cadet of the first term. He was very interesting and made our visit enjoyable. He told us everything we wished to know. Here is the gist of what he told us of the way divided into three terms. Now each term is a little different from our conception of the word. Each term things are run there. The year is between forty and fifty boys enter as the Junior Term. They are at the college for three years and nine months, so you see there are always eleven terms. Their age of entrance is very much younger than ours, their age is between thirteen and thirteen and one-half, so you see the oldest or senior term is composed of boys of seventeen. After they have served their time at the college, they join the fleet for the first time as midshipmen. They retain this title for two years, then become commissioned officers. Their system is so different from ours that any comparison is hardly possible, anymore than you could compare a motor-boat with an automobile. Appointments to the college are almost inherited. This cadet told us that nearly all their fathers were naval officers. Not the case with us.

We saw one of their formations. If snap, drill and discipline would make a navy, in any combat we would have with them, we might as well use wooden guns and tin boats. They were all standing around waiting for the bell. When that bell rang, they had all fallen in in ten or fifteen seconds, absolutely no exceptions. Not a word was said, except orders. When they stood at ease, they were as rigid and stiff as if at attention. With us, stand at ease, means to stand at ease, keep one foot in ranks and not to talk; otherwise we can look around and do anything but talk and fall out of ranks. With them the order came "stand at ease," at the word "ease" they all put their left foot back and sideways until the toe touched the heel of the next cadet. At the order "attention," every heel clicked together. When they marched off it was like clock works; everything was snap, snap, snap. I doubt if such snap could ever be put into anything American.

I understand that there is going to be a special trip made up there by an English destroyer taking a party of midshipmen there for a visit next Monday. I trust that they will get a better welcome than did we. We were all quite amused by the way this cadet talked, the adjectives he used. He showed us a huge cup that someone or other won far doing something or other with the remark, "Don't you think this is the most 'hideous' thing." The way he would "hideous," "horrible" and "abominable" was very amusing to us, although he did all unconsciously and unaware of our mirth. He showed us the kennels where there were some dogs, with, "See these atrocious beagles, we have to hunt with them in the winter. That is, we sit down and watch them disappear over the horizon, they are much too swift for us." And the way he would say "damnable" would even shame Mr. Oldham.

Tomorrow a party of us go to London. Leave starts at 10:00 a. m. Saturday and ends at 11:00 p. m. Monday. I expect to take in some of the exposition and all in all, have quite a time of it. The only drawback will be the fact that I won't have enough money to do everything I would like, but I guess that is all right, what more could I ask for. I have also signed up to take a trip to Paris when we hit Brest. I am getting to be some little sight seer, what?

Well, I am getting too sleepy to make the words sound right or straight, so will stop for the now.

Your most loving son,
Edward (Shanahan)"

The above letter covers the first lap of Mr. Shanahan's cruise and it is hoped that we may hear some more about his further adventures, as he writes in very entertaining fashion.

AT THE MOVIES WAS FILMED IN ITALY

Scenes Taken on Exact Locales of F. Marion Crawford Story

"The White Sister," the greatest triumph of Lillian Gish's career, will have its premiere at the Palace Theatre on Saturday and Sunday.

"The White Sister," which is an Inspiration production released by Metro, has been acclaimed one of the most significant films ever made. The story was taken from the famous novel by F. Marion Crawford and screened entirely in Italy and northern Africa.

Rome, Naples, Sorrento, Tivoli, and even Mt. Vesuvius were some of the "locations" used, and the result, according to critics in the larger cities where the picture has played as a two-dollar attraction, is the most beautiful production yet made.

Besides Miss Gish to interpret the thrilling story, the cast includes Ronald Colman, a newcomer to the screen who has scored a sensational success; J. Barney Sherry, a motion picture pioneer; Gail Kane, heroine of many Broadway successes, and thousands others drawn from the ranks of European players.

Presenting a brilliant cast of prominent screen players, headed by winsome Colleen Moore, "Through the Dark," from Jack Boyle's "Boston Blackie" story, a Cosmopolitan production released through Goldwyn Cosmopolitan, is described as one of the greatest crook photoplays ever brought to the screen. The new film opens on Tuesday, at the Palace Theatre.

"Through the Dark," is a crook picture that should find an appeal among all classes of film fans. That love levels all ranks and that the straight path is the only one to follow are the twin theses of the story. The film is replete with action and dramatic thrills and moves swiftly from the interior of the famous San Quentin prison through the haunts and dives of Frisco's Chinatown. How "Boston Blackie," after making a realistic escape from prison is led to give up the life of crime that has made his name famous throughout crookdom, furnishes a succession of melodramatic thrills that vie with any ever brought to the screen.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

Florence Vidor and Monte Blue, two of the most talented persons now gracing the silver screen, have the featured parts in "Main Street," the screen adaption of Sinclair Lewis' novel, announced by the Majestic Theatre management for a run of two days beginning Saturday. It is doubtful if any other story has caused such a ripple of comment as has "Main Street." Even now, several years after its publication, it has its hold on the people of these states. Gopher Prairie has become as familiar as a fairy tale, and a synonym for everything good, bad and indifferent in a Main Street town, while Carol Kennicott, the young heroine, now symbolizes all women with the crusading instinct who came to small towns with a desire to make it more realistic.

"Main Street" is the story of Carol Kennicott's fight to make the natives of Gopher Prairie accept her ideas, spruce up, become advanced, and in short, change into a big town. Supporting Florence Vidor and Monte Blue in the cast are: Harry Myers, Noah Berry, Louise Fazenda, Robert Gordon, Josephine Crowell, Gordon Griffith, Otis Harlan and Alan Hale. Harry Beaumont directed.

System in Feeding Pigs to Be Used for Breeding

There should be system in feeding pigs that are to be used for breeding, and that system should have for its purpose rapid growth and early maturity; but, at the same time, they should be fed far growth of frame and bone—not fattened on corn. In addition a limited amount of fibrous food should be given with each feed. Alfalfa is among the best. The leaves, when moistened, are greatly relished.

THE URGE TO "GET AWAY"

The battle of the vacation resorts is on with enough spoils for distribution to assure victory to all of the combatants. This annual battle is waged to decide whether the summer vacationists will go to the mountains, to the seashore, automobile touring, to the summer cottage, camping, transcontinental railroad sight-seeing or touring abroad. Next fall it will be learned as heretofore that the vacationists have gone to all of these places.

There are some people who enjoy going to the same resort, in the same way and at the same time every year, but the greater portion of the American populace has an insatiable appetite for the novel and strange in vacation resorts as well as in everything else. So nine out of ten of us will go to the seashore one year, to the mountains another year and motor touring on still another year.

Another phase of the summer vacation is that strange, unexplainable urge which makes everybody at vacation time wish to get away from the scene of his labors. People who live at the seashore 50 weeks in the year go to the mountains or abroad in vacation time. The mountain dwellers flock down to the seashore resorts on the vacation excursions and the European and Asiatic probably come to America, while Mr. and Mrs. United States are vacationing abroad. A definition for the word vacation might well be "a sojourn away from home," although Webster gives it as an intermission from stated employment.

The only available explanation for the vacation wanderlust is the propensity of the American to become bored with his surroundings and to crave new hunting grounds. Perhaps it is a twentieth century outcropping of the pioneer instinct of our frontier-pushing forefathers.

FIRST OF SERIES OF WEEKLY DANCES

"The Vagabonds" Furnish Music for Hallett Inn Affairs

Next Friday evening will mark the beginning of a series of weekly dances to be given at the Hallett Inn this summer. These dances were started a few years ago and they have grown more popular each year.

The main feature of the dance will be the introduction of "The Vagabonds," an orchestra composed of six pieces, all the members of which are artists on their various instruments. "The Vagabonds" are booked out of Indianapolis, Ind. They have played for the Elks clubs in Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky and for many other organizations and communities in these states. During the past winter, this orchestra played a season engagement at "The Winter Garden" in Evansville, Ind. and it was there that a friend of Mr. Hallett heard them and notified him of their wonderful playing ability. The orchestra was engaged by the Petoskey-Bay View country club to furnish music for their opening last Thursday evening. Their music was so pleasing that they have been engaged for the season.

Dancing will start at the Hallett Inn at nine o'clock and will continue until twelve. Everyone is cordially invited.

FORMER HAYES RESIDENT DEAD

Charles E. Radle Once Well-Known Farmer Here

Funeral services for the late Chas. E. Radle, of Detroit, were held last Saturday, July 5th, from the home of Henry Hamlin in Hayes township, the remains having been brought here from Detroit.

Mr. Radle, who farmed in the Hayes district some nine years ago, had been doing carpenter work in Detroit since that time. His death, which was due to heart failure, leaves a widow and four children, a boy and three girls by his second wife, who was the daughter of Lon Hamlin of Hayes. One child by this union died in infancy. An older son, Elmer, by his first wife, resides in Detroit. The deceased was forty-nine years of age at the time of his death.

The funeral services were performed by the Rev. C. W. Long. Interment was at Brookside.

WON ONE GAME LOST ANOTHER

But Charlevoix Has a Coming Team For A' That

Charlevoix's league base ball team enjoyed a victory and suffered a defeat in rapid succession, triumphing over Boyne City at Boyne last Thursday to the tune of 9 to 4 and reluctantly passing over the palm to East Jordan in Sunday's game with the chalk marks standing 4 to 1.

Both games were snappy and the Sunday game was a fine exhibition of base ball. It was a real game from start to finish and as good base ball as could be asked from any team. The fans were highly pleased with the performance of the local pitcher, Eber, and fail to see where the highly touted Johnny Gunderson has anything on him. We believe that Charlevoix has a real team that plays real base ball and will play even better when they get fairly into the swing of it.

Next Thursday, July 10th, at 2:30 p. m., we play Cheboygan here at the north side ball park. On Sunday, the 13th, Charlevoix plays Harbor Springs at the Harbor; on the 15th, East Jordan there and on Wednesday, July 16th, Cheboygan at Cheboygan. Turn out, fans, and boost the best team Charlevoix has had in years.

TO CONVERT SKATING RINK FOR THE DANCE

Bay City Man Will Repair Building To Open July 14th

Bert Gillis, Bay City promoter of recreational features, is in town this week, completing his plans to take over the Charlevoix roller rink from the present owners and turn it into a first-class dancing pavilion, with a fine weekly program performed by a five-piece orchestra.

Mr. Gillis plans to put the building and floor in first class condition, eliminating entirely the roller skating features, and also designs to devote a portion of it to the use of tutors and their classes who may repair thereto on rainy days and on occasions when their time is to be occupied by supervised games and amusements.

This, we believe, is a wise move on the part of Mr. Gillis, as it is evident that popular favor is turning from roller skating to dancing, and the new pavilion, which is now planned will open on Monday, July 14th, is likely to be very popular this season.

WASHINGTON LETTER

All Washington is watching the Democratic national convention this week, watching with keen interest and with mixed sentiments. Broadly speaking probably the great majority of watchers in the national capital—and "watching" is made easy these days by the remarkable performance of the radio—are gratified with the indications that Wm. C. McAdoo will be the man nominated. There are those who know McAdoo best, who had an opportunity to observe his conduct in the treasury department at close range, are convinced it would be an unparalleled calamity to the republic should he by any chance become president—and this view is entertained by those who know, regardless of their party affiliations. They know McAdoo to be a thoroughly unfit man. Many democrats are gratified over the indications of his defeat because they realize that once his record were exposed to the pitiless publicity incidental to a national campaign he would be almost impossible of election. A few Republicans regret his waning power because they are firmly convinced he would be more easily beaten in November than any other man the Democrats could name. Generally speaking, however, his prospective elimination is an occasion of rejoicing to Democrats and Republicans alike.

The conviction is growing here that this year's Democratic convention will be in large degree a duplication of the Republican convention of four years ago, that McAdoo and Smith, the leading candidates at the start, will engender so much bitterness among the opposing factions—have already done so, in fact—that neither can be nominated and that ultimately a little group of leaders will get together in some hotel bedroom and decide to "try out" the dark horse candidate who seems to have the best chance of gaining the necessary two-thirds vote; and the man who can do this will be he who has made the fewest enemies. It is noted here by keen Republican observers that Hon. Tom Taggart, manager of the boomlet of Senator Ralston of Indiana, is playing the same sort of politics that Hon. Harry Daugherty played before and at the Republican convention four years ago, that while smilingly and confidently predicting the nomination of his candidate he is refraining from all aggressive action, is offending no one, has a kind word for everyone. Four years ago, at the conference which led to the "try-out" of Warren G. Harding, practically every participant in the little conference remarked of Senator Harding, "Well, he's a real nice fellow and neither he nor his campaign manager has made a single enemy." And now it is remarked that when the time comes to pick a Democratic dark horse, the same statement can be made with equal truth regarding Samuel M. Ralston—wherefore, many here believe that Tom Taggart is still a pretty good imitator.

President Coolidge has decided that the United States shall be represented at the allied conference called for July 16, to arrange the methods whereby the Dawes plan for the settlement of the German debt and the allied claims shall be put into operation. Aside from the fact that this is essentially an American plan, devised by the man who is now candidate for vice president on the Republican ticket, the United States has a direct interest in its outcome and, therefore, in the coming conference. While this country has generously refrained from asking anything from Germany in the way of reparations, it is entitled—under the terms of the armistice, not the treaty—to reimbursement for the cost of occupation of Germany pending the negotiation and signing of the treaty. Germany owes the United States $250,000,000, the cost of the Rhineland occupation. Consequently, disregarding unreasoning partisan criticism, charging on the one hand too much interference in European affairs and on the other too little, the president has designated Ambassador Kellogg to represent this country and has chosen Col. James A. Logan as assistant to the ambassador, selections which will contribute to the success of the conference and insure the protection of American interests.

President Coolidge persists in his reluctance to make any campaign tour looking to the promotion of his own election. From every section of the country are coming insistent demands that the president make speeches in the various localities but thus far it has been possible to induce him to make only three speaking dates, of course, on the occasion of his notification of his nomination, about July 22, one to the National Educational Association next week and one on July 4, to government officials on purely government business.

FAIR STRUCTURES TO COST $500,000

GRANDSTAND AND DAIRY CATTLE QUARTERS INCLUDED IN IMPROVEMENTS

FIREPROOF CONSTRUCTION REPLACES WOODEN BUILDINGS

With a half-million dollar construction program, embracing long needed improvements, in full swing, the Michigan State Fair approaches its seventy-fifth annual exposition better equipped than ever before to present the agricultural and industrial picture of the state.

This fair, the "greatest of them all," says G. W. Dickinson, secretary manager, will begin August 29 and run to September 7.

Three-quarter Century Mark. Because it celebrates the three-quarter century mark of Michigan's State Fair, one of the first in America, "no stone will be left unturned" to make it the most complete exhibition ever presented to a public, barring possible exceptions such as World Events and the Toronto show.

Under the personal supervision of Mr. Dickinson, a program of improvements including the construction of a new grandstand, subway drive for automobiles, paving and sidewalks, and addition to the Sheep and Swine building, a new Dairy Cattle building, Floral hall, remodeling of Agriculture and Horticulture building, additional lighting systems and better slide track facilities, already is well under way.

To Be Ready for Fair. It is a certainty that the entire construction program which also includes general beautifying of the grounds will be completed before the gates swing open for the exposition.

This program is in keeping with the plans of the management to gradually replace ramshackle wooden structures on the grounds with modern buildings of steel, fireproof construction and striking in appearance. This year brings the direct heads of the fair nearer to this accomplishment than ever before.

"We'll keep at it everlastingly," says G. W. Dickinson, "until we have the finest group of fair buildings in this country. I see no reason why the Michigan State Fair, leading and most successful of state expositions, should not be housed in model buildings before five years elapse. In fact, this may be accomplished in even a shorter space of time."

$100,000 in Premiums. Generally, of course, the seventy-fifth annual exposition will be a big improvement over its predecessors. Premiums amounting to more than $100,000 will draw, it is said, the largest entry of the finest livestock ever brought into a judging ring. On the hills and plains of Michigan already there are crops in that the growers believe will carry off "blue ribbons and cash premiums" when the competition is declared under way.

"While we are determined that we shall not lose sight for one moment of the educational mission of the Michigan State Fair we are preparing adequately for the entertainment of visitors this year," Mr. Dickinson announces. He is not in position at this time to divulge in its entirety the entertainment program but if we can take his word for it, and we usually can, it will be a "binger."

Every care in the selection of officials and naming of premiums is being exercised by the management. Invitations and premium lists announcing the facts of the seventy-fifth fair will shortly be broadcast throughout the state, reaching prospective exhibitors days in advance of scheduled time, this year.

Soy Bean Hay Is Gaining in Favor

Big Increase Noted in Acreage and Production—Gain in Yield.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The soy bean is getting more attention every year as a hay crop, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Just how fast this use of the crop is increasing is shown by figures on production for the years 1922 and 1923. In nineteen states for which the figures are available, the total acreage devoted to soy bean hay was 569,000 and by 1923 it had increased to 794,000. Total production in 1922 was 782,000 tons while in the succeeding year it was 1,155,000 tons. Not only was there an increase in the total production but in the yield per acre, the increase being from 1.39 to 1.45 tons per acre.

Growth of Crop for Hay.

Alabama was the only state in which there was a decrease. In the other eighteen the crop either held its own or increased. A number of states in the Middle West show the greatest growth of this crop for hay purposes, but there are other states in various sections where it is an important feeding factor. In Illinois during the two years in question the acreage increased from 70,000 to 137,000; in Indiana from 29,000 to 95,000; in Missouri from 33,000 to 63,000; in Iowa from 7,000 to 10,000; in Ohio from 30,000 to 50,000, and in Wisconsin from 11,000 to 14,500. North Carolina increased its acreage from 65,000 to 70,000; Tennessee from 125,000 to 130,000; Kentucky produced 23,000 both years.

That the crop is grown for hay in the East as well as in the Middle West and South is shown by figures for Maryland which increased its acreage from 10,000 to 12,000; Virginia which increased from 40,000 to 45,000; West Virginia which grew 5,000 both years; and Delaware which grew 3,000 acres in both seasons.

The figures compiled by the department for the last two crops seem to show that slightly better yields of soy beans have been obtained in the eastern states. In 1922 the average for Maryland was two tons and for 1923 1½ tons to the acre. For Delaware it was 1.75 and 1.4 for these years. In Virginia the average was 1.8 for both years and West Virginia 1.7. The average for the country for both years was under 1½ tons, the lowest yields being in Georgia and South Carolina.

Soy bean hay, if cut at the right time, is of high feeding value and appetizing to all kinds of live stock. It is high in protein and takes the place of a considerable quantity of high-priced concentrate. Another excellent feature of the crop is that it may be sown in an emergency when some other hay crop has failed to winter well. It can be cut any time from the setting of the seed until the leaves begin to turn yellow, but the maximum returns can be made by cutting it at a time when the pods are well formed. Perhaps a better quality of hay will be produced by earlier cutting but the yield will not be so great. Late cutting produces a hay too fibrous to be the best kind of feed.

Easy to Cure Beans. Those who have made cowpea hay will find that it is considerably easier to cure soy beans. Cutting may begin in the morning as soon as the dew is off and continued the rest of the day. One of the important things to remember is that hay should be raked up after the leaves have become wilted but before they are dry, otherwise many of them will break off and there will be a heavy loss of one of the most valuable parts of the crop. The hay may be left in windrows for a day or so, if the weather is suitable, and then placed in small cocks or bales. For making good soy bean hay about 5 or 6 days of good curing weather is sufficient. This length of time is necessary because practically all of the curing is done in the cock, which if well constructed will prevent damage by rain and snow. When weather conditions are unfavorable many farmers use frames on which to pile the freshly cut hay so that extra good ventilation is provided. The frames are usually 3 or 4-sided pyramids made of boards or poles, 3 to 6 feet long, fastened together at the top and held at the bottom by cross pieces. When such frames are used it is possible to pile the hay on them immediately after it is cut and produce a good quality of feed.

Several Effective Ways to Destroy Field Pests

There are several effective means of destroying the pests which burrow in the fields. Poisoning with strychnine, trapping, flooding and fumigating with carbon bisulphide are popular methods. The mole is difficult to destroy in any other manner than by trapping. Poison is the most effective means of destroying the rodents. Flooding, of course, is only possible in certain cases. Carbon bisulphide is used frequently but in the case of moles considerable gas is lost where the runway is near the surface of the ground, and the efficiency of the method is seriously impaired. There is also some difficulty in using carbon bisulphide due to the fact that the runways are not all on the same level and the gas will remain in the lowest portions, not rising to fill the runway where it approaches the surface of the ground.

Owing to the special meetings now being held at East Jordan, there will be no Sunday evening services at the Holiness church here on Sunday evenings, July 13 and 20, according to an announcement by the pastor, Rev. B. E. Manker.

Picnic parties and fishing trips occupied the day for most of the people here on July 4th, with the Sunday school picnic at Eastport claiming the attendance of the biggest percent. The ball game between Ellsworth and the East-Jordan Stars was won by the former 6-5, a ninth inning rally by the Stars netting three runs and putting the tying and winning runs on the bases when the last put-out was made. Wilson and Brow did the battery work for Ellsworth.

CO-OP. ASSOCIATION SHOWS NICE PROFIT

Stockholders Well Pleased with Past Year's Operations

The Banks Township Marketing Association held their annual meeting on Saturday, July 5th, at which time the yearly business, including the election of a board of directors, was held. H. S. Peebles and F. H. Skow were re-elected on the board, which leaves the board the same as the past year, with F. H. Skow, H. S. Peebles, John Brown, Pete Wieland, James Heeres, D. H. Brat and Hans DeYoung as members.

A settlement was made in October 1923, at which time Ennes Schafer became manager, and an audit of the books for the past nine months shows the following business: Merchandise, $33,740.33; cream, $37,500.00; potatoes, (62 cars), $23,584.84; and beans (7 cars), $15,703.53, a total of $110,528.10.

The books also show a gross income from the above business of $11,666.96, or 10 1-2 per cent, and the total deduction for labor, taxes, interest, insurance, depreciation, etc. to be $7,326.21 or 6 1-5 per cent, leaving 3 7-10 per cent of business handled in a reserve fund, which for these nine months amounts to $4,140.75.

This is the first year in which this concern has operated with a profit, the five years previous each showing a loss, and needless to say the stock holders are well pleased with the year's business.

The Ladies' Aid of the Christian Reformed church of Atwood, will hold their sale of ready-made goods on the evening of July 16, at the Town Hall, at 8:00 p. m. Everything for sale from a handkerchief to a comforter. Ice cream and cake a plenty. Also a fine program. Everybody come.—Adv. 28-11 pd.

DAIRY FACTS

Use Eternal Vigilance in War on Tuberculosis

In fighting tuberculosis in cattle the old reliable eternal vigilance is as much the price of victory as in any other contest.

Men who are most closely in touch with dairy conditions say there is grave danger of reinfection even after the herd is clean.

They say that special care should be exercised in cleaning and disinfecting a barn after the removal of reactors. The dairyman should be sure that every corner is scrubbed, cleaned and disinfected.

The danger that cows from a clean herd will be infected at fairs, stock shows and sales is also said to be great. The cattlemen at the New York State Agricultural College at Ithaca go so far as to say that the farmer with the clean herd should refuse to exhibit his stock unless he is quite sure that the regulations permitting only the entry of tuberculin-tested stock are strictly enforced.

The pasture offers another source of infection. Even if the farmer is sure his herd is clean, the cattle may get the germs from a stream which carries them from another pasture in which tubercular cows are kept. One herd was known to have become infected by drinking from a stream which flowed through a slaughter house yard where reactors were killed. The calves need to be protected. They should not be fed milk which is even suspected of harboring the germs. Such milk can be made safe only by holding it at a temperature of 120 degrees for twenty minutes.

Different Methods for Hand Feeding of Calves

There is some difference in the method followed by farmers as to the time to begin hand feeding of the calf. Some take the calf away without allowing it to nurse at all. Others prefer to let it nurse once, and some allow it to remain with the cow three or four days or until the fever is out of the udder and the milk is fit for use in the dairy. It probably makes very little difference as to this point, but it is a fact easily established that the earlier the calf is taken from the cow, the easier it will be to teach it to drink.

If the cow's udder is in good condition when the calf is dropped, it will generally be more satisfactory to take the calf away early. When the udder is caked, it is best to leave the calf with her until this condition is removed. The point that must be kept in mind is that at first the milk from the mother should always be given the calf and not the milk from some other cow. The first milk, or colostrum, given by a cow is especially suited to the requirements of a young calf, as it has the property of acting as a physio and stimulating the digestive organs.

With the higher testing breeds, it is particularly desirable to take the calf away early or else exercise care that the calf does not eat too much of the high testing milk which may bring on digestive troubles that are difficult to overcome.

Vermont Station Favors Pumpkins for Dairy Cows

Pumpkins are a valuable feed for dairy cows. In composition they resemble mangels and are as valuable for cows. The tradition among farmers that pumpkin seeds increase the kidney excretions, tend to dry up cows, and hence should be removed before feeding has no good foundation. The seeds contain much nutriment and should not be wasted. The Vermont experiment station found two and one-half tons of pumpkins, including seeds, equal to one ton of corn silage.

They can be either fed in the barn or out in the pasture. When fed in the barn they should be cut in small pieces. If fed in the pasture they need only be broken in two pieces. Cows that have never been fed pumpkins must first learn to eat them before they relish them.

Alsike Clover Hay Very Good Feed for All Cows

Alsike clover hay is a very good feed for dairy cows. It is a little better than red clover hay. Feed cows all the alsike clover they will clean up without very much waste. For a grain ration take 400 pounds ground corn, 200 pounds ground oats and 100 pounds alsike. Mix and feed one pound of this mixture for every three to three and one-half pounds of milk produced if your cows are Jerseys or Guernseys and one pound for every three and one-half to four pounds of milk produced if your cows are Holsteins.

GENTLEMEN, MEET MR. C. H. EMREY

He Asks Your Consideration At the September Polls

And now, gentlemen, we come to the consideration of Charles H. Emrey, our present genial county clerk, whose hat is in the ring for another go at the job on the Republican ticket.

It looks to us, after two years of pretty careful observation of Mr. Emrey's work, as though Charley had filled the bill in first class shape. One thing that we have particularly noticed is that when you ask him for information about anything from a dog license to a tax roll he shoots the answer back to your right off the hat—doesn't have to dig around in any musty old volumes or paw over a draw-full of papers. That's a good sign—shows he is interested enough in his job to learn the details of it and that spirit makes a success of a man in any line of work he may happen to be engaged in.

Then, again, he is courteous—always ready to listen to what you have to say and prompt and willing in his effort to assist you. That is another big point in his favor. His personal contact with the public he serves is probably greater than that of any other official of the county and it is imperative that the office should be filled by a personality possessing tact and courtesy to a high degree. This quite adequately describes its present incumbent.

We take great pleasure, therefore, in presenting to the voters of Charlevoix county the name of Charles H. Emrey for re-election to the office of county clerk.

YOUTH DROWNS ON BIRTHDAY

CLYDE TODD CAME HERE FROM PHILADELPHIA

Friday Evening Witnessed Sad and Wierd Search in Waters of Round Lake

An accident occurred last Friday evening that shocked the community and cost the life of Clyde Todd, a mechanic employed by Sam Hamilton at his boat-yard on Round Lake. It was one of the strangest cases of drowning reported from this vicinity so far this year and one of its most peculiar features was that it occurred on the victim's 24th birthday anniversary.

Todd, whose home was in Germantown, suburb of Philadelphia, Pa., came to this city about three weeks ago. He applied to Mr. Hamilton for work and the latter gave him work and a place to sleep on one of the boats tied up at his dock. The man worked two days for Sam and then got a job from Gil Graham, Chicago resorter, to build him a pontoon boat, driven by a motorcycle engine with aeroplane propeller. It was on this boat that he was working when the drowning occurred. It is rectangular in shape and consists of two pontoons with a platform "fuselage" and struts supporting the engine.

Todd did not go to supper on the night of the accident. He was on his queer craft, trying to get it started. At about 6:45 p. m., Mrs. Wilcox, a resorter from Tulsa, Oklahoma, who with her husband and two children is cruising about this region in the power yacht, Homera, owned by her husband, and which was moored until Monday morning at the end of the dock on which the gasoline tank is located, looking out of the yacht's cabin window, saw the propeller turn over two or three times and fall from the stern of the boat into the water. According to Mrs. Wilcox, he struggled a moment or two and then sank out of sight. Her frantic cry for help brought her husband who was fishing from the stern of the boat, as well as Sam Hamilton and his son, Ray. From what Mrs. Wilcox told them, they gathered that he had gone down just off the end of the opposite slip and on the east side of the launching ways that run down under the water at this point. Through this error, valuable time was lost as he was found on the west side of the launching slip near the shore end of the dock.

The life-saving crew were summoned with their boats from the coast guard station and the search was carried on by means of drags, aided by the powerful rays of an incandescent light bulb, fitted with a reflector and weighed to sink below the surface. The searcher's efforts were continued at various points near the end of the slip and back near the shore until a quarter to ten o'clock, when one of the men in the search party, caught sight of the dead man's foot gleaming white in the light from the reflector and after that the recovery of the body was a matter of but a few moments. It was found in about eighteen feet of water, lying on the left side, as though it had been rolled over by one of the drags earlier in the evening.

Not wanting to remove the body from the water until the coroner's arrival, it was made fast to a boat with ropes and towed around into the main slip and, when Dr. McMillan came, was lifted to the dock and

OHIO PAPER'S VERSION OF THE DEM. CONVENTION

They raised the roof, bulged the sides, depressed the floor and shook the rafters of the Garden with every sort of a noise from the soprano squeak of some golden-haired tots, especially placed to attract attention, to the bellow of a dozen tubas, the blare of a hundred trumpets and the wild wail of a fire department siren. They marched, sang, shouted, squawked, yelled, and went into frenzies, fits, fantas and cataplectics. They rang every welkin, woke every echo, clamored, brawled, howled and hallooed. They raised bedlam, raised pandemonium and raised hell. And they didn't change a single vote.

an examination was made to ascertain if a blow from the propeller had been sustained or if evidences of any other contributory causes of death save that of drowning were in evidence. The doctor found no bruises, however, and nothing to indicate that death was caused by anything but drowning.

The hearse was summoned from See's undertaking establishment and the body taken there for preparation. The dead man was attired in shirt, trousers and shoes and nothing was found in his pockets save a box of matches. It was known that he was in possession at the time of about $25.00 currency and this could not be found either in his coat which was found on the dock shortly after the drowning nor in his effects in the cabin of the boat where he slept.

Saturday morning, his relatives in Philadelphia were located by wire and instruction came back from the boy's father to ship the remains to that city. They left here Monday evening at seven o'clock.

Mr. Hamilton had repeatedly warned Todd not to venture from shore in his new craft unless he could swim, and this the latter asserted he was able to do. Although the depth of the water where he went down was about twenty feet, a stroke or two would have brought him to the piling of the dock where

NORTH AMERICAN GETS OFF REEF

GALE DROVE SHIP CLEAR OF ROCKS ON THURSDAY

Was Hard Aground Late Wednesday.
During Fog and Rain—Not Much Damaged

The big lake excursion steamer North American, carrying about 350 excursionists from Chicago to Duluth and back, which was hard and fast on Gray's Reef, in the Straits of Mackinac for twelve hours, Wednesday afternoon and night, July 9th, was driven entirely across the reef and floated in deep water early Thursday morning. The ship reached Mackinac Island shortly before 3 o'clock Thursday morning. Examination showed that her plates were undamaged by the grounding, and the ship proceeded on her trip.

The weather Wednesday afternoon was foggy and rainy, with a gale of about 45 miles an hour sweeping the Straits from the west. The ship, in swinging into the Straits from Lake Michigan, got off her course in the fog, rain and gale and crashed onto the reef. Luck was with the North American, for where she struck the water was almost deep enough to allow her to plow on across.

The tug Thompson pulled for several hours but was unable to drag the heavy ship off. The tug Reliance was at the scene but, because of the heavy sea, did not attempt to haul on the North American.

A powerful tug was sent from Sault Ste. Marie to assist in the recovery of the ship. The ship's radio kept up a busy broadcast by code to Chicago and the Canadian Soo, carrying word that the ship was in no danger.

INDIAN BOYS GET BIG TIMBER WOLF

ANIMAL WITH ITS MATE SEEN NEAR MIDDLEVILLE

Another Seen by Picnic Party at Nine Mile Point—Coyotes Reported Near Straits

The Petoskey Evening News in its Monday issue says:

A real honest-to-goodness timber wolf, about two-thirds grown, was shot Sunday night at about 9 o'clock at Middle Village, near Good Hart, by Solomon Francis, Indian young man, with a companion. Francis, in company with three other Indian young men, had started from home into the woods toward the home of one of the party, when they noticed the two animals. The pair circled the boys who at once ran back to the Francis home.

The wolves, evidently hungry, followed and were not far from the house when the boys emerged with a shot gun. Francis shot one of the pair in the side and the wounded wolf at once leaped for him. The other men, Louis Francis, with an axe, Benjamin Warren and Louis Chingwa, with clubs, were ready for trouble, but Francis fired as the wolf leaped; the shot killing it instantly. The other wolf rushed away.

The boys brought the slain animal to Petoskey Monday in an effort to collect a bounty.

Timber wolves have been seen by several residents of the district around Cross Village, Middle Village and north to the state game preserve. One was reported by a picnic party at Nine Mile Point, south of Middle Village, at 9 o'clock Sunday evening. The animal circled the picnic party several times then made off into the woods.

That part of western Michigan remains quite wild wooded, although the farms and resorts are numerous. Discussing their experience the Indian boys declared, "We did not like his looks. He sure was angry after he wounded him. If Louis had missed it might have been good-bye to one of us, for the wolf was coming at us by great leaps."

Hunters who viewed the animal declared the wolf was apparently about 14 months old.

Coyotes are also reported to have come across from the north shore to the wooded sections of the northwest corner of the county.

Mrs. Hiram Brock, wife of a prominent farmer of Evelyn township, died last Friday, July 11th, at her home there, following an illness of over a year's duration. Creeping paralysis was given as the cause of death.

Mrs. Brock was born in Northumberland, Ontario, May 13th, 1875. She was married on December 20, 1911, to H. Brock at Brighton, Ontario, and to this union was born one boy, who is now nine years of age.

The funeral was held Monday morning at ten o'clock from the house, Rev. C. W. Long officiating. Interment at Brookside followed.

FIELD CROPS SHOW A GAIN

HAY, ONLY, FELL OFF DURING MONTH OF JUNE

Winter Wheat Looks Good, Oats
About the Same As Last Year, Corn Poor

Field crops, with the exception of hay, have improved during June according to the monthly report issued by L. Whitney Watkins, commissioner of agriculture and Verne H. Church, agricultural statistician. The season is from two to three weeks later than usual and frequent rains in the southern counties have interfered with cultivation. Many fields of corn, beans, potatoes and sugar beets are unusually grassy as a result. The rains have also delayed haying operations and damaged much hay in process of being harvested. The northern half of the state was practically without rain until the closing days of June, and conditions there have been too dry for a normal growth of crops but favorable for cultivation and the advancement of other farm work.

Winter wheat prospects are the best since 1919, the average condition being 91 per cent, representing a production of 16,453,000 bushels. This is practically the same quantity as produced in 1923 from a considerably larger acreage. The condition of spring wheat is 82 per cent, equivalent to a crop of 108,000 bushels. The stock of old wheat remaining on farms July 1 is estimated at 1,077,000 bushels or 6 1-2 per cent of the 1923 crop.

Corn, with a condition figure of 71 per cent of normal, offers the poorest showing of any major crop. Planting was completed later than usual, much replanting was necessary in many sections, and the weather has averaged too cool for best growth. A considerable increase in acreage was contemplated but the adverse conditions caused some of the intended acreage to be diverted to beans and other cultivated crops. As a result the increase is but one per cent over last year, or a total of 1,703,000 acres. The present outlook is for a crop of 48,365,000 bushels as compared with 58,167,000 in 1923.

The Michigan crop of oats is practically the same as that produced in 1923, according to the present estimate which is 48,930,000 bushels. The condition of 84 per cent is the same as the ten-year average, a gain of five per cent over last month, and seven per cent better than one year ago.

The acreage devoted to potatoes is four per cent less than last year according to the preliminary estimate, or 301,000 acres, the smallest area planted since 1919. More commercial fertilizer is being used and more farmers are specializing in the growing of certified seed. These progressive movements will tend to increase the yield per acre and a corresponding increase in profits. The reported condition is 88 per cent although it is too early to establish the exact situation. This figure, if maintained to the end of the season, represents a production of 27,548,000 bushels. This is more than 8,000,000 bushels less than that of last year.

The hay crop is relatively light in the northern and western districts, but is generally good in most of the other counties. The condition of all tame hay averages 81 per cent and of alfalfa 94 per cent for the state. The present estimate is for a crop of 3,919,000 tons which is practically the same production as last year.

The barley crop has improved four per cent during June, now being rated at 84 per cent, representing a production of 3,459,000 bushels as against 3,600,000 bushels in 1923. Conditions are generally favorable except that the harvest will be later than usual.

Rye continues promising with a condition of 91 per cent, five per cent better than on the same date last year. The present outlook is for a crop of 5,465,000 bushels. The reduced acreage has lessened the prospective production by slightly over one million bushels as compared with last year.

Michigan growers have again planted a large acreage of beans. Because of the lateness of the season and necessity of replanting many fields of spring crops, beans were substituted in many cases in the second plantings. As a result, the preliminary inquiry made through regular correspondents and through the cooperation of the county agricultural agents indicates an acreage only two per cent less than last year's, or 557,000. Excellent stands resulted from most of the plantings, but considerable damage has since been done

WILL SPEAK ON GOOD POULTRY

M. A. C. EXTENSION AGENT
HERE NEXT WEEK

J. A. Hannah To Tour the County on July 24-26, Making Eight
Stops

J. A. Hannah, poultry extension specialist from Michigan Agricultural College, will be in Charlevoix county on the twenty-fourth, twenty-fifth, and twenty-sixth of this month. This announcement will be of great interest to all poultrymen who are desirous of learning how to cull out their unprofitable hens and of receiving information along any subjects pertaining to poultry.

These demonstrations are not only for those specializing in poultry but for all farmers in any way interested in this work.

Poultry is necessary on all farms, and we all keep poultry, but we want to keep hens that lay, not those that live at our expense. Plan to attend one of these demonstrations and learn how to cull out your non-producers.

The following visits are scheduled for the demonstrations:

Thursday, July 24, at 9:30, at the farm of James Heeres, in Norwood township, about three miles south of Barnard.

Thursday, 1:00 p. m., at Hiram Potter, Jr., farm, Marion township, about one mile east of Barnard.

Thursday, 3:30 p. m., at farm of Wilbur Spidle, South Arm township, on west side of Pine Lake near Rock Elm grange.

Friday, July 25—9:30 a. m. at Ben Gardner's, Evangeline township, three miles north of Boyne City.

Friday, 1:00 p. m., at Edward Hunt's, Wilson township, north side of Deer Lake, turn east at school house.

Friday, 3:30 p. m., at Breezy Point Farm at Ironton Ferry, east side.

Saturday, July 26—9:30 a. m., at Allan Sherk's, Melrose township, three miles south and west of Walloon Lake.

Saturday, 1:30 p. m., at Arthur VanAmburg's, Bay township, about two miles north of Horton's Bay.

All meetings scheduled on fast time. It is hoped that every farmer in the county will attend at least one of these demonstrations. The two or three hours spent will mean dollars and cents in your pocket. Good poultry pays; poor poultry doesn't.

MANY TURN OUT TO SCHOOL MEET

MRS. BERGEON RE-ELECTED—
SMITH LOSES TO CRAIG

Bitter Discussion of Difficulties Between the Board and Hamilton Follows

The annual school meeting, which occurred on Monday, July 14th, was attended in unprecedented numbers by the townspeople, who had anticipated that matters of unusual interest were due to come up before the meeting. As a matter of striking comparison, it might be mentioned that the attendance at the previous annual meeting totaled thirty people.

The meeting was called to order by the president of the board, Hon. Rollie L. Lewis, who in a very skillful and adroit manner introduced in advance of the election of the new board members a detailed arraignment of former superintendent of schools, Charles F. Hamilton. Much the same ground was covered in this recital of complaints, as in a previous statement made to the citizens' committee appointed by the mass meeting held shortly after the board's difficulties with Mr. Hamilton had come to a head.

Following the reading of this—shall we call it a bill of complaint, tellers were appointed and the meeting proceeded to the election of new members of the board to succeed the retiring incumbents, Mrs. Arthur Bergeon and Lee R. Smith, both of whom presented themselves as candidates for re-election.

After several ballots had been taken, Mrs. Bergeon received a majority of the votes cast for the several candidates and was declared re-elected. On the first ballot for the second member, Harry A. Craig received a majority of votes and was declared elected for the ensuing term, in the place of L. R. Smith.

The matter of the purchase of the Stewart property between the high school grounds and Grant street, for the purpose of erecting thereon a new high school building, was next presented and after much discussion the meeting voted to authorize the board to borrow the necessary funds to make such purchase at the time that it should become necessary.

The meeting also voted to authorize the board to make needed repairs in the basement and toilets of the high school building to put same in a sanitary condition, it being estimated that said repairs and improvements would cost in the neighborhood of $3,700.

Final motion to adjourn the meeting, although duly seconded, was overruled by popular vote in order to give Mr. Charles F. Hamilton, who had been summoned to the meeting to protect his interest (having been advised that Mr. Lewis would present the view-point of the board on the late difficulties) a chance to defend himself.

Mr. Hamilton replied in a spirited manner to Mr. Lewis's charges, substantially repeating the statements formerly made at the mass meeting above mentioned. His remarks were broken into by an attempt at cross-examination on the part of Mr. Lewis, which was overruled by the meeting, the discussion becoming somewhat heated at times.

A peculiar feature of the election of the board members was that the names of certain dark-horse candidates, put forward by the chief instigator of a now well-known secret organization, whose members, we assume, were in attendance at the meeting in force, did not appear in the balloting. Whether the secret ticket was withdrawn at the last moment by imperial ukase or repudiated by its supporters, we cannot say.

One further point of interest is the letter which appears below, a copy of which reached us this morning:

LIVE STOCK

FOUNDATION STOCK IS BIG ESSENTIAL

The good breeder of live stock may be said to be the one that has been successful in the selection of the parents of his stock. The corner stone of success is selection. Care and feed are essential, but they can develop an animal no further than the inheritance that animal has received from its parents will permit. A man was seen one time upon the Denver market trying to buy a bear to take home to his herd. When engaged in conversation he showed that type, ancestry or health did not enter his mind. A bear was a bear and nothing more to him.

Selection is just as important to that man who was a producer of market hogs as it is to the producer of animals from which others breed. Satisfactory results cannot be obtained by taking anything as foundation stock and then save the best from their increase. There is quite likely not to be any best among the increase. The live stock man must decide upon his ideal before he starts in the business and selects his foundation animals with his ideal always before his mind's eye. It is impossible very frequently to obtain our ideal or even approach it, but to have a goal toward which to work and never reach it, is better than not to have any goal at all.

Selection is important, as has been suggested, and it may now be said that selection to a type is important. Diversity of types seen in a breeder's flock or herd is generally indicative of haphazard breeding operations. What is the value of uniformity of type? No one will question its financial advantages in feeding or selling. Many worry about which breed to raise, but the selection of and adherence to a type is even more important than the selection of a breed. The breeder of live stock must be a student of animal form and a judge to insure success in his endeavor.—B. W. Fairbanks, Colorado Agricultural College.

Winter Swine Slaughter Shows Decided Increase

During the winter months of December, January and February, 16,821,291 hogs were slaughtered in establishments operating under federal meat inspection. This number exceeds the previous record for three months, made December, 1918, and January and February, 1919, by more than one million hogs.

Those who have studied the reasons for this enormous increase say that many factors are involved. Increased breeding, due to the successful corn crop for the last two years and a satisfactory public purchasing power, have contributed to the record-breaking slaughter. The hogs have been somewhat lighter in weight, however, than in former years and the large number does not mean such a record-breaking quantity of pork as the hog slaughter might indicate.

Roughage for Fattening Lambs in Feeding Test

Very little difference between alfalfa and soy-bean hay as roughages for fattening lambs was noted in a feeding test at the Illinois experiment station. The two hays were fed to lots of 25 lambs fed shelled corn in addition, with no supplement. Gains made by the two groups of lambs were almost exactly the same. The lambs given soy-bean hay ate somewhat more hay than those fed alfalfa, but the soy-bean hay group ate slightly less corn to compensate for the increased hay consumption. Somewhat more of the soy-bean hay was wasted than of alfalfa. At the end of the test the alfalfa lambs were valued ten cents higher than those fed soy-bean hay, but both lots brought the same price when sold at Chicago.

Tetanus in Lambs Often Follows Spring Docking

Tetanus is quite common among lambs at this time of the year, since it frequently follows docking if the operation is not properly performed. Tetanus is often spoken of as "lock jaw," though that is really not the correct name because the locking of the jaws does not always occur.

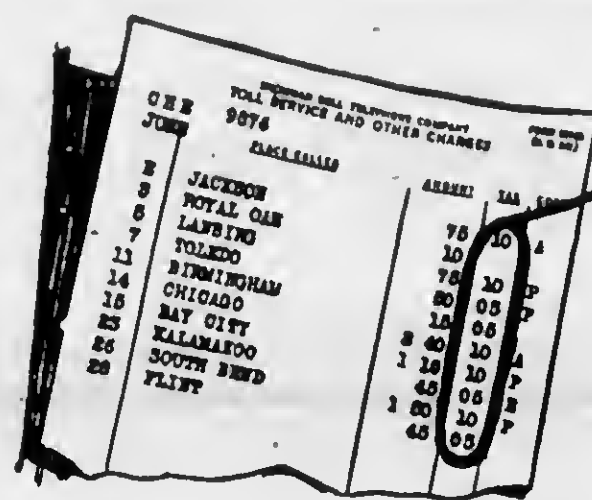

Little can be done for animals that are already diseased. The scab that has formed over the stump of the tail after docking should be removed and the stump painted with tincture of iodine two or three times daily. When docking lambs again the stump should be painted immediately after the operation. Some stockmen make a practice of searing the stump with a hot iron. The latter sterilizes the wound and also controls the bleeding.

Sunlight for Little Pigs

Sunlight is indispensable to the health and vigor of newly born pigs. This is true in all except extremely hot weather. The sooner they get it the better it is for them, and farrow-houses fitted to let in the sunshine are decidedly advantageous. As soon as the little fellows are strong enough to run around and follow after the sow they may be let outdoors into the sunshine. They ought to be strong enough to do this within from three days to a week.

Federal Tax on Telephone Toll Messages Removed

UNDER the provisions of the Federal Revenue Act of 1924, all telephone messages became free from tax at midnight, July 2, 1924. The taxes imposed under the previous law were as follows:

On a telephone toll message for which the charge was more than fourteen cents and not more than fifty cents . . . 5 cents

On a message for which the charge was more than fifty cents . . . 10 cents

These taxes were highest, in proportion to the charge for service, for toll messages over moderate distances, the tax in some cases amounting to one-third of the toll charge.

We have anticipated the increased use of toll facilities that will follow the removal of these taxes and are prepared to care for it.

EDITORIALS

IS PROHIBITION AMERICA'S GREATEST ENEMY?

Currency has been given to a glaring misstatement published some time ago in Barron's Weekly, a financial review, regarding the results, in the United States, of the efforts to enforce the provisions of the Eighteenth Amendment. Not satisfied with the publicity afforded by the original publication, organizations opposed to prohibition have reissued the statement in the form of a bulletin under the heading "Prohibition—America's Greatest Enemy." The source of the figures presented is not disclosed. Certainly they are not from any official records accessible to the public. As a matter of fact, the court and prison records in Massachusetts tell an entirely different story from that related. A census of jail and prison inmates in Massachusetts shows, for the year 1914, for instance, a population of 6877, and for 1923, the last year for which figures are available, a total of 2690.

In the bulletin mentioned, which purports to be a reproduction of the original statement referred to, no comparisons are made between the prison population in the years before prohibition and the years since enforcement was attempted. It is not denied that arrests and convictions have increased somewhat since the first year of the application of the prohibitory code, but the fact remains that the populations of penal and charitable institutions are much smaller, and that arrests for drunkenness everywhere are much fewer, than in the years of the open saloon. Take the Massachusetts figures again as an illustration: In 1914, 1915 and 1916, the years immediately antedating prohibition, arrests for drunkenness were, respectively, 69,159, 57,811, and 65,051. In the year 1920 arrests for such offenses were 21,800, and in 1923, 38,988. Reference to the records in other states, with the possible exception of New York, will show a proportionate, and in some cases even a larger, falling off.

And there is another important consideration. The rapidity with which an imbibor arrives at an irresponsible mental and physical condition bears no relation to the quantity of liquor consumed. The concoctions imbibed by addicts today produce intoxication almost instantaneously. So it follows that if the arrests for drunkenness were even greater in number now than before prohibition and if the jails and prisons were crowded with those convicted as a result of indulgence in intoxicants, this would not prove that larger quantities of liquor were being consumed.

The bulletin quoted refers to what it calls "the panorama of failure spread in a fleet of thirty ships outside of New York harbor rum-laden, their cargoes to be landed upon our coast, while hundreds of other ships land liquors from Main to Florida." It makes the specious allegation that this failure was "advertised by the president's message on the subject," the reference being, no doubt, to what President Coolidge said on the subject of law enforcement in his address to congress in the autumn of 1923. This is what he said:

The prohibition amendment to the constitution requires the congress and president to provide adequate laws to prevent its violation. It is my duty to enforce such laws. For that purpose a treaty is being negotiated with Great Britain with respect to the right of search of hovering vessels. To prevent smuggling, the coast guards should be greatly strengthened, and a supply of swift power boats should be provided. The major sources of production should be rigidly regulated and every effort should be made to suppress interstate traffic. With this action on the part of the national government, and the co-operation which is usually rendered by municipal and state authorities, prohibition should be made effective. Free government has no greater menace than disrespect for authority and continual violation of law. It is the duty of a citizen not only to observe the law, but to let it be known that he is opposed to its violation.

This is an answer to all those who seek or pretend to blame prohibition for the violations of the law. Prohibition does not cause crime and drunkenness. Liquor is the culprit now, just as it was in the days when the government and the state made the mistake of believing that by licensing an unholy traffic they could control or regulate it.—Christian Science Monitor.

Have been a resident of Charlevoix county for over 22 years. For the past three years have been secretary of the County Agricultural Society. I believe I can meet the requirements and have the ability to do the work as register of deeds to the satisfaction of everyone. If nominated and elected I will give my entire time and attention to the duties of this office. Having entered the field, I solicit the support of all Republicans throughout the county. Frank F. Bird.—Adv. 29-1f.

A HORSE AND BUGGY TOURIST
There is something rather appealing about the old gentleman who is "touring" in a rickety old buggy drawn by a little bay horse. He is journeying from Chicago to Benidji, Minn. At the end of the first three weeks he had reached Chippewa Falls. Six weeks is the scheduled time for the complete trip.

The old-fashioned traveler stops at tourist camps like any modern motorist, and prepares his meals with the best of them.

"I travel slowly," he says. I see all that there is to see. I pick up impressions of towns, meet people and have a first-rate time all the while."

And why shouldn't he? If he does not mind the dust that passing automobiles throw about him, and if motorists don't mind having to pass the rickety buggy and plodding steed, everybody ought to be happy. And what rushed citizen wouldn't envy the buggy-rider his leisure?

MOTOR TAX AN INVESTMENT
A Missouri highway commissioner has good words to say for the motor license tax and the highway program in his state. The former, he says, is an investment rather than a tax.

The Missouri highway program takes 80 per cent of the license money and puts it into hard-surfaced roads. They also save gasoline and wear and tear on the car.

Paying a motor license tax for such a purpose is almost a case of having one's cake and eating it, too. One buys the car and pays the license fee and spends a considerable sum of money. But the license fee goes to work for the car-owner and saves him money in other ways.

MOTHER OF J. J. HALLETT IS DEAD

Passed Away Sunday Noon After Long Illness

Mrs. Mary Jane Hallett, mother of Joseph J. Hallett of this city, died at her home, 214 East Upright Avenue, Charlevoix, last Sunday noon, July 13th, at the age of 81 years, one month and 10 days. She had been an invalid for the past three years and suffered several strokes of paralysis, the last one resulting in a coma or unconscious state which lasted two days, finally passing into death very peacefully and without pain.

Mary Jane Edmonds was born in Weymouth, England, June 3, 1843. She was married in England to Luke Hallett and the couple came to this country with their infant son (the present J. J. Hallett) 54 years ago, settling in the town of Port Hope, Ont. From there they moved to Indiana, living for two years in La Porte county, after which they came to Charlevoix. Previous to his departure for America, Mr. Hallett, senior, had been a salt water sailor and had traveled to all parts of the globe. He died many years ago.

Mrs. Hallett is survived by her only son, Joseph J., of Charlevoix, three grandsons, Irving, John and Harold, and there are two great-grandchildren, the children of Irving Hallett. A brother, Richard Edmonds, lives in Port Hope, Ontario.

The funeral was held Tuesday morning at 9 a. m., from St. Mary's church, Rev. Father Wegener officiating. Interment at Brookside followed.

NEW SCHEDULE OF FERRY BOATS

Mackinac Ships Go On Full Summer Count, Each Making 10 Trips

The state automobile ferry between Mackinaw City and St. Ignace has announced a new schedule which furnishes service between the two points each hour and a half.

For July and August the state boats leave each point at the following hours: 7:00, 8:30, 10:00 and 11:30 a. m. and 1:00, 2:30, 4:00, 5:30, 7:00 and 8:30 p. m.

The rate for cars having a wheel base up to and including 114 inches is $2.50, and the rate on cars over 114 inches is $3.50. No extra charge is made for passengers traveling in automobiles, not in excess of the seating capacity of the car. Passengers not traveling in automobiles are charged 25 cents.

On trucks, the rate varies from .55 to $15, according to the tonnage. Autos with trailers are charged an additional $1.50 and motorcycles pay $1 without a side car and $1.50 if side car is attached.

No package freight other than that carried in automobiles and trucks will be transported.

Two boats are now on the schedule, each vessel having a capacity of about 35 cars. The service is proving very satisfactory to the motorists and a large number cross daily on the state ferries.

ELEVEN VISITORS OUTSIDE OF COUNTY

Imprisoned Chiropractors Receiving at County Jail

The chiropractors' visitors register at the Charlevoix county jail shows Sunday as a strenuous day for Drs. DeJordy and Bench, Boyne City chiropractors, who are incarcerated there for practicing their profession without a medical license, 24 having registered in one day.

Sunday's list shows eleven visitors from outside of Charlevoix county, as follows: two from Saginaw and five from Traverse City, one each from Midland, Fredric, St. Johns and Grayling.

During the past five weeks the chiropractors have entertained 229 visitors from various parts of the county and state, who call to encourage them in their stand for recognition and a separate board of examiners whom they claim are alone competent to examine applicants in the philosophy, technique and adjusting, which are the fundamental subjects which differ from that of any other science. Without examination in these subjects they claim the public is given no protection from the incompetent practitioner.

CANOE SPILL DUMPS TWO INTO THE LAKE

Members of Vagabond Orchestra Rescued by Coast Guards

Charles Holsclaw and Walter Jarvis, respectively pianist and cornetist of the Vagabond orchestra, which has been engaged to play this season at the Hallett Inn, had an experience last week which they are likely to remember for some time to come.

The young men were out in a canoe and had made the trip through the channel into Lake Michigan once and were trying it again. This was on Thursday afternoon at about four o'clock when a heavy sea was running in the big lake. They got to about the end of the pier, when the canoe rose on a big wave, caught the wind, slowed around and capsize, throwing the two adventurers into the water.

Unable to make headway swimming, Holsclaw and Jarvis clung to the bottom of their overturned craft until the life saving crew could reach them in the life boat.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Baptist church will hold their annual bazaar and baked goods sale at Frank Metcalf's drug store, all day, Saturday, July 26th. —Adv. 29-1f.

Anyone else wishing to speak is invited to do so. D. H. Day, of Glen Arbor, will furnish the singing.

BELLAIRE DAM BROKE WEDNESDAY MORNING

Loss To City Estimated at Between $35,000 and $40,000

The city of Bellaire suffered a thirty-five to forty thousand dollar loss when the dam at the power house over the Cedar River gave way in the center of the structure and let through a torrent of water that washed away the power house, leaving the generator and the wheel in the river, near its former foundation. The shaft of the generator is badly bent, and there are other minor damages.

Only the fact that the dam at the Charlevoix plant is provided with a double spillway saved it from destruction when the released volume of water poured down upon it. Business men of Bellaire turned out in force and by piling sand bags along the edge of the dam kept the flood within bounds until the danger was over.

The city of Bellaire is now receiving its current from the Charlevoix plant, which, of course, is doing double duty. It has not as yet been decided whether or not the city will rebuild the dam and plant.

Charlevoix was only cut off from its power for about a minute—only as long as it took to connect up the dynamos.

ATTY. JAMES C. WOOD OUT FOR CONGRESS

Northern Michigan Attorney Throws Hat in Ring

James C. Wood, attorney, of Manistique, has decided to enter the race for the Republican nomination for congressman from the 11th district at the September primary.

Mr. Wood has served three terms in the Michigan senate and this has brought to him legislative experience which should qualify him for the position as congressman.

Mr. Wood was a candidate for this office four years ago, being defeated by our present incumbent, Frank D. Scott. He made a good run, however, but was flopped at the last minute by upper peninsula political bosses, who turned the same trick on Frank D. Aldrich in the 1922 campaign.

Wood's entrance in the congressional race brings the number of candidates up to three, Meggison, Lemire and himself, with Aldrich and Scott undecided as just what to do.

Wood is a good campaigner and an able man, and no doubt will have considerable backing.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS.

Former superintendent of schools, Charles F. Hamilton, has a position here for the summer with W. E. Parmelee, contractor.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Altenburg, Franklin Austin and Miss Nina Crowley were in town this week, attending the school meeting.

Mrs. T. George Finucan and little son, Tom, of Grand Rapids, are visiting this week at the home of Mrs. Finucan's parents, Captain and Mrs. George Weaver, on Bridge street.

Theodore Erickson, formerly of this city, arrived last Sunday from Holland, Mich., where last fall he organized a corporation known as the Holland Manufacturing Company, of which he is president and superintendent. This company is manufacturing automobile wrecking cranes and garage presses of Erickson's own invention and have prospects for a very prosperous business.

Saturday and Sunday, July 19 and 20

Harold Lloyd in "WHY WORRY?" Tickling, tantalizing, fast, furious, funny farce—a jolly joy ride, heart ache, headache, or toothache. Forget 'em all. You'll have an ear-to-ear ache from laughter. See "Why Worry?" then you'll say "why worry?" Also a comedy, "WHY ELEPHANTS LEAVE HOME" in two reels. Matinee Saturday at 2:30 p. m.

Monday, July 21

Marshall Neilan presents his story "THE ETERNAL THREE," with Hobart Bosworth, Claire Windsor, and an all-star cast. A great picture. Marshall Neilan delves deep into the life of today in his latest sensational photodrama. He tells the story frankly and fearlessly of a man who had faith in women—and of another man who destroyed that faith. One of the most absorbing themes that life can offer. Told by a master director. Also a Neeley Edwards comedy, "NO PARKING ALLOWED."

Tuesday and Wednesday, July 22 and 23

Paramount presents Thomas Meighan in "THE CONFIDENCE MAN," the kind of role that made him famous. The fans clamored for another Meighan crook picture—another "Miracle Man." Here it is, "THE CONFIDENCE MAN" promises you the best Meighan picture since the "Miracle Man." It's crook and love melodrama of the same high calibre, blood-stirring, heart-touching, pure-gold entertainment—thrill stacked and punch-packed. Also a two reel Our Gang comedy, "LODGE NIGHT."

MAJESTIC THEATRE

Saturday and Sunday, July 19 and 20

Wm. Fox present a special production, "THE TEMPLE OF VENUS," with Mary Philbin and a star cast, and one thousand American beauties. More romantic than the tales of "Arabian Nights"—more spectacular than "A Daughter of the Gods" or "Queen of the Sea." More thrills than a modern melodrama, more beautiful girls than ever appeared before on stage or screen, more gorgeous gowns than a Parisian fashion show—that is "The Temple of Venus." Also a Cameo comedy, "HOT SPARKS." Admission, children 15c; adults, 30c.

Wednesday and Thursday, July 23 and 24

A Cosmopolitan production "UNSEEN EYES" with Lionel Barrymore and Seena Owen. If you think you are thrill proof—try this one. WASHINGTON LETTER

The sad spectacle of a great political party being ruthlessly sacrificed to the political ambitions of a single man, a conscienceless individual who controls less than a majority of the Democratic delegates, has filled Washington observers with conflicting emotions this week. Wm. G. McAdoo on a rule or ruin policy determined to be presidential nominee or wreck his party, and himself discredited and being ground after the disclosures of his conduct in his association with E. L. Doheny and his unlawful prosecution of the claim for $600,000 for the Republic Iron & Steel Co., before treasury employees, most of whom he had himself appointed to office. This latter case was in direct violation of the law which forbids government officials to prosecute before departments with which they have been associated any claim against the government until they have been out of office at least two years. Finding himself fast slipping, McAdoo enlisted the services of a secret political organization, the Ku Klux Klan, and with its aid is now destroying the Democratic party. This is not Republican, but Democratic opinion. The New York World, leading Democratic paper of the country, says, "If the Democratic party is to live it must defeat McAdoo. Nothing else can save it from division and utter destruction. If the party is to be saved the first duty of all men who consider its interests above their own is to compel the withdrawal of McAdoo."

The unwinning McAdoo ambition caused the bitter fight over the Klan plank which led such stalwart Democrats as former Secretary Bainbridge Colby and Hon. Wm. Patterson to charge their own party with cowardice and plutonium because it dared not condemn by name the Ku Klux Klan, and resulted in a compromise plank which does not face the issue. Everywhere is heard the prediction that the cowardly spectacle the Democracy has made of itself on this question is enough in itself to destroy it. And equally cowardly, in the opinion of competent observers, was the illogical action of the convention on the League of Nations. Newton D. Baker, who thus far has made the greatest speech of the convention, pointed out in terms which will ever ring in Democratic ears that cowardice and expediency never won any party the respect of the American people, that the majority plank—that finally adopted—praised the league in one paragraph and repudiated it in another and implored his colleagues to stand by the policy of Woodrow Wilson. But the Democratic convention has repudiated the league and now has forced Gov. Cox, its chief protagonist, to retire from the ranks of the nominees. The party has set McAdoo the example—or followed his—of, "To H—!" with conscience and principles—anything to win.

The special grand jury on the oil cases has returned indictments against Albert B. Fall, E. L. Doheny, Jr., and Harry F. Sinclair, charging conspiracy to defraud the government, and in the case of Fall and Doheny, bribery. The attorney for Doheny immediately issued a statement declaring that, "The oil cases are now transferred from the forum of partisan politics to courts of justice," that "In the congressional investigation the rules of evidence were ignored, constitutional rights violated and the exigencies of the 1924 campaign were paramount. In the courts where these cases will be heard the demagogue will be silent; rules of evidence will be enforced; constitutional rights will be protected. Mr. Doheny and his counsel have for more than six months recognized that in the courts alone can a fair opportunity be had to show the integrity of his personal conduct and the really patriotic character of the services he rendered." Neither Fall's nor Sinclair's attorneys has as yet been heard from.

The purely ex parte and unjust character of grand jury proceedings has been strikingly shown this week by the complete exoneration of Ernest C. Morse, director of sales of the war department, indicted with John Stephens, John L. Phillips et al. in the lumber sales case. Judge Bailey of the supreme court of the District of Columbia, directed verdicts of acquittal of both Morse and Stephens, saying there was absolutely no evidence which would warrant any reasonable jury in finding them guilty. Morse, who was also indicted in the U. S. Harness Co. case, was completely exonerated in that case also, as were all the other defendants, without the case ever going to the jury. The government has procured numerous indictments under this administration which, when subjected to the courts have proved to be wholly unwarranted.

AT THE MOVIES

PALACE THEATRE

In "Why Worry?" Harold Lloyd's first attempt at farce comedy, the popular Pathe comedian plays the part of a young man who worries so much over imaginary troubles that he fails to recognize real ones all about him. It is said that the manner in which he becomes embroiled in a South American revolution offers greater possibilities for laughs and "gags" than any of the previous Lloyd comedies. The public can judge for itself when "Why Worry?" will be shown at the Palace Theatre next Saturday and Sunday.

Meighann has made another crook story.

This time it's "The Confidence Man," which comes to the Palace Theatre next Tuesday and Wednesday. The story is one of a small town where Meighann, as Dan Corvan, goes to get a wealthy old gent interested in a fake oil stock deal.

Virginia Vnlli plays opposite the star, and Laurence Wheat, Charles Dow Clarke and others are in the cast. Victor Heerman directed the production which was adapted to the screen by Paul Sloane. Henry Cronjager did the photography.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

"The Eternal Three," a Goldwyn picture, produced by Marshall Neilan, which will be shown at the Majestic Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday, is described as one of the finest pictures that noted director has yet turned out. This seems reasonable to assume as the story itself is Neilan's own.

Goldwyn has given this talented director another notable cast. Hobart Bosworth, Claire Windsor, Raymond Griffith, Bessie Love, Tom Gallery, Helen Lynch, William Norris and other well known players appear in the picture.

Judging from the story, the picture should be most interesting and convincing. Its theme is that of human ingratitude, in this case made doubly impressive by the depiction of a brilliant surgeon with a noble love for humanity.

There is a triangle, of course, as the title would indicate, but everything ends convincingly.

Mr. Neilan and the Goldwyn company spared no expense in producing this photoplay, it is said, the company making a trip into the heart of Mexico for a number of the scenes.

Cupid's Quest

Doubtful Daniel Cupid wondered if romance had died. To learn the truth he began his world-wide quest.

From the roaring canyons of the cities to the peaceful calm of the grotto by the sea he made his way.

But not until he found "The Temple of Venus" did his search come to an end.

In his quest he discovers all that is bad and all that is good in the world. Inside society's gates in the great metropolis he finds wild orgies that would rival those of ancient Babylon. But in the grotto by the sea the purest of love reigns supreme.

It is an audience picture—the militia couldn't keep them away. Coming to the Majestic Theatre next Saturday and Sunday.

SCHOOL MEETING A TAME AFFAIR

But Thirty Voters Attend—The Newly Elected Officers

The annual school meeting held on Monday evening of this week was a rather tame affair, only about thirty voters of the district being in attendance. The principal interest was in the election of members of the board, four being elected, two by expiration of their terms and two to fill vacancies. J. H. Elzinga and Koo Klooster were re-elected to succeed themselves, Chas. Edson, appointed some time ago to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of Wm. Kooyer, was elected for a full term, and Mr. Kooyer was elected to succeed E. J. Chelles, who is now residing in Detroit.

The past year's business was approved and a budget of seven thousand dollars for the coming year was announced by the board.

RED CROSS NOTES

To all who are interested in the compensation for ex-service men:

The national committee American Red Cross has voted at their meeting in Washington, D. C., May 24, that the request of the war department, that the Red Cross assist in the distribution and proper filling out of application blanks for adjusted compensation for the veterans of the world war, be complied with, and that the vice-chairman in charge of domestic operations communicate with chapter, urging that as far as possible this service be extended through volunteer service.

The Antrim county Red Cross chapter feels that its first duty is to the ex-service man or dependents of the ex-service man, and it is anxious that everyone entitled to the adjusted compensation file his or her claim at an early date. The filing of the application blanks should not be "put off until another day," as the time limit of filing applications for compensation for many are rapidly expiring—it is extremely important that everyone make out his papers at an early date. Application blanks and assistance in the different localities of Antrim county are as follows:

Alden—Mr. Fred Amisegar.
Albion—Mr. R. C. Bennit.
Central Lake—Mrs. Ella Wallbrecht and Guy White.

Ellsworth—Mr. Doyle Sage.
Bellaire—Mr. Will Richards.
Mancelona—American Legion.
Elk Rapids—Mr. Ernest Schuler.

In many localities by the bean maggot, reducing the condition to 87 per cent or four per cent below that of one year ago. This figure represents a production of 6,057,000 bushels or about one-half million bushels less than the 1923 crop.

The largest acreage of sugar beets on record has been planted in Michigan this year, the various companies reporting a total of 179,000 acres as compared with 109,000 harvested last year. The present condition is placed at 88 per cent which is equivalent to a production of 1,233,000 tons of beets. The United States' are planted totals 917,000 acres as compared with 657,000 harvested in 1923. The largest acreage ever harvested was 872,000 in 1920. The present crop forecasts a production of 7,344,000 tons of beets and 939,000 tons of sugar.

Fruit prospects have declined very materially during June. The extremely cool weather during and following the blooming period caused a reduction in the set of some fruits and a heavy drop in nearly all kinds. Apples show a reduction in prospects since June 1 of ten per cent. While the early crops are fairly good in many sections, the winter varieties, especially spies and baldwins are relatively light. Frequent rains are making it difficult to control the scab and, while the crop is later than usual, it has already commenced in some orchards, and many predict it will continue throughout the month of July. The total production, based upon present condition figures, is estimated at 9,863,000 bushels. The commercial portion is estimated at 1,676,000 barrels. Last year, the total production was 13,159,000 bushels and the commercial, 2,118,000 barrels.

The grape crop shows better promise than last year, the reports indicating 85 per cent of a crop, or a

CONSTANTLY IMPROVED BUT NO YEARLY MODELS

There are obvious benefits to the purchaser in Dodge Brothers policy of making constant, gradual refinements in their product instead of changing from one design to another year after year.

Chief among these is the fact that the car may be operated throughout the full limit of its usefulness without the extra depreciation loss which results from a rapid succession of radically different models.

JIM NOWLAND'S CAR STOLEN AND BURNED

Found Seven Miles Out on Norwood Road Saturday Night

When Mr. and Mrs. James Nowland, who live on Division street, north of town, returned home at ten minutes after eleven o'clock after a visit to the movies last Saturday evening, they found the garage unlocked and their car, a Packard six, gone.

They notified the sheriff and while he was making preparations to commence a search, his telephone rang and some farmer out at Norwood told him that a car had been found, standing in a lonely spot near the Hilton school house on the Norwood road, about seven miles out of town, and on fire. When they found it the lights were on and the horn sounding, while flames enveloped the body. This was about 12:30 p. m.

Mr. Nowland at once accompanied the sheriff to the scene and identified his property. They got out there at about three in the morning and Nowland and Charley Marshall towed what was left of the car back to the Central Garage. The engine and tires appeared to be uninjured, only the body being utterly destroyed.

No real theory has as yet been advanced by the authorities as to why the depredation was committed or by whom. As far as is known, Mr. Nowland had no enemies, nor had he been involved in any lawsuit or dispute—in fact, there is no evidence that would give a clue to the purpose behind the deed. It might have been, some think, that joy-riders took the car and having some trouble with the engine or being unable to start it and fearing detection, set fire to the machine to destroy its identity. Every effort is being made, however, to apprehend the offenders.

HARRIS CANDIDATE FOR REPRESENTATIVE

Old Wheel Horse Out After Political Honors

Attorney John M. Harris, former county judge of probate and for years identified with county and district affairs, makes his formal announcement as candidate for the office of state representative in this issue of the Courier.

Few men are better known in northern Michigan than "Mac" Harris. He has been identified with the county's interest for nearly a half century. Forty-two years ago he taught school in what is known as the Chaddock school district, north of East Jordan. His aspirations, however, was to become an attorney at law, and by diligent study he was admitted to the Charlevoix county bar and has since served the county in numerous ways.

"Mac" is thoroughly qualified to ably fill this responsible position. Few men have a larger acquaintance among men at the state capital than he. And to "get anywhere" as a representative acquaintanceship counts just as much and even more in many instances, than the ability to make long-winded speeches. And if necessary to act in this capacity, our eastern neighbor can do it.

The election of Mr. Harris means that Charlevoix county will be well represented at Lansing.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Baptist church will hold their annual bazaar and baked goods sale at Frank Metcalf's drug store, all day, Saturday, July 20th. —Adv. 29-t2.

the board, I hereby transmit to you my resignation as a member of the board of education, to take effect as soon as it can be acted upon after the return of Dr. Wilkinson, in order that there can be a full board present to select my successor, but, in no event to take effect later than October 1st, 1924.

My interest in the school and the welfare of the school district will naturally continue, if, for no other reason than the fact that my school tax is approximately $2.50 for every school day or approximately 50 cents for every hour the school is in session.

It is to be hoped that my retirement from any official position with the school, will have the effect of bringing together the tax payers and parents with but a single thought in mind, the best interest of the children and school district, that past differences and dissensions may be forgotten, now that the facts are known.

In conclusion, may I state; that at any time, when the interests of the school or district can be served by doing so, do not hesitate to command me.

Wishing you all the most harmonious of associations, I beg to remain
Sincerely yours,
Rollie L. Lewis.

FRANK F. BIRD OUT FOR REGISTER

Hayes Township Farmer Announces
His Candidacy

Frank F. Bird, well known Hayes township farmer and at the present time secretary of the Charlevoix County Agricultural Society, has announced himself as a candidate for the office of Register of Deeds, on the Republican ticket, at the September primary.

Mr. Bird has been a resident of Charlevoix county for some 27 years, practically this entire time being spent on a farm. He has formed a large acquaintanceship during his connection with the county fair association, having served as one of its directors for six years, the last three years being its secretary.

He believes he is capable of handling the duties of the office, and if hard work and strict attention to duty appeals to the electors of the county, he asks their support.

he could have clung until help came, or he could have climbed back onto the pontoon boat, which had only drifted a few feet away. Many theories are advanced for the peculiar fact that though he could swim and apparently had suffered no injury at the time he fell into the water, he could not save himself. It is thought by some that he might have received a shock from the wiring of the engine which caused him to lose his hold and stunned him sufficiently to cause him to draw the water into his lungs.

HOSPITAL TAG DAY AT HAND

MANY CHANGES HAVE BEEN EFFECTED THERE

Money Wisely Spent by Building Committee Appears in New Structure

With the near approach of visiting day at the Charlevoix Hospital, which is set for August 2nd and the regular annual Tag Day which is to follow on July 9th, one is reminded of the fact that many changes have taken place in this useful institution since last year. Although many of our townspeople are now familiar with these improvements, it might not be amiss to enumerate some of the things that have been done to make the local hospital one of the most efficient institutions of its size in this end of the state.

According to plans prepared by Earl H. Mead, of Harbor Springs, one of the leading architects of the north, and approved by the board of trustees, after a most careful and searching study of the institution's needs and the arrangement and layout employed in the construction of many of the leading hospital buildings of the country, work was commenced last October under the supervision of James M. Saunders, well-known local contractor, who, on his leaving for the west, was succeeded by William J. Bogart.

Almost as if by magic, an imposing and sightly structure has taken the place of the old frame building, which has been increased to more than twice its original dimensions. With the beautiful grounds, and fine cement walks surrounding it and the luxuriant garden that flanks it on the east, its fine gray stuccoed walls with white and black trim, and its imposing extent, the building forms one of the most beautiful spots in a town already blessed by nature with many natural beauties.

Within the building itself the transformation is even more striking. The new annex really resulted from a conviction in the minds of the governing board, confirmed by the advice of the medical and nursing staff, that the kitchen with its unavoidable noise and odors should be removed from the midst of the wards and operating rooms and also from the necessity for providing greater facilities for the rapidly growing electrical treatment department of the institution and more room for maternity cases and nursery work, which was encroaching on the regular emergency work of the hospital.

In the old building, the space formerly occupied by the kitchen is now in the process of being converted into a sun parlor for convalescents. This, with the removal of the steam heating plant to the basement of the annex and extensive repair and redecoration of the walls and woodwork are the major changes in this part of the hospital.

The second or top floor of the new annex is reached by a slight ramp or rise through a corridor which connects the two stories and basement with the old structure. The right hand side of the hall, beyond the glass-paneled door leading out of the corridor is occupied by a spacious maternity ward and one private room. This is the south side of the building and provides a wonderful location for this ward where the health of the patient depends so largely on the proper conditions of temperature, ventilation and restfulness of surroundings. On the opposite side of the hall, or the north side of the building is located the delivery room, which with the maternity ward has grown to be one of the most important and best patronized departments of the institution. Beyond this is the nursery, with its queer little row of six bassinets along ship-hammock fashion along a rack, waiting for their tiny occupants. At the end of the hallway, around a corner in a deep recess is located the bathroom and toilet.

Descending to the main or first floor of the new building, one finds at the right, as you enter, the nurses' dining room—a most attractive place, we should imagine, to take one's meals, as it is lighted by broad windows facing the south, looking out onto a beautiful expanse of green lawn and flower beds to the quiet street beyond, flanked by fine old trees. Beyond the dining room on this side of the hallway are located two more private rooms.

Across the hall from the dining room is the new kitchen, perfectly appointed, commodious and scientifically arranged with a view to the greatest possible convenience. As on the floor above, a bathroom is located at the end of the hall and there are also large storerooms for linen and supplies on this floor.

You enter the basement through a door in the hallway of the main floor and find the arrangement of the rooms about the same as on the floors above. The south side will be devoted to the electrical apparatus used in giving the popular therapeutic treatments and on the other side of the hallway is the fine, large basement with an up-to-date heating plant, conveying steam through asbestos covered pipes to radiators in all parts of the building. Space for an elevator has been provided and this will be installed later when it is needed.

Negotiations are about complete to secure an X-Ray machine for hospital use. Anyone at all familiar with the methods used in modern surgery knows how important an assistance this machine is to the doctor diagnosing a case where the trouble is located in the deeper vital organs of the body, in finding and removing foreign substances from their lodgings.

CAPTAIN PUGH DIES SUDDENLY

TAKEN TO LUDINGTON HOSPITAL ON STEAMER

Formerly Coast Guard Captain Here, Was Employed This Summer
As Swimming Instructor

Capt. Eli E. Pugh died suddenly at Paulina Stearns' hospital in Ludington, Saturday night, July 19th. He had been taken there from Charlevoix Friday night, where he was taken ill one week ago.

Born near Grand Rapids, April 27, 1864, he entered the government life saving service at Manistee when 21. A year later he was transferred to the Pentwater station, going from there to South Manitou where he was made keeper. Charlevoix was his next post, and he was honorably retired March 31, 1919, after six years in charge of the Ludington station.

Capt. Pugh at the time of his death was a member of the city commission from the first ward of Ludington. He was a member of all Ludington Masonic bodies up to and including Apollo commandery No. 31, Knights-Templar. Courtesy was one of his marked characteristics.

The widow, two sons, J. Wilbur Pugh, Chicago, and Walter E. Pugh, Milwaukee; two sisters, Mrs. Harry Card, Grand Rapids, Mrs. William Cole, Ann Arbor, and one brother, Lyle Pugh, Muskegon, survive.

Captain Pugh at the time of his death was employed by the Belvedere Club as swimming instructor and guard at their pier in Pine Lake. He served in that capacity last summer and was much liked and respected by the patrons of the club.

He was taken ill on Saturday, July 12th, and for three days last week was in the Charlevoix Hospital. Friday morning at three o'clock the steamer Puritan arrived here and by special courtesy and kindness of the officers was held an hour and a half beyond schedule time in order that Captain Pugh, who was very anxious to get home, might be prepared for the journey. They arrived Friday evening and he was taken direct to the hospital, where he died the next evening.

The funeral was held at 2:00 p. m. Tuesday from the Congregational church at Ludington.

For County Road Commissioner
I respectfully announce my candidacy for the office of County Road Commissioner of Charlevoix county, on the Republican ticket at the September primary. Your consideration will be appreciated.

DROWNS IN PINE LAKE

CHARLES BURNETT WALKS OFF
CHANNEL BANK

His Family, Picnicking at Hayden's Point Helpless to Save Man Who Couldn't Swim

Another sad drowning accident occurred last Sunday at Hayden's Point when Charles Burnett, son of Frank Burnett, of Bay Shore, ventured out beyond his depth and perished before the eyes of his family and friends.

Mr. Burnett, his wife and four children and his sister and her husband, who are visiting the Burnetts from Jackson, Mich., started out Sunday afternoon to make the drive around Pine Lake. They got as far as Hayden's Point and decided to stop off and eat their luncheon there. After eating a hearty meal, the men and two of the children went in bathing. They were playing about in the water when those on shore saw Mr. Burnett suddenly drop beneath the surface of the water. He came up in a moment struggling and calling for help. Those with him in the water and the women who were on shore did their best to get to him but without avail, although he came up a second time.

As they were frantically struggling to reach the drowning man, Dr. and Mrs. Bert L. Adams and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lamphear of this city drove up. Dr. Adams ran to a nearby farm house and secured a rope and something to drag with and he and the other men finally succeeded in recovering the body. With the assistance of Mr. and Mrs. Lamphear, they worked for an hour and a half, trying to bring life back to the unfortunate man.

Their efforts, however, proved unsuccessful and the remains were brought to See's undertaking rooms in this city to be prepared for the funeral, which will take place at the home of the deceased in Bay Shore at 1:00 o'clock this afternoon. Mr. Burnett was 36 years of age. He could not swim and neither could the other members of the party. They also disregarded the time honored warning, not to go into the water on a full stomach.

The drowning accidents of the past few weeks convince us that something should be done about this matter of learning to swim. As long as water continues to be one of the elements of which man claims to be master, it would seem to be well that the majority of people should be able to exercise this control individually. In this region, at least, the safety first measure of greatest importance is undoubtedly knowing how to swim. It should have an important place in the training of our children and be a prized accomplishment of every adult.

Political Announcement
To the Electors of the County of Charlevoix:

I am a candidate for the office of County Treasurer, on the Republican ticket, at the September 9, 1924, primary. I request my friends to consider me in this connection and assure them that I will appreciate any assistance offered. Joseph William Flanders.—Adv. 28-tf.

TRIPLE PLAY WON THE GAME

LOCALS LOSE TO PETOSKEY BY
SCORE OF 2 TO 1

Charlevoix Players Crowded Their Opponents in the Fifth Inning, Sunday

The following account of last Sunday's league baseball game at Petoskey between Charlevoix and Petoskey appears in a recent issue of the Petoskey Evening News:

The Petoskey team in the Northern Michigan Amateur Baseball league opened its 1924 season with a victory, Sunday afternoon, over the crack Charlevoix team at the Fair Grounds field, 2 to 1. A triple play the first in the league this season, cut short a Charlevoix rally in the fifth and added just the necessary fight to the locals to hold down the heavy visiting sluggers. There was a fairly good sized crowd out. Mrs. Chas. Novak, Charlevoix, was given the lady's favor, a wrist watch.

The exciting play came after the first two men up had singled sharply. Eberle singled over second and Powers sent a scorching drive between first and second, Eberle stopping at second. Davidson struck out but the ball bounded off King's glove and the base runners attempted a double steal. King tagged Davidson and threw to Long who ran Eberle down between second and third. Powers evidently believed three were out for he left second and Long ran him down on the infield, completing the triple play.

Charlevoix threatened in fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and ninth, but could not get the hits when they meant runs. Two got on by hits in the fourth, two in the fifth, making up the total of six hits which Thomas allowed the visiting sluggers.

Manager Lennox started the rally in the first and the one in the third which sent the Petoskey manager home with the two runs scored by Petoskey.

In the first inning, Petoskey's half, started with a single. Fessende, sacrificed, Lennox advanced to third on Gurnsey's out and scored when Powers lost Negake's hit near second. In the third Lennox again opened with a single, went to third on Gurnsey's and scored on Negake's single. Gurnsey attempted to score on Long's hit and was out, Malloy to Rallye at home plate.

Charlevoix scored in the ninth. Rallye was out Gurney to Dagwell. Eberle was hit by a pitched ball, stole second on a close decision, went to third on Davidson's single and scored on Christie's single. Sanford struck out and Mallow was out, Long to Dagwell.

Political Announcement
I am a candidate for the Republican nomination for member of the House of Representatives for Charlevoix county at the coming Primary election to be held on September 9th, 1924.

I have had for many years more than usual interest in State Legislation and if nominated and elected will give the state and this district diligent effort and attention. I will appreciate the support of the electors for the nomination. Dated Boyne City, July 9th, 1924. J. M. Harris.

ANOTHER PIONEER WOMAN HAS PASSED

Mrs. Alfred Van Dusen Dies at Age of Sixty-seven

Mrs. Mary A. Van Dusen, wife of Alfred Van Dusen, prominent farmer of the Norwood district, died at her home on Tuesday, July 15th, at 9:00 p. m., following a paralytic stroke and subsequent illness of five days duration. She was 63 years of age.

Mary Ann Sanborn was born in Brantford, Canada, in 1856. At the age of 15, in 1871, she came to Michigan with her parents where she was married in 1873. Soon after her marriage, the Vn Dusens moved onto the farm that they now occupy, which was then only a clearing in the woods with a log cabin on it. This was replaced by the present farm dwelling. They were among the first settlers of this region.

The deceased is survived by her husband, six children, seventeen grandchildren and three great grandchildren, all but one of her children being present at her death-bed. Mr. and Mrs. Van Dusen had been married for 51 years.

The funeral was held last Friday at 2:00 p. m. from the home in Norwood township, with interment at Brookside.

RACES START ON THURSDAY

TENTH ANNUAL REGATTA HELD ON PINE LAKE

Chicago Yacht Club Entrants, As Well as Local Craft, Will Compete for Prizes

Contesting crafts in the 19th annual race of the Chicago Yacht Club to Mackinac Island, forming the largest fleet ever to start on the longest fresh water race in the world, left their moorings at Chicago on the evening of July 19th and swept to the northward with a stiff, southeasterly wind filling their sails.

All but four reached the finish line at Mackinac Island between 12 o'clock midnight, Monday and 2 o'clock Tuesday morning. Several of the vessels met with mishaps. The Vanadas went on the rocks at Round Island Light and the Sista also went aground near the island. The Seabloom went ashore on the rock spit off the island and had to be towed off by the coast guard.

The Virginia, a Q boat, owned by A. A. Hadwiger of Chicago, was lying at anchor in the harbor off the island yesterday morning at ten o'clock and was struck by the Manitou, as the big ship was swinging around to dock. The sloop lost her mast and spar and one of the men on her had his head laid open from side to side, being thrown to the deck by the force of the collision. The Sunshine also put into the island harbor at nine o'clock Tuesday morning, dismasted, the mast having been carried away in the night, while nearing the island. She limped in under her mizzen and engine.

The race was won by an "R" boat, the Siren, owned by Ben Carpenter, of Chicago, which was the first to cross the finish line.

Two of the competing craft put in to Charlevoix harbor yesterday, and 20 more are expected this afternoon. The two vessels now docked at Snn Hamilton's yards are the Truant, owned by C. M. Peterson, of Chicago, and the Kayoshk II, owned by George Fox. The Truant was reported sunk off Beaver Island yesterday and in reality broke her gaff off Skillagalee and had to put in here for repairs. The Kayoshk II was winner in the yawl class and was towed in here all the way from Mackinac by a big, black converted submarine chaser, which left here shortly after noon today, after bringing her charge safely into the harbor.

The 10th Annual Regatta of the club starts tomorrow on Pine Lake over a triangle course, seven miles around. The starting line will be between the first buoy and the judges boat. The second buoy will be just off the second point on the south side of the lake. A compass course of all buoys will be given to each boat before the races.

GROESBECK TO RUN ONCE MORE

ACCEDES TO IMPORTUNITIES OF HIS FRIENDS

Need for Party Unity in Michigan
Given As Reason for Decision To Make Race

Governor Alexander J. Groesbeck has announced that he will be a candidate for re-election to a third term.

Following a week's conference with Republican leaders and administration heads, the governor issued a statement early last Friday in which he outlined his plans and reviewed accomplishments of his past administration. This decision came as a result of continuous pressure brought to bear by his friends and supporters, who have been determined that he should run for a third time. They have pleaded party unity and the necessity of carrying out the administration program put into effect during Groesbeck's two previous administrations. They have felt that only behind the governor could all factions be united. It is understood that William W. Potter, chairman of the public utilities commission, will not allow the governor's candidacy to interfere with his own aspirations to the gubernatorial seat.

Besides Potter, there are four other candidates in the field. They are Thomas Read, lieutenant governor; state senator, Charles R. Sligh, Grand Rapids furniture manufacturer; James Hamilton, Detroit, staunch supporter of the anti-parochial school amendment and Herbert F. Baker, state senator and arch-enemy of the Groesbeck administration.

The governor's decision to try for a third term comes as considerable of a surprise to many, in view of his having previously, on two occasions, prepared statements declaring his intention to return to private practice and give up public affairs.

In giving a resume of the accomplishments of his two previous terms, Governor Groesbeck emphasizes the improvements made in the institutions of the state, the construction of many miles of highway and the marked increase in efficiency of the state affairs under the administrative board system. "Providing funds for future road construction and maintenance is a subject worthy of serious thought and unbiased consideration," says the governor. "Its ultimate disposition need not work any enormous burden upon automobiles or truck owners. The large yearly increase in the number of these vehicles has greatly simplified the matter of equitably settling the question of how they should be taxed. Our present law, passed years ago, operates unjustly against the owners of light cars, favors the heavier ones and especially the trucks. This, because horsepower is used in part as a basis of computation. This is inequitable and should be corrected."

"If an estimate is made of the amount needed to meet the requirements of highway construction and maintenance, the per hundred-weight license tax can be made. If that charge is made less than 25 cents per hundred, the rate now applied to the lighter car, a gas tax must come."

"I have never yet found it necessary to explain an official act. I deem it of public interest to submit this brief report, as governor, and wish to express my deep sense of gratitude to the citizens of this commonwealth who have manifested their confidence in me and for the loyal supporters of the measures that have been conducive of giving Michigan a better government."

"During the past year and a half, I have frequently stated that I have no desire to seek political office. My personal preference has been to resume private practice. However, to present these issues, I shall be a candidate for governor at the primary election."

Red Crown

The High-Grade Gasoline Means Your Money's Worth of Mileage

TRUE gasoline economy lies in mileage—providing other good fuel qualities are not sacrificed.

Comparative road tests by users and by manufacturers of automobiles, prove that Red Crown yields more and better mileage than any other gasoline of its kind. In addition to extra mileage, Red Crown gives flexibility and efficient performance at all times.

To quote from a letter recently received—"Red Crown, used by us for the last four years, has given us smooth acceleration, more mileage and power, and does not thin out the oil in the crank-case because it burns up clean. Our carburetors do not have to be adjusted because Red Crown is always uniform in quality, everywhere."

Red Crown effects other economies. It keeps your engine running sweet and clean. It reduces overhauling and cleaning bills, and best of all it provides that dependability of performance which is so agreeable to all motorists.

Use Red Crown this summer. It will give you more for your money and more days of service from your car.

21 Years of Service

In the 21 years since its founding, on June 16th, 1903, the Ford Motor Company has contributed largely to the motorizing of modern life. Ten million Ford cars have quickened the pace of business, have brought convenience to day-by-day travel and healthful enjoyment to the American family. THE UNIVERSAL CAR

CRANK CASE EVILS

Adding a 'quart of oil' whenever the spirit moves you is just like throwing a glass of water into a tub of soapsuds and expecting the mixture to turn clear.

The sane motorist drains his crank case each 500 miles because he knows motor oil wears out just like any other substance subject to wear and tear. When oil is worn, has absorbed a certain amount of raw gasoline, a certain amount of carbon, its usefulness as a motor lubricant is over.

Some so-called motor oils are not fit for any car. About the same destructive effect as bootleg liquor to the human interior economy. Use judgement in selecting your motor oil.

And we want you to try Starline oil of course. In fact we would like you to compare the Starline drawn off from your crank case after 500 miles service with any other oil you have used a similar time. Then we know you will agree with us.

ment in the tissues and in watching the progress of a course of internal treatment. The machine is of a portable type and is very powerful.

Some slight changes have been made in the operating department in the old building, as well. The big steam sterilizer has been removed from the main operating room to a smaller room across the hall at the head of the main stairway, which will also be used for minor operations and pus cases.

Much credit is due to the present board of trustees and members of the advisory board, as well as to the hospital superintendent, for the creation of a fine, modern hospital out of a building originally designed for a private home rather than a public institution. All the appointments and equipment installed, from door hardware to flooring and light fixtures have been selected with a view of giving the greatest possible service for the money expended. Much use has been made of a high quality of battleship linoleum for the corridors and doors, giving them a noiseless and practically indestructible wearing surface. The fittings of the interior give an impression of simplicity and durability. The job is well done and Charlevoix has a right to be proud of its hospital and the service that it is rendering.

The personnel of the present board of trustees is as follows: M. A. Levinson, president; P. D. Campbell, vice-president; Clarence N. Bridge, secretary; A. J. Usher, treasurer; Ira A. Adams, W. H. Miller, H. A. Craig, George Glados and Fred Cartier. The members of the advisory board includes R. W. Roloson, of Chicago; Judson Harmon, of Cincinnati; W. J. Schroeder, of Cincinnati; Charles M. Rice, of St. Louis; Sidney Loewenstein, of Chicago; James I. Disette, of Indianapolis, and W. B. Stewart, of Muncie, Ind.

On August 2nd, the doors of the hospital will be thrown open to the public, who are invited to visit the institution, get acquainted with the personnel of its staff and see for themselves the fine work that has been done. On Saturday, August 9th, they will be asked to contribute to the work of the hospital in a practical way, through the agency of the

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

William Horstman of San Francisco, California, proprietor of the California Exposition Shows, is engaged in the somewhat novel enterprise of driving a Flint six car over a prescribed course of 14,780 miles, on a bet. If he wins he will get back the money he paid for the car he is driving, and a brand new car besides, and if he loses, he keeps the car he is driving and pays for another.

The bet, which was made by an automobile executive on the coast, was that a Flint car could be driven from San Francisco to Vancouver, Canada, on only three services each way, or a total of six for the round trip.

When Mr. Horstman arrived in Eugene, Oregon, last week, he had already gone three thousand miles without any repair, and was beginning to feel pretty confident that the car would stand up under the course of punishment prescribed for it.

"I have always been a high priced car enthusiast," he stated, "and I have seven high priced cars right now. This friend of mine made this little bet with me to prove that the Flint is as good as any of them, and I am beginning to believe that he knew what he was talking about."

Mr. Horstman is carrying four passengers with him, and with his baggage has seventeen hundred and two pounds weight, besides the car, which he must carry over the entire course. The trip is from San Francisco to Vancouver over the Canadian Rockies, and back through Montana, Idaho, Texas, New Mexico, and Mexico.

Fill them with grease and the squeaks are gone. Equip your car with the Alemite High Pressure Lubricating System. Benj. Brown, has them.—Adv. 30-1f.

POULTRY
RECENT METHOD OF FEEDING CHICKENS

A new system for feeding chicks has been substituted by the University of New Hampshire for that previously recommended by that institution.

When the chicks are taken from the incubator and placed under the brooder stove, they should be given a drink of a mixture of sour milk or buttermilk in which have been beaten up about three eggs yolks per quart of milk. This mixture should be accessible for the first 21 hours they are under the brooder stove. For the next seven days they should be fed five times a day with a sufficient amount of chick feed—which may be a mixture of equal parts of fine cracked corn, fine cracked wheat, and steamed oats—last ten minutes. As soon as this mixture is eaten, they should be given a sufficient amount of an egg-and-mash mixture to last them about ten minutes more, made with 12 egg yolks to each one and one-half pounds of mash, and mixed thoroughly to produce really a crumbly mixture. Enough of this mash should be fed to provide one egg yolk to each 30 chicks daily.

The second week this feeding should be continued if a sufficient supply of eggs is available. Toward the end of the second week the regular laying dry mash may be given an hour both morning and afternoon, increasing the length of time until it is constantly before the chicks.

The eggs used in this mixture may be those taken out of the incubator on the seventh and fourteenth-day tests. They will aid materially in the development of the chicks and will prevent leg weakness to a large extent. If no eggs are available, a pint of cod-liver oil mixed with 100 pounds of mash may be substituted for the egg-and-mash mixture.

From the time the chicks are three weeks old, they should be fed three times a day with equal parts of mash and chick feed.

Why Does Sour Skimmilk
Encourage Hens to Lay?

A year ago the Idaho College of Agriculture, through the department of poultry husbandry, started an experiment to determine the cause of the high production secured from laying hens that were given an abundance of sour skim milk. A study of the analysis of sour skim milk showed it to contain 90.77 per cent water, 0.10 per cent fat, 3.03 per cent milk sugar (lactose), 0.5 per cent lactic acid, 3.5 per cent protein and 0.79 per cent milk ash or salts. It was assumed that water alone was not the stimulating factor. The fat content seemed too low, and the distribution of carbohydrates did not point to milk sugar as a possible source of the problem. A comparison was made of rations containing lactic acid, milk salts, protein-free sour skim milk and sour skim milk. The results showed conclusively that lactic acid in the same solution as in sour skim milk is valueless for egg production. Besides both milk salts and ash entirely failed to stimulate increased egg production. The results all seem to indicate that it is the valuable part of sour skim milk. For two years, the protein-free sour skim milk has not given as satisfactory production as the sour skim milk. A further study is being made into this interesting problem. Pens are now being compared in which rations containing milk curd, milk case, protein-free sour skim milk and sour skim milk are given.

Green Feed Problem

Where the hens have free range, the problem of green feed takes pretty good care of itself, especially if clover or alfalfa fields are convenient. But bare yards are a nuisance. They not only curtail egg production at a time when eggs can be manufactured cheaper than at any other time of the year, but they bring about disease and encourage a general filthy condition that is detrimental to present and future flocks.

Poultry Facts

Market all broilers as early as possible.

Take good care of the growing stock and feed well.

On or kill the chicks that are lacking in vigor.

Range and exercise is especially desirable for poultry breeding stock.

Sour skim milk or buttermilk kept before the chicks at all times will help prevent diarrhea.

Egg production is uneven throughout the year, being heavy in the spring and summer and light in the fall and winter.

Teach the chicks to roost early. This can be started when the chicks are about a month old. Place the roosts about eight inches above the floor.

Both colony and community poultry houses are in common use, each type having special advantages and disadvantages very much like the similar types of hog-houses.

NINETEENTH OF AUGUST.

The formal notification of President Coolidge will take place in Washington about the 19th of August and similar ceremonies will be held at Evanston, Illinois a few days later when General Charles G. Dawes will be formally told that he has been selected as the running mate for Coolidge.

The speech of acceptance by the president will, according to close friends, be a document that will be understood by all the people. It will, no doubt, be as plain as his first message to Congress, which it will be remembered brought forth thousands of letters and telegrams from all sections of the nation complimenting him upon his honest declaration of principles and the straight-forward stand he had taken upon public questions. There will again be demonstrated to the people that the president is unafraid, that he refuses to use high sounding phrases in order to catch votes, or to offer to the people some theoretical cure-all that everyone who stops to think will realize could not be put in force. Coolidge has always been honest with the people, he believes that they should be told the truth, he believes in their intelligence and their desire to do the right thing by their government, and he means to see that their government does the right thing by them.

Coolidge is the kind of a president who believes it is his duty to use all the power of his office to see that the people of the United States are given a square deal—he believes it is his duty to aid in bringing the greatest amount of prosperity possible to all sections of the nation, he takes his job seriously and thinks less of the great honor of being president than he does of the opportunity that has been given to him to be of real service to his fellow citizens.

YOUNGSTER IS INJURED BY FALLING RADIATOR

Douglas Ross Loses Finger End and Is Badly Bruised

Douglas Ross, eleven year old son of George Ross of this city, narrowly escaped death and sustained serious injury through the fall of a heavy radiator, part of the new equipment for the Charlevoix County Bank, which was piled with others in the alley back of the excavation adjoining the bank, against the fence.

According to the boy's story, he heard the sound of an automobile horn behind him and jumped to one side. The next thing he knew, he was down on his side with the 200 pound radiator on top of him. The radiator was carelessly piled on edge and could have easily been tipped over by the jar of an approaching car.

The edge of the heavy board ship-piling struts surrounding the edge of the radiator struck the boy on the side of the leg throwing him to the ground and catching his third finger on the right hand, severed it at the first joint. His screams attracted a number of bystanders, among them Al Rollins of the Courier force, who lifted the radiator off the prostrate boy and picking him up, carried him to a nearby car in which he was rushed to the hospital. He was put under ether and the wound dressed, and an examination made. No bones were found to be broken, although he is severely bruised about the legs. He is now resting as well as can be expected.

AGED RESIDENT OF THE TOWNSHIP DIES

Albert Reynolds Held Public Office At Various Times

Albert Reynolds, well-known farmer of the north end of the township, died at his home on Thursday, July 17th last, at the age of seventy years.

Mr. Reynolds was born in Otsego county, New York, April 20, 1854, and has been a resident of this community for many years, taking an active part in its public and social affairs, holding township office at several periods.

The funeral was held July 19th from the home, Rev. H. R. E. Quant of the M. E. church officiating. Interment was at Brookside.

IT HAS LASTED

Charlevoix People Must Believe Such Convincing Testimony as Mrs. Hyer's.

No one in Charlevoix who suffers backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains or distressing urinary ills can afford to ignore this twice-told story of a Charlevoix resident. It is confirmed testimony, telling of lasting benefit from Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. It's evidence that no man or woman in Charlevoix can doubt.

Mrs. Chas. Hyer, 207 Park Ave., says: "I had trouble with my kidneys and felt tired out and languid all the time. My back ached continually. I bought Doan's Pills at Metcalf's Drug Store, and began using them. They soon relieved the trouble."

Mrs. Hyer gave the above statement October 5, 1916 and on May 1, 1920, she added: "The cure Doan's Pills brought about in my case has proven to be permanent."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills—the same that Mrs. Hyer had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

AGED RESIDENT OF THE TOWNSHIP DIES

Albert Reynolds Held Public Office At Various Times

Albert Reynolds, well-known farmer of the north end of the township, died at his home on Thursday, July 17th last, at the age of seventy years.

Mr. Reynolds was born in Otsego county, New York, April 20, 1854, and has been a resident of this community for many years, taking an active part in its public and social affairs, holding township office at several periods.

The funeral was held July 19th from the home, Rev. H. R. E. Quant of the M. E. church officiating. Interment was at Brookside.

IT HAS LASTED

Charlevoix People Must Believe Such Convincing Testimony as Mrs. Hyer's.

No one in Charlevoix who suffers backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains or distressing urinary ills can afford to ignore this twice-told story of a Charlevoix resident. It is confirmed testimony, telling of lasting benefit from Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. It's evidence that no man or woman in Charlevoix can doubt.

Mrs. Chas. Hyer, 207 Park Ave., says: "I had trouble with my kidneys and felt tired out and languid all the time. My back ached continually. I bought Doan's Pills at Metcalf's Drug Store, and began using them. They soon relieved the trouble."

Mrs. Hyer gave the above statement October 5, 1916 and on May 1, 1920, she added: "The cure Doan's Pills brought about in my case has proven to be permanent."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills—the same that Mrs. Hyer had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

NEW OASES FOR THE THIRSTY INSTALLED

City Is Putting in Six Drinking Fountains

The city is installing six new drinking fountains at different points throughout the city. The work is now in progress and the Bonthron Plumbing Shop is doing the job.

They are to be located as follows: one at the old mineral well on Bridge street, one at the northeast corner of Michigan and Dixon, one in front of S. M. Rose's barber shop, one on the Charlevoix Abstract & Engineering Company's corner, one on Wood Brothers' corner (Mason and Bridge) and one on top of the south hill on one of the corners of the intersection of Bridge and Huribut—which not yet decided.

These fountains are of the continuous flow type, white enameled. Good work, honorable bids, now come on with your rest station.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Baptist church will hold their annual bazaar and baked goods sale at Frank Metcalf's drug store, all day, Saturday, July 26th. —Adv. 29-42.

LEOPOLD AND LOEB HAVE PLEADED GUILTY

They Are Now Barred From Insanity Defense and May Hang

The current press carries a report that Nathan Leopold, Jr. and Richard A. Loeb, millionaire youths and super-intellectuals, have pleaded guilty to the murder of Robert Franks, fourteen-year-old school boy, also the son of a millionaire.

The judge can now sentence them to hang, if he sees fit. The pleas of guilty make it impossible for a defense of "insanity" to be advanced, as it is not legal for an insane person to enter a plea of guilty in Illinois and by pleading guilty the boys have definitely put away the possibility of being proven of unsound mind.

Follow the trail of adventure to gay Deauville, wicked Monte Carlo, and the Riviera, where wealth and beauty revel on passion's playground. Rex Beach's gripping story has been made into a great motion picture. "RECOIL" will be run the second day (Friday) at the Majestic Theatre.

Goldwyn presents Emmett Flynn's production, "NELLIE, THE BEAUTIFUL CLOAK MODEL." The greatest melodrama of them all. WASHINGTON LETTER

After compromising on the Ku Klux Klan and temporizing on the League of Nations, in a way that pleased neither friend nor foe of either, the Democratic national convention effected a straddle so wide that it is bound to split the poor old Democracy all the way up, according to the views of Washington Republicans. John W. Davis, a high grade man, was chosen for first place—after William Jennings Bryson had assured the delegates and the world that Davis was "the tool of Wall Street"—and then as a bribe to the aforesaid Bryson his little brother was nominated for second place. Incidentally, too, there was the belief that "the farmer" might be bought with the tail of the ticket—as though any farmer was ever satisfied with the tail. And now no voter who would like to see Davis in the White House can contemplate the possibility of Bryan getting there without horror and repugnance—and equally,
